Marin May Share Flood Control Tax Take With Cities

Hub Council Joins Opponents Of Bill Now In State Senate

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Objections to a county-wide flood control tax, proposed in a bill before the State Senate, might be eased by a compromise, County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost suggested today.

Frost said those cities which agree to handle their own flood problems could, through resolution of the board of supervisors, get back their share of the county-collected tax.

Frost said this would mean that an amendment to the measure, Senate Bill 1389, excluding Tiburon could be dropped if the city would agree.

However, opposition to the county-wide flood control proposal was growing.

The San Anselmo City Council last night adopted a resolution opposing the bill and asking that the Hub City be excluded.

Mayor E. W. Colthurst of Corte Madera, in a letter to County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer, opposed the bill, said Corte Madera is handling its own flood control problems with a city tax and should not be taxed by the county.

NOT IN ZONES

Fairfax and Belvedere have also opposed the bill, Fairfax in a telegram to the State Senate and Belvedere in a letter to the board of supervisors.

Frost said today the bill could benefit cities through providing survey and engineering services along with some construction work. Major construction work would still have to be done with local financing, either through zones or city taxes, he said.

He cited recent need by the Town of Ross for $15,000 for flood control work. This could have been supplied by the county if there were a county-wide flood tax, Frost said.

TELEGRAM, LETTER

Many areas of the county are not in flood control zones and the county has no fund for basic maintenance work, he said, although usually this is provided through the road fund.

The bill, written by Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, would increase the present county-wide limit for flood control administrative expenses to 50 cents and allow it to be spent for construction as well.

Property owners in zones, now with a $1 per $100 maximum tax, would not be faced with an increase in this maximum, as the bill provides the aggregate of both zone and county-wide taxes would not exceed $1.

The bill was introduced in the Senate April 22 by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, but was not discussed at any length by supervisors until last week .

The board then adopted a resolution to support the bill and authorize Maloney and Frost to appear at a hearing before the Senate water resources committee. Supervisors' support was on the premise that the bill would help do away with multiple flood control zones.

Lawrence D. Rose, Tiburon city manager, apepared at the hearing, asking that Tiburon be excluded. The bill went to the Senate floor with a "do pass" recommendation, but with an amendment excluding Tiburon.

Senate Passes LBJ's Voting Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After five weeks of debate, the Senate passed today the bill urged by President Johnson to prevent denial of voting rights because of race or color.

The bill is aimed primarily at Southern states, where literacy and similar voter qualification tests would be suspended and federal examiners could be appointed to register voters.

Passage of the bill, submitted to Congress in mid-March at the height of the Selma, Ala., demonstrations, was assured when the Senate voted 70-30 Tuesday to put its debate-limiting cloture rule into effect.

The bill now goes to the House where a similar measure already has been approved by the judiciary committee. House action on it is expected next month.

In the Senate's final round of limited debate, Southern opponents assailed the bill as destructive of the Constitution and born in political expediency.

Unification Passes, Fails

MADERA (UPI)— Voters in Madera approved a school unification measure yesterday but a similar proposal was defeated in Chowchilla.

The measure to unify nine elementary school districts with the Madera Union High School District was approved 870-697.

In Chowchilla, the proposal to unify four elementary schools with the Chowchilla Union High School District gained only 274 yes votes to 374 against.

GAME OF TIN CAN

Tanks larger than automobiles lie scattered over Pratt, Kan., airport today after a tornado last night sideswiped a hanger in which the big containers were stored, causing $200,000 damage. Another twister invaded Chicago's busy O'Hare airport, overturning a cargo plane and parked cars and smashing terminal building windows, as well as de-roofing a military hangar. The howling funnels danced destructively in several other Midwest states last night and early today. (AP Wirephoto)

Clay Seems Confused About Next Opponent

After knocking out Sonny Liston last night in the record time of one minute flat, Clay shouted down at Patterson at ringside, "You're next, rabbit, you're next."

However, at a press conference today, the 23-year-old champion suggested that he and Chuvalo fight in New York in September.

Clay had given Patterson his word for a title fight twice this year, once when Floyd beat Chuvalo in New York on Feb. 1 and again last night when the champion shouted for "the rabbit," meaning Patterson, after he beat Liston. (See page 21, 22 for fight details.)

Yank Is Killed In Ambush; U.S. Continues Air Strikes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — One American was killed, another was wounded and a third was missing today following a Viet Cong ambush 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

In the air war, U.S. warplanes battered military installations and transport facilities in North Viet Nam on a round-the-clock basis.

The Americans were ambushed yesterday as they were traveling in a jeep from the Special Forces camp at Ben Soi to Tay Ninh.

An irregular South Vietnamese strike force made contact with the Viet Cong, and a regional company accompanied by two American advisers was sent into the area.

In the firefight that followed 11 Viet Cong were reported killed. South Vietnamese losses were four killed and four wounded.

The American who was killed, an enlisted man, was the 386th American combat death in South Viet Nam since December 1961. This is one more than the American battle dead in the Spanish- American war.

$500,000 Hub Fund Proposed

City Administrator Douglas J. Flautt proposed last night that San Anselmo City Council create a capital improvement fund to finance a five-year, $500,000 program.

The council should consider including the fund in its budgets and designate at least 50 cents of the tax rate to the fund, he said.

Flautt delivered his recommended budget for fiscal 1966 to the council, with $102,900 designated for capital expansion and replacement projects.

He estimated this year's city tax rate of $2.03 per $100 assessed valuation might go up to $2.35 if the proposed capital improvement fund is included.

Under Flautt's recommended budget, the appropriations section totals $802,857, as compared to $872,010 this year, a decrease of $69,153.

The council scheduled three sessions to review the budget, June 14, 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Major capital improvements in Flautt's recommendations for fiscal 1966 include $17,500 for half the cost of a new fire engine, $20,000 for matching funds

Rusk Reports Russ Missile Site Pondered

Hanoi Vicinity Installations Given Airing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a news conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into detail when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

MAYBE MORE

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area. We do not know if there may be more."

The State Department acknowledged earlier this month that a missile site was under preparation in the Hanoi area.

Rusk said that "we understand in one that there is present missile - associated equipment."

FAVORABLE REPORT

Rusk also said the Communist threat in the Dominican Republic has been "very substantially reduced." He also foresaw a further pullout of U.S. forces from Santo Domingo soon.

His generally favorable report on the Dominican situation came four weeks to the day aft-

Bay Dikes Found Not Feasible

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tests conducted on the model of San Francisco Bay at Sausalito indicate it would not be economically feasible to reduce bay silting with a system of dikes, floodway channels and tide gates.

Edward A. Schultz, who conducted the tests, told Army Engineers yesterday he was convinced the best solution was improvement of dredging methods.

Schultz said construction of water control systems for Oakland Harbor and Mare Island Strait could cost as much as $42 million. He said the systems would reduce silting by 56 per cent and would save $400,000 annually in dredging.

He said improved dredging techniques would be cheaper and would benefit the entire bay.

Burns, Unruh Say Decision Is Definite

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A joint legislative investigation of the University of California and other higher education facilities was announced today by the legislature's two top leaders.

"We have reached a definite conclusion we will set up a joint committee in both houses," said Senate President Pro Tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Los Angeles, said he expected support from the U.C. regents and from Gov. Brown.

Brown earlier had said he didn't like the idea of a legislative probe of the University.

The two told their joint news conference that a resolution authorizing the committee was being prepared for introduction.

"We'll do an objective study," said Burns. He added that it would also include a look into allegations that university professors are neglecting their students and concentrating too much on outside jobs.

BROWN'S SUPPOR

Unruh said that some members of the University of California regents had assured him of Brown's support.

The speaker also accused the State Department of Parks and Recreation of being "almost derisive of legislative intent" in planning how to spend revenue from last year's $150 million parks and recreation bond issue.

He denied the Assembly Ways and Means Committee's action in holding up expenditure of some $58 million for park purchases would hurt the state's recreation program.

BURNS AGREES

Burns agreed with Unruh that legislative study should precede spending the bond money, saying "too much haste makes waste."

The governor has criticized the committee for having "emasculated the park program," and charged that delay in buying parkland would mean fewer parks for the people.

Unruh said that the Parks and Recreation Department had studied only a third of the resolutions adopted by the legislature suggesting park sites.

The state, he said, "should not be park barrelling," in a joking reference to the legislative "pork barrel" custom of adding pet projects for individual lawmakers' districts.

But the purchases should not be made without a study, he said.

On other subjects, Unruh maintained he was not abandoning his massive tax-reduction, tax-increase program — just trimming it a bit to meet the state budget.

Again, he warned that under Gov. Brown's less extensive tax program, "we will still go into the 1966 campaign facing a quarter of a billion dollar deficit."

The speaker also said that it will take a week or 10 days for the Assembly to decide whether to go ahead with a request by Democratic congressmen to reapportion their congressional districts this session.

Johnson Asks For Ban On Billboards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today to ban billboards and unsightly junkyards along busy highways. And he sought funds for highway beautification.

In a letter to officials of the Senate and House, Johnson put forth these sweeping and controversial proposals one day after the close of a White House conference on natural beauty.

The most controversial of the presidential recommendations was his plan to control outdoor advertising.

"In general," he told Congress, "such controls would require that no advertising signs be erected in areas within 1,000 feet of the pavement and visible to the passing motorists. Existing signs would have to be removed by July 1, 1970."

Johnson said that, if Congress agrees, no states could receive federal highway aid after Jan. 1, 1968 unless they control billboards along interstate and primary roads — the most heavily traveled highways. Billboards still would be permitted, however, along routes zoned or used primarily for commercial or industrial purposes.

In proposing controls over junkyards, Johnson said:

"I recommend that as a condition of receiving federal aid, states must exercise control along the entire interstate and primary systems. No new junkyards could be established within 1,000 feet of the pavement and visible to the motorist. Existing junkyards would have to be effectively screened or removed by July 1, 1970."

But Superior Judge H. Burton Noble denied their mistrial motion and recessed the murder trial until tomorrow following a 45-minute session with attorneys in his chambers.

Southern Negro Teachers Losing Students And Jobs

(EDITOR'S NOTE — One of the offshoots of school desegregation is the eventual elimination of the South's dual systems. A survey by The Associated Press indicates the effect on Negro teachers.)

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP) — Some Negro school teachers are losing their jobs as desegregation literally takes away their classes. The prospect is that many more teachers will be thrown out of work in the South.

There is a strong possibility that wholesale dismissal of Negro teachers will result from the elimination of dual school systems, said Gilbert L. Porter, a Negro educator of Tallahassee, Fla.

"I wouldn't call it a trend yet," Porter said. "But I see a beginning." He said many Negro teachers are in danger of losing jobs because of desegregation.

Similar fears were expressed by Negro leaders in other Southern states. But desegregation has not gone far enough to raise the teacher problem in most areas of the South.

Complaints came from Florida, Texas, Virginia, Arkansas and North Carolina in a survey of the teacher situation.

It was charged Monday in New York by Jack Greenberg of the NAACP legal defense fund that a trend of wholesale dismissal of Negro teachers was emerging throughout the South.

Porter said 10 Negro teachers had been notified they would not be re-employed next year because their 135 pupils are going to formerly white schools.

An informal inquiry was promised by Thomas Bailey, state superintendent of public instruction, who said: "I have seen no evidence of any attempt to bring about mass dismissals."

By far the most severe report came from North Carolina. But Dr. S. E. Duncan of Salisbury said the statement that 500 Negro teachers will lose their jobs was "merely an estimate." He said a survey was being made to get the number.

Duncan is president of the North Carolina Teachers Association, the Negro organization. Greenberg said in his speech that 500 Negroes had been fired or told to find other jobs. A court test is planned.

The state's superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Charles Carroll, said he knew of no Negro teachers losing their jobs.

In Virginia, at least 19 Negro teachers have been displaced by desegregation, said Dr. J. Rupert Picott, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association, a Negro group.

The U.S. Office of Education has directed Southern school systems to take steps toward consolidation of faculties, but school officials have questioned the legality of this order.

In Texas, a spokesman for the Negro Teachers Association, Vernon McDaniel of Dallas, said the state has some problem of displaced teachers, "but nothing of the proportion which Mr. Greenberg says exists in the South."

McDaniel said he had reports of about 10 Negroes losing their jobs because of desegregation. Clarence Laws, Southwest regional NAACP director, said his office had received complaints from two cities which he would not name and expects many more.

Laws said abolition of Negro schools in one city would throw seven of eight teachers out of work.

Ten Arkansas teachers have been asked to resign because of school realignment, said T. E. Patterson, executive secretary of the Negro teachers organization.

Capitol Hill Foreign Aid Showdown Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — House passage of a one-year, $3.37-billion foreign aid authorization bill has set the stage for a showdown with the Senate over the future course of the program.

Senate leaders said they will push for early passage of a different version — one which extends the program for two years, at $3.35 billion a year — and calls for termination of foreign aid in its present form after that.

The House passed its one-year measure — with no provision for termination — by a vote of 249 to 148 yesterday. It did so after rejecting, 219 to 177, a Republican attempt to cut $131 million from the development loan section.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told newsmen he thinks the Senate will go along with the committee's recommendation for a two-year authorization and a two-year deadline for the administration to come up with a new program.

Fulbright served notice on the administration last fall he would not steer the measure in the Senate if it submitted an omnibus bill. He lost a motion in his own committee to split military and economic aid into two separate bills.

Astronaut Named For Space Stroll

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Strolling through space at 17,500 miles per hour about 100 miles above the earth could be hard work for any astronaut.

Edward H. White II officially got the assignment yesterday from Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, Manned Spacecraft Center director.

The 34-year-old Air Force major will climb out of his Gemini-4 spacecraft over Guaymas, Mexico, during the second orbit, and cavort through space for about 10 to 12 minutes before he climbs back into the cabin over the Florida coast.

The daring feat will be one of two firsts for the United States, the longest mission — four days — and the first astronaut to leave his cramped spaceship to venture into space.

No television cameras will watch White. His flight partner, command pilot James A. McDivitt, 35, will take pictures through the spacecraft's windows. The entire exercise will take about 22 minutes.

White is in superb physical condition. "He could run the mile, fight a 10-round boxing match, swim 20 miles and do about anything that would require physical endurance," said Dr. Charles Berry, physician in charge of astronauts' health.

A friend asked White why he wanted to leave the spacecraft to go into space.

Inquest Due In Death Of FDR Jr. Ex-Wife

GROSSE POINTE FARMS, Mich. (AP)—An inquest ws to be held today into the death of Mrs. Ethel du Pont Roosevelt Warren, heiress and former wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Mrs. Warren, 49, a member of the wealthy Du Pont chemical and industrial family and one-time Eastern society beauty, was found dead in a bathroom of her home in this Detroit suburb yesterday.

Police said Mrs. Warren apparently hanged herself.

Friends said Mrs. Warren, mother of two sons by Roosevelt and a third in her second marriage, had been ill recently.

Police broke through the bathroom door. The maid, Martha Weber, said Mrs. Warren had appeared disconsolate when she was served breakfast in bed about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Warren was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene I. du Pont of the du Pont chemical manufacturing dynasty.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow from Christ Episcopal church in neighboring Grosse Pointe. Burial is to be at Wilmington.

Mrs. Warren's second husband, lawyer Benjamin S. Warren Jr., was called to her home. The two have been separated.

Friends said Mrs. Warren had been looking forward to the marriage June 12 of Christopher du Pont Roosevelt, 24, one of her sons by her first marriage. He is to be wed to Rosamund Havemeyer of Huntington, Long Island, N.Y.

The other son from the first marriage is Franklin D. Roosevelt III, 27.

The son by the second marriage, Benjamin S. Warren III, 11, goes to private school in Eagle Brook, N.H.

The marriage with Roosevelt ended in divorce in May 1949. She married Warren in December the same year.

Earthquake Spotter Set On Sea Floor

POINT ARENA (AP) — The first recording of an earthquake from a permanent undersea station occurred April 29 when a temblor shook the Pacific Northwest, scientists announced today.

Scientists from the Lamont Geological Observatory, Columbia University, were completing a cable hookup with the station 100 miles off the Northern California coast and two miles below the surface of the Pacific when the earthquake hit.

The initial shock was recorded in the Seattle-Tacoma area at 8:28:35.2 a.m. It registered at Point Arena at 8:30:57.2 a.m.

The temblor was felt for 600 miles along the Pacific Coast.

RUSK

Johnson said that in addition to saving lives of foreigners, he wanted to prevent a Communist takeover.

Reporting today with "considerable satisfaction on what has been accomplished so far," the secretary of state said:

1. The threat of a takeover by extremists — or Communists—has been very substantially reduced although not completely eliminated. The threat has been reduced because it is now clear to everyone that the Dominican solution will not be through violence but through democratic processes.

2. The Brazilian commander of the inter-American force at Santo Domingo will be reviewing his needs and Rusk hopes a substantial number of the approximately 21,000 American troops still there can be withdrawn soon. However, some will stay on for some time under the Organization of American States banner.

3. A number of the Western Hemisphere's foreign ministers will meet in Washington Thursday to review the Dominican situation and consider, among other things, what arrangement might be made for a standby inter - American force which could be rushed to trouble spots while the OAS is going through its consultation process.

4. "In Paris they might give more attention to the fact that the countries of the hemisphere are dealing with this problem. This is a matter in which the French government does not carry a very heavy responsibility." That was in connection with today's French Cabinet pronouncement against "foreign intervention" in the Dominican Republic.

5. The main unfinished business in the Dominican Republic is the formation of a moderate interim government to run the country until election can be held for a permanent government. The negotiations for a coalition regime are a difficult process, but most Dominicans believe that a democratic —not extremist — solution is the answer.

south of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

An undisclosed number of F105s hit two North Vietnamese river boats, three barracks and eight bridges near Vinh, according to initial reports.

A U.S. spokesman said all planes returned safely despite heavy antiaircraft fire over Vinh.

On the political front, a dispute developed over the appointment of two new ministers to Premier Phan Huy Quat's three-month-old government. Reliable sources said Chief of State Phan Khac Suu refused to approve the appointment of Nguyen Trung Trinh to take over the Economic Ministry from Nguyen Van Vinh and Tran Van Thoan to replace Nguyen Hoa Hiep as interior minister.

Sausalito Stolen Car Found Across Bridge

Two San Francisco service station attendants were placed in Marin County jail shortly after noon yesterday by Sausalito police on charges of car theft. They are Robert La Barth, 20, and David Boschetti, 19.

They were arrested Sunday night by San Francisco police in a 1961 Austin Healey, stolen April 13 from Pierre Clauzon, 96 Glen Drive, Sausalito.

Lack Of Water Slows Sausalito Fire Fight

Lack of water slowed Sausalito firemen yesterday in fighting a fire in the crumbling ship ways at Gate 3, Marinship.

Firemen were called to the scene at 4:30 p.m. They used water from their trucks but had to stop fighting about 10 minutes when water ran out. They then ran hoses 950 feet across a field to Ellis A. Lando property for more water.

Black Smoke from the fire rose 30 feet and could be seen from the Tiburon Peninsula and San Francisco.

Fire Chief Charles E. Masten said 10 Sausalito firemen and 10 volunteers responded, along with fire trucks from the county fire stations in Marin City and Woodacre.

Chief Masten said it took 10 minutes to "knock down" the blaze but two and one-half hours to extinguish it because of rotted lumber.

"The area is potentially very hazardous," he added, "because there is no water there and so many buildings are involved with people living in them. It's hazardous to firemen, too, because of the broken-down condition of the ways."

Masten said many hydrants in the immediate area of the ways are dead. They found but one which supplied water from a one and one-half inch line, which he called "inadequate."

A sidelight at the fire occurred when Floreal (Rusty) Romera frantically waved Sausalito firemen to detour at least a foot yesterday while they were crossing a field and laying hose to get a hookup at Lando property in Marinship.

Romera, who works at nearby Sturiale Fish Co., and was helping fight the fire, next erected a box barricade, to further puzzle the firemen.

Later, when firemen got a break from fighting, they learned that Romera and fellow fish workers had saved three brown, blue-speckled eggs in a sandpiper's nest.

HUB

for street construction, $15,000 for a street sweeper, and $25,000 for storm drains.

In his five-year program he envisioned $60,000 for a new fire station, $60,000 for new fire equipment, $250,000 matching money with the state and county for land acquisition on Center Street and construction of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, $50,000 for storm sewers, and $50,000 for improvements to Memorial Park.

Flautt said that if the council did not designate a capital improvement fund, he would recommend a bond issue to finance such major projects as a new fire station and improvement of Memorial Park.

"The longer you put off improvements the more costly they become," he said.

Last year the city gave up purchase of "a badly needed sweeper in deference to general operation budget requests and the tendency to hold the tax rate to the bare minimum," Flautt said.

Garbage Truck Dumps At Wrong Place In Novato

James Speights of San Francisco was reported in satisfactory condition at Novato General Hospital at noon today, minutes after the garbage truck he was driving to a dump north of Novato ran down a bank and turned over.

Witness to the accident was California Highway Patrolman Ted McGuire, who had waved a truck to the side of Highway 101 to check its registration. McGuire said he saw the garbage truck round a curve before the turnoff to the dump and head toward his patrol car. It missed the car and crashed down the slope from the highway, landing on its side in the pasture below.

One of Speight's legs was pinned under the rim of the windshield of the topless car. The truck was raised with a tow truck lift and Speights was freed, McGuire said.

Nurses at the hospital said he had a broken leg and was being treated for other injuries.

Civil Service Test Bill Gains

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly today voted 42-32 for a bill to put the emphasis in civil service examinations on the written rather than the oral part.

FLOOD

its resolution last night said the bill would "create the possibility of double taxation without regards to benefits," and is "unfair and unjust to the citizens of San Anselmo."

The council asked that the bill be withdrawn from further consideration or that San Anselmo be excluded from any district that would be taxed.

City Atty. John G. Buresh said the board of supervisors did not invite cities to discuss the proposed bill "or ask their opinion."

The resolution will go to supervisors and to McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who introduced an identical measure in the assembly.

'13th Juror' Case Under Advisement

Judge Joseph C. Wilson of Marin Municipal Court today took under advisement a legal wrangle in which he indicated he may set aside a jury's guilty verdict for a Tiburon lawyer charged with reckless driving over a year ago.

The action, sometimes called "being the 13th juror," would be taken in the case of Harvey E. Groudine, cited by California Highway Patrol on March 22, 1964, on Highway 101.

Groudine was convicted by jury April 21. Judge Wilson granted the defense a new trial. On reviewing the case, however, he said he found that despite the verdict, insufficient evidence had been presented.

The law, he said, not only gives him the right to dismiss the case, but makes it his duty to do so under those conditions. At a hearing this morning for dismissal, however, he was confronted by application of Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales to file an affidavit that Judge Wilson was prejudiced in the case and asking for its transfer to another municipal judge for possible new trial.

Bales declared since neither prosecution nor defense had waived a jury, the judge should either be bound by the former's verdict or should have dismissed the case before jury deliberation began.

Alvin H. Goldstein, San Francisco attorney representing Groudine, called the district attorney's attempt to switch courts as "judge-shopping" and "horrendous."

He added that any attempt by Bales to force him to persuade yet another judge there was insufficient evidence is "rather a sporting theory of justice."

Judge Wilson said he will rule tomorrow on whether he will dismiss the complaint or permit its hearing before a second judge.

Stolen Pickup Linked To Flight Of Two Convicts

A pickup truck, stolen Sunday in San Rafael and found abandoned yesterday by Vallejo police, may have been used in the weekend escape of two San Quentin inmates, sheriff's deputies said today.

Leuane L. Baugh of Baugh Electric Co., 523 Jacoby Street, told officers the locked vehicle was stolen from in front of his buildng Sunday night by forcing a door and wiring the ignition.

The prisoners, Thomas Boyd Turner, 26, and William Clark Mason, 29, fled from the prison's ranch outside the walls Saturday. Officers said two trails of persons walking through tall grass in a likely route from the ranch were evident near the Jacoby Street address.

In Fair Condition After Truck Crash

Juan Napolas, 20, of San Francisco, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital, where he was taken after his Marin Sanitary Service truck crashed into a garage at 684 Las Colindas Road, Terra Linda, yesterday.

Nurses at the hospital said Napolas may have suffered a concussion. The accident did extensive damage to the garage, owned by J. Bradford John.

Pre-War U.S. Tokyo Envoy Dies At 84

Grew was in Japan for nine years marked by Japanese violation of treaties and aggression.

An American "White Book" issued by the State Department in 1943 revealed that Grew had cabled on Jan. 27, 1941, that the Japanese had plans for a "surprise attack" on Pearl Harbor.

When the attack came on Dec. 7, Grew was stunned but not surprised.

He was born to a wealthy Boston family and educated at Groton and Harvard.

Compact Bus Wrecked, 2 Men Injured

Sheldon Jacknowitz and Daniel Ralph Howard, both of 222 Fourth Street, San Rafael, were reported in "satisfactory" condition today at Marn General Hospital, after their Volkswagen bus overturned 15 miles east of Sacramento yesterday.

Jacknowitz, 38, suffered a fractured right wrist and multiple cuts when he was thrown from the bus as it rolled down a 15 foot embankment on Highway 80 at 2:15 a.m.

Howerd, 26, the droiver, suffered a back injury.

The California Highway Patrol in Sacramento reported the west-bound bus careened into a freeway fence and landed upright at the bottom of the embankment, after turning over "two or more times." Howard climbed to the highway to flag down assstance.

Four Teachers Due Honors

Four retiring teachers will be honored at the annual dinner of the Tamalpais District Teachers Assn. tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be district foreign language supervisor Miles McColm. Beverly Barnes, English teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School will sing popular songs, spirituals and blues.

Boy, Bicycle Tangle With Two-Ton Truck

Nine-year-old Mark Nicolaisen and his bicycle tangled with a two-ton van on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo at 3:40 p.m. yesterday, and the boy escaped with scrapes on his face and right leg. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

San Anselmo police reported the boy, son of Arthur Nicolaisen of 9 Hilldale Avenue, was riding east at the edge of the street on the westbound side near Spaulding Avenue when his bike hit a submerged rock in a puddle and bounced into the side of a westbound van driven by Charles G. Fapprano, 41, of San Francisco.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Dora Duggan, 80, Succumbs

Mrs. Dora H. Duggan, 80, of 11 Bret Avenue, San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Sebastopol, she lived in Marin County 56 years. She was the widow of Edward B. Duggan, and was a member of Division 106, Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy M. Gagnon of San Rafael, two grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Requiem high mass will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. SCHULTZ

Mrs. H. A. Schultz, mother of Robert R. Schultz of 35 Filbert Street, Sausalito, died yesterday in Milwaukee, Wis., following a six-week illness. A widow, she was 65, and a lifetime Milwaukee resident.

She is survived by two sons, Robert, and Howard of Milwaukee, and eight grandchildren. Funeral and interment will be in Milwaukee.

MRS. HENDERSON

Mrs. Frances Henderson, 48-year-old practical nurse, was found dead in her home at 200 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, yesterday.

Asst. Coroner William C. Bradley said death, from natural causes, apparently occurred about 10 a.m. The body was found at 4 p.m. by 11-year-old Kent Curtis Henderson, son of Mrs. Henderson's former husband, Albert B. Henderson of San Rafael.

Mrs. Henderson was a native of New York. She had left Maran County after her divorce in 1951 but returned to make her home here four years ago. She had been employed at convalescent hospitals.

DR. McCLOSKEY

Funeral for Dr. Felix C. McCloskey, 65, of 1716 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, who died in a local hospital Monday, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, conducted by Marin Lodge 191, Free and Accepted Masons. Burial will be private.

Dr. McCloskey, a chiropractor, practiced in Ukiah from 1925 to 1929.

The family prefers contributions to the American Cancer Society as tribute to the deceased.

JOHN LUETKE SR.

Funeral for John Reynold Luetke Sr., 71, of Mill Valley, a retired auto mechanic, will be held Friday noon at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Luetke died Monday while on a visit to Reno.

Funeral will be under auspices of Odd Fellows Lodge 200, San Rafael, of which Luetke was a member. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

Luetke, who lived 40 years in California, last resided at 45 Lomita Drive. He worked 33 years as an auto mechanic, his last job being at Hamilton Air Force Base. He was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife, Arizona Marie Luetke; a daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Newman of Corte Madera; a son, John Reynold Luetke Jr. of Fort Rucker, Ala., and three grandchildren. He was a native of Wisconsin.

W. P. Von HUSEN

William Peter von Husen, 90, of San Rafael, former San Rafael grocer, died yesterday in a local convalescent home, a victim of pneumonia.

A native of Hamburg, Germany, he came to this country at age 16, going to work in San Francisco's wholesale produce district. In 1906, he and two brothers opened the William von Husen Grocery Co. in the Cheda Building on San Rafael's Fourth Street. He had lived in Marin County since then.

The store operated for about 15 years.

He was a 50-year member of Golden Gate Lodge 30, Free and Accepted Masons, San Francisco.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Margaret McWilliams of Greenbrae and Mrs. Anita Liston of Los Altos, seven grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, conducted by Golden Gate Lodge 30, F and AM. Burial will be private.

Reed Ponders New Principal

Trustees set a special closed session for 8 p.m. June 3 at Del Mar School for further discussion of principal hiring, Supt. Edward C. Pino reported.

Acquitted In Death

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Elton Moore, 20 - year - old American Indian accused of murdering his wife, was acquitted yesterday by a Superior Court jury. Moore, accused of pushing Marie Louise Moore, also 20, from a Sutter Street apartment window, was ruled innocent by a jury of seven men and five women.

TRACKS RAISED FOR NEW STREETS

Latest phase in work on the Highway 101 interchange at the San Rafael overpass has been the raising of five sets of Northwestern Pacific railroad tracks to the level where the new Second Street extension will go. Planned as an eastbound one-way street, Second will go under the highway after crossing creek at left of picture. The state Division of Highways regional office in San Francisco said yesterday that the state, rather than the railroad, is paying for the track alterations. San Anselmo Adopts Master Plan For Community Park

The San Anselmo city council last night adopted a master plan for San Anselmo Memorial Park designed to provide facilities for all ages from tiny tots to senior citizens.

Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder outlined the plan, which would provide play areas, picnic grounds and an amphitheater.

First phase of development would be filling in of an area at the northeast corner of the park.

The plan does not include a swimming pool, and it calls for eventual elimination of the regulation baseball diamond.

Snyder suggested that adult baseball games be played elsewhere so the area can be used to provide other facilities. He said "it would be some time," however, before the diamond is eliminated.

Purposes of the plan is to develop a community park that "would give more people an opportunity to use," Snyder said.

Badminton and volley ball courts and a wading pool are among the facilities planned.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

1. Unanimously adopted an emergency ordinance, effective, requiring a parked vehicle to leave 12 feet of unimpaired roadway.

2. Endorsed the county's $7,750,000 bond issue for construction of the Hall of Justice at the Civic Center by a 4-1 vote, with Councilman Cedric E. Clute dissenting. Clute said it has not been proved to him "that we have to do it this wey." County Administrator Alan Bruce requested the endorsement.

3. Passed an ordinance restricting vehicles on riding and hiking trails in the city.

4. Discussed briefly the possibility of enacting an ordinance prohibiting uninvited solicitors from operating in the city. Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani reported his office was "besieged" with complaints about solicitors who were "insistent, bold and sometimes argumentative." He urged adoption of the ordinance.

5. Ordered Nicholas Guliaeff of 41 Austin Avenue to remove his dog, a German shepherd, from the city within 30 days after receiving a petition signed by 20 residents saying the dog was dangerous and had bitten a child and a milkman. Guliaeff, backed by several witnesses, contended the dog was not "a mean dog" and is now chained.

6. Reappointed Valerie M. Ansel and Louis Yates to the San Anselmo library board for four years.

7. Approved request of the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce to install a five-by-seven foot directional sign at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue, indicating the shopping area. The council specified that the sign be installed in the island at the south side of the intersection.

8. Received a request from the Chamber of Commerce for a city contribution of $2,400 to the chamber, but took no action on it.

9. Appointed Vincent L. Sloane, an airman first class at Hamilton Air Force Base, as a police officer, effective June 1, at $505 a month. He will fill the vacancy left by resignation of Officer Bernard Del Santo. Sloane, a reserve officer, was number one on the department's eligibility list.

Funds Available For Pay Hikes

Money to finance pre-budget Marin County salary increases, such as the $4,400 increase approved Monday for County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, is available from the fiscal 1966 budget reserve for contingencies, County Administrator Alan Bruce said today.

He recommends a reserve of $95,000 to cover all increases that the board might grant, including executive positions.

On Tuesday, supervisors are to receive the recommended salary schedule for the next fiscal year. They are expected to act on it June 7, two days prior to the start of budget reviews.

Property Owners To Hear Judge

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner will speak at the first membership dinner of the newly formed Marin Property Owners Assn. at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at Dominic's Restaurant,, San Rafael.

Judge Gardiner will talk about the "vital role the Marin County property owner and businessman can play in his community."

Tickets are available through C. A. Stevens, association president; Charles D. Parmelee, dinner arrangements chairman, or at the restaurant before the dinner.

Terra Linda High Installation Set

New student officers at Terra Linda High School will be installed in the school ampitheater next Wednesday.

Student president Bonnie Brown will give the oath of office to the new officers, who will serve through the next school year. New student president Jeff Heintz will take over his duties, as will the others named in the March election.

Taking office as varsity yell leaders will be Penny Brody, Marcie Lewin, Laurie Oliver and Bob Keller.

Diane Abraham, Nita Whittle, Diane Blanch, Dianne Herrer, Molly Gallagher, Kathy Epidendio, Paula Brink and Sue Baldwin will take over as the school's new song leaders.

Berle Burglary Figure Is Fined

SANTA MONICA (AP)—Barbara Jean Lewis, 26, convicted in connection with a $30,000 burglary at the home of comedian Milton Berle, has drawn a $550 fine and a suspended prison term.

Superior Judge Mervyn Aggeler also placed her on five year's probation yesterday.

The nephew told police he turned the items over to Miss Lewis the day after the burglary and that she reported later that she had "fenced" (sold) them for $2,500.

Charges against Marshall Berle were dismissed when no complaint was filed against him.

Eight Seek Appointment As Planner

San Anselmo City Council members have more candidates for a vacancy on the city planning commission than they expected.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro reported last night that eight persons have indicated they would like to be appointed to the commission.

An opening occurred when Planning Commissioner Charles R. Leitzell was appointed city engineer and resigned from the commission.

The eight candidates are Gordon Hughes, 28 Ridge Road; Pieter Toal, 48 Hawthorne Avenue; Allan J. Greighton, 56 Bella Vista Avenue; Kenneth L. Anderson, 460 Laurel Avenuee. G. C. Davison, 434 Foss Avenue; Hub Newlin, 134 Alder Avenue, Dennis T. Moore, 147 Allyn Avenue, and Nicholas D. Cery, 1212 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The council agreed to have a special session June 7 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall to confer with the candidates before making an appointment.

Alabama Aides Friendly To King

SELMA, Ala. (AP)— Following a friendly reception by Alabama legislators, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said the potential voting power of the Negro has at last won recognition.

King said the audience given a group of Negroes in Montgomery yesterday by three of Gov. George Wallace's top legislative leaders proves that other House and Senate members also are ready to hear Negro grievances.

The Negro minister, speaking last night to a throng in a Negro church, then predicted that the receognition from the Legislature, plus the vote of "lots of good white people," ultimately will change the state's political structure.

Hub Downtown Post Office Urged

The San Anselmo City Council last night urged that the San Anselmo Post Office remain in the central business area.

Councilmen passed a resolution advocating a downtown location for the post office after receiving a petition with 164 signatures protesting a post office move. The petition was addressed to Rep. Don H. Clausen.

The council will send its resolution to Clausen and the postmaster general.

Postmaster Manuel Dos Reis said the government still has three years left on its lease at the present location at 333 San Anselmo Avenue, and talk of a move is "premature."

Younger Says AEC Set On Power Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Congressman J. Arthur Younger says the Atomic Energy Commission intends to build an overhead power line through Woodside, Calif., and doesn't want any local agency or any court to stand in its way.

Younger, R - Calif., made the statement yesterday after a congressional subcommittee scheduled a hearing to consider the controversy.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee, said the Thursday meeting was called for tomorrow to clarify congressional intent in the 1954 Atomic Energy Act.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco ruled May 20 that the act prevented the AEC from building the overhead line, because the construction does not conform with Woodside building codes.

"Nothing in this act," section 271 provides, "shall be construed to affect the authority or regulations of any federal, state or local agency."

Pastore said he will propose that the section be amended to allow the AEC to arrange for the overhead line through Woodside to the Stanford linear accelerator.

The proposed amendment to the section would add: "Provided, that this section shall not be deemed to confer upon any federal, state or local agency any authority to regulate, control or restrict any activities, including those of the commission, which authority such federal, state or local agency did not otherwise possess."

"They are determined to build the power line," Younger said. "If they want to do something, they don't want any local agency to stand in their way. They don't want to be thwarted by any court."

Austin Clapp, a lawyer for Woodside, said the city will have a delegation at the hearing to protest the amendment.

Younger, who lives in San Mateo County, said he will also testify against it.

San Pablo Bay Danger Zone Set

A temporary danger zone will be established in San Pablo Bay from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. for three days starting June 15, according to Lt. Col. Robert H. Allan, Army district engineer in San Francisco.

The zone will be used for training exercises by the Coast Guard in an area north of Pinole Shoal Channel between the mouths of Petaluma River and Sonoma Creek. It will be patrolled during exercises.

Proposition 14 Repeal Try Dead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A move to ask the voters to overturn their approval of Prop. 14 has died a quick legislative death.

The Assembly Governmental Efficiency and Economy Committee yesterday killed a proposed constitutional amendment by Assemblyman William F. Stanton, D-San Jose.

It aimed to revoke Prop. 14, which won approval from voters last year, and which repealed state laws against housing discrimination. The amendment would have had to go to the voters for a final decision.

IT'S A CONVENIENT SPOT IF MISHAP MUST HAPPEN

Plan ahead might be the motto of Farid S. Patshon, 25, of San Francisco.

He apparently fell asleep while driving his car south on Highway 101 at 3:30 a.m. today.

Passenger Sharon Elder, 21, of San Francisco went to that hospital — San Rafael General — where she was treated for a cut right knee and bruises.

$3,000 Statuette Stolen From Home

A bronze statuette valued at $3,000 was reported missing yesterday from the home of Paule M. Anglim of 4 DeSilva Island, near Mill Valley, sheriff's officers reported today.

The victim said she believed pranksters removed the 30-inch tall statuette from her home during the weekend.

Discussing the tutorial program at Manzanita School, Marin City, and Tamalpais High School, Mill Valley, will be Mrs. Elaine Kozak and Mrs. Jane Ferguson.

Presbyterian Conservatives Lose Round

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Proposed revisions to modernize the 300-year-old confession of faith of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. have cleared the first hurdle, despite efforts of minority conservatives.

By a 643-110 vote, delegates to the 177th General Assembly agreed late yesterday to accept the report of the committee which drafted the new confession over a seven-year period.

The delegates also endorsed recommendations commending the 4,200-word document to the 3.3 million members for study, authorized appointment of a 15-member committee to consider amendments to the document and asked that the original committee continue as consultans to the new committee.

The new group will put its recommendations before the next general assembly in 1966. If its report is approved, the new statement of faith will go to the church's 195 presbyteries for a vote. If approved by a two-thirds majority, the document will go before the 1967 assembly for final action.

The proposed 1967 Confession of Faith touched off a flurry of controversy among minority conservative elements as debate ran all day and late into the evening before a vote was taken.

San Rafael Cayes Favored In Split Vote

The proposed San Rafael Cayes subdivision—1,577 apartment units surrounding a manmade lagoon in East San Rafael tidelands—was given San Rafael Planning Commission approval by a split vote last night.

Commissioners voted 5 to 2 to recommend rezoning of 100 unclassified acres of the property to planned community development and grant a use permit to build apartments at a density rate of one unit per 3,000 square feet of land.

Commissioners V. Judson Klein and John A. Miskimen voted no, but their opposition was to planning commission procedure, not the proposed 120-acre subdivision.

During a two-hour public hearing which preceded the vote, no objection was voiced to the design or proposed density of the development; all argument centered on seven and one-half acres of the land.

Six acres of this, on the western edge of the property, have been planned by San Rafael Cayes for use as park land. The city has shown an interest in acquiring the property.

TThe remaining one and one-half acres, shown as open land in the subdivision plan, may be needed by San Rafael City Schools for an addition to a school site.

Commissioners told L. H. Lincolin, president of San Rafael Cayes, Inc., that this acreage could not be counted as open land in the density if sold to the city and the school district.

Lincolin responded that it was a matter of bargaining—his company couldn't afford to give the land away unless assured it could be counted into the density.

He said he had been invited to bargain with City Mgr. Dan F. Andersen.

Miskimen asked that the commission defer voting on the development until the matter had been resolved. Klein agreed,, saying:

"I don't see what another two-week wait would hurt."

Lincoln responded angrily:

"The interest is $1,000 a day on our investment alone. We'd like to get some work done before the rains come again."

The commission then voted on the rezoning and use permit request, with Klein and Miskimen opposing. Klein said:

"Ayes vote is supposed to mean I am satisfied with the plan. I don't see how I can be satisfied on the assumption that everything is going to be decided after I cast my vote."

The 100 acres, if ultimately rezoned by the city council, would merge with a 20-acre plot, zoned for planned development in 1962. The use permit would apply to the entire 120 acres.

In recommending approval of the use permit, the commissioners attached a stipulation that, if the park and school land is sold, the developers would readjust to meet the density requirement, losing approximately 104 apartment units.

HOSPITAL GROWING PAINS

Change Orders Slow Building

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK
(Last of Three Articles)

Construction of the Babcock Wing of Marin General Hospital and remodeling of the original hospital area was supposed to take 660 days from the time the contract was let.

It actually took 1,177½ days, ending Aug. 7, 1964. The cost of the job rose about $280,000 during that time.

Robert Stanton, architect of the hospital, has called the project "the most difficult job of its kind that's ever been done in the state."

"It was a very trying experience," he said. "I was on the job five years. If it had been all new construction it might have been two years."

There were two major problems, Stanton believes: Major changes after construction started and unexpected difficulties of remodeling the existing building without interfering with the hospital's business.

He had special praise for the staff, and no fault to find with the district board, which voted for 26 change orders, including 205 items.

"Central supply was moved without interrupting the operating room schedule," he said of the area where supplies are sterilized. "The girls in central supply are angels. They put up with untold difficulties."

The kitchen was enlarged and remodeled without missing a meal. Nursing stations were moved and reorganized, and patients often did not notice.

"I would never like to have another job like it," Stanton added.

During construction, membershop on the district board changed, and just as construction started, a new hospital administrator, William W. Turner, with new ideas, took over.

The changes, in plans and people, caused part of the slowdown and extra cost. A laborers' strike cost 50 days. But the contractor, Barrett Construction Co., may carry some of the blame by not having had enough men on the job.

"I personally had many serious and unpleasant conferences with Mr. Miner and Mr. Barrett (contractors' representatives) to push this job," Stanton recalled.

The contractor had his own complaints. He sometimes had to keep workmen out of some construction areas while the hospital board made up its mind, long after the contract was let, just what was going to be put in that place.

The largest single change, $96,619 relocating the laundry and central supply and redesigning all patient rooms, cost at least 20 days loss because work could not be done while the board was deliberating.

Remodeling the existing building cost the most time. No one, at the start, realized how difficult it would be to remodel a building which is operating 24 hours a day.

On a highway construction project, Stanton explained, techniques for rerouting traffic and timing have been worked out to a fine art. The same cannot be said for construction in a hospital.

The bid for the Babcock Wing construction came in at $2,079,700, well below expectations. The change orders totaled $227,653 billed by the contractor, but other costs, including Stanton's fees, pushed the additional cost above $280,000.

However, the cost of the cobalt bomb installation may be subtracted, since construction was made possible by a late donation, anonymous at the time, of $100,000 by Mrs. Kenny Grauenhage. The construction cost for the bomb was $56,236.99.

Also, another gift allowed the $30,842.42 addition of a library and conference room.

However, there was an added expense before the radiation device was installed. The low bidder on the equipment met all specifications but required a different kind of shielding in the walls than that provided.

The district was forced by law to take the low bid, and then had to spend an extra $3,330 and 30 days to adjust for installation.

Stanton defends the board for making the multitude of changes, in spite of extra costs and delays.

"In every instance these changes were real contributions to the project and the welfare of the taxpayers of the Marin Hospital District," he said. Also, noted board president Mrs. Marion C. Ibach, changes were made without cost to the taxpayer, from contributions and money collected from patients in regular operation.

And, after interviews with most department heads in the hospital, those persons in charge of areas which underwent the most extensive changes now have the fewest complaints.

One of the happiest with the changes has been Mrs. Barbara Latta, in charge of central supply.

Central supply, which sterilizes and stockpiles supplies for the entire hospital nursing area, had been crammed into a corner of the operating rooms area.

Its size was more than doubled, and new high temperature sterilizers were installed.

The move gave much more storage space also to the operating room area. Mrs. Dorothy Dalk, in charge there, said she believed the hospital operating rooms would not have to be changed much to handle twice the present load. The rooms would merely be kept in service longer each day and on weekends.

Mrs. Virginia Pedersen supervises the hospital's housekeeping operation and the laundry, and is proud of the ability to wash more than two tons of linen a day for about seven cents a pound, down from nine cents in the old location.

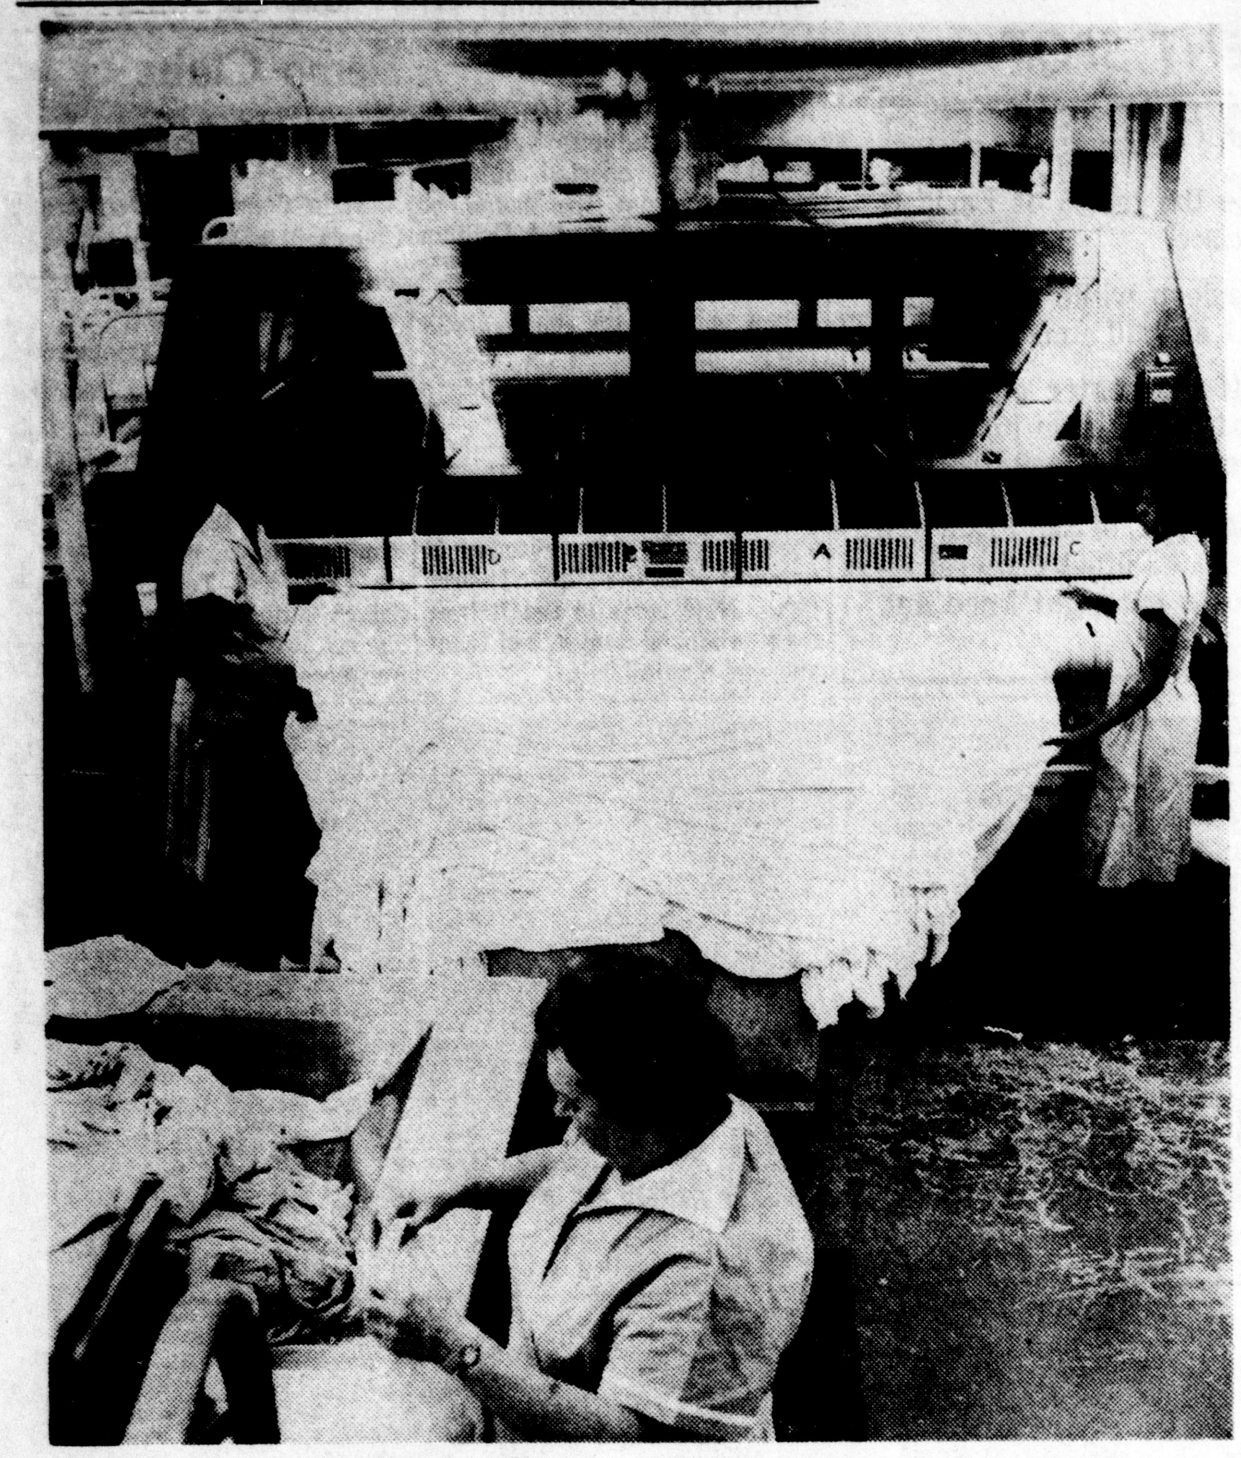
In fact, Mrs. Pedersen said, the operating costs of the laundry would be even lower if surgical packs were prepared in some other department. Laundry air is full of lint, and the lint must be removed, largely by hand, from fabrics used for operations.

Finally, dietician Mildred Jones, who has worked in the past for a catering firm which served large hospitals and schools, said she is more than satisfied with the expanded facilities, although some minor improvements still need to be made.

In both the kitchen and the laundry, the changes made space for new machinery, cutting down on the workers needed to save money in the long run, according to Turner.



LOW-COST OPERATION — Workers wash linen in the modern equipment of Marin General Hospital's laundry, relocated along with the central supply room in the most expensive of many change orders during construction of the Babcock addition. Cost of cleaning fell two cents a pound from that in the old laundry. Laundry supervisor Mrs. Virginia Pedersen says it would be still lower if surgical packs were prepared elsewhere.

Cooperative Nursery, Museum Still On List

Some 100 persons turned out last night to cheer on a lengthy appeal to the San Rafael Board of Education to keep the cooperative nursery program in the 1965-66 budget—only to find the battle may have been won before they started.

The same thing happened on a smaller scale later in the evening in regard to the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum.

Reports on the nursery and museum programs came in response to queries two weeks ago by the newest board member, Mrs. Anita C. Strom, who had confessed she did not know enough about them to decide whether either should be retained in the budget.

The hour-long report on the nursery program was led by Asst. Supt. Mitchell L. Voydat. Speakers were Milton Babitz of Sacramento, consultant to the state's adult education program; Mrs. Sylvia Thalman, a founder of the San Rafael program, and Richard A. Kahn of Greenbrae, a former San Rafael resident.

Report on the science museum was shorter, more informal, and consisted mainly of comments by Laurel Dell Intermediate School sixth grade teacher Walter Benson, whose pupils make frequent trips to the museum.

The cooperative nursery is part of the high school district's adult education program. Its stress, the speakers said, is on educating parents on modern techniques of child-rearing rather than providing a simple nursery facility. Its net cost to the district this year was $3,500. Schools Supt. Bert C. Corona said three more teachers would be needed, increasing it by $1,500 in the 1965-66 school year.

The museum is independent of the schools, but depends on the county's school district to help support it. Asst. Supt. William R. Jordan said the elementary district has paid about $400 this school year.

Board members made no decision on either program, but Corona said they were included in the tentative budgets. The board had tentatively scheduled a budget study period for last night, but gave it up when the hour grew late.

At 7:30 p.m. today, however, the board will hold an adjourned meeting exclusively for study of the budgets.

The dilemma of the board members—particularly the three new ones—was voiced by Mrs. Strom after hearing the museum report.

"This is what is confusing me," she said. "You can present all kinds of worthwhile things and say we should pay for them. But where do you stop?"

Her feelings were echoed by another new board member, Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., who observed that the board must "slice the pie" with what money it has, even at tne expense of some programs its members do not want to curtail.

Rain Unlikely Through Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rain is unlikely through onday in Northern and Central California, today's five-day forecast said.

There is a chance, however, of a few showers at times on the extreme north coast.

Temperatures will hold close to normal.

Overcast can be expected during night and early morning hours near the ocean.

Synanon Bill Is Scheduled For Committee

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill for stricter control over Synanon houses was scheduled to go before the Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee today.

The bill, SB 1346, was introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Under it, narcotic rehabilitation centers would be licensed by the state director of public health. The measure specifies that local zoning restrictions must be observed, and such a center may not be characterized as a single family residence for zoning purposes.

Rail Crossing Money Promised

Marin County has been promised nearly $2,000 from a state fund to help pay for better warning signals at the new Mar West Street crossing of Northwestern Pacific railroad tracks west of Tiburon.

County supervisors had agreed to pay the $7,845 cost of two flashing signals, but had asked the state's crossing protection fund to allocate half of this amount.

Instead however, the state Public Utilities Commission decided to provide $1,961.25 from the fund, or one-fourth of the total.

Usually such projects are financed with the railroad paying half, the state one-fourth and the city or county the rest.

New Vote Slated On Labor Issue

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate was to reconsider late today a vote by which it refused to delete labor law sections making secondary boycotts illegal.

The bill by Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, D-San Francisco, failed 20 to 17 yesterday, one vote shy of the majority needed to move it to the Assembly. But senators agreed to reconsider the matter.

The secondary boycott — declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court in 1947—involves a union refusing to handle goods, or so-called "hot cargo," of another striking union. Farm groups maintain the law banning such measures should be kept.

Sewer Line Dilemma For Education Board

Members of the San Rafael Board of Education struggled again last night with strained relations with Las Gallinas Sanitary District, and wound up putting the whole confused issue over to tonight's budget session.

The adjourned meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. today at he former E Sreet School.

Two weeks ago, the board to charge the sanitary district the same amount for two easements on the MacPhail School grounds as the sanitary district was going to charge the school district for its share of the assessment.

Since then, however, the sanitary district got a court order condemning the easements and offered a $61 payment. Meanwhile, assessment notices came in which called for the schools to pay $13,760 by June 4.

After discussing the matter with Asst. County Counsel Richard Godino, the board authorized him to negotiate with the sanitary district. After Godino left, however, Supt. Bert C. Corona insisted the board must decide whether to pay the assessment or fight it in court.

Unable to reach a decision, board members set it over to to tonight.

Assemblyman's Trial Set In Bribery Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Assemblyman Lester A. McMmillan has been ordered to stand trial July 26 on bribery charges in connection with proposed freeway routes.

New Habit For Nuns Is Shown

LONDON (AP) — Nuns at the Roman Catholic Convent of Our Lady of Sion introduced today a streamlined habit with skirt hems raised eight inches to a foot. The new garb also does away with the nuns' traditional large white, starched collar.

The headpiece is smartened up and pushed back off the shoulders to hang smartly down the back, showing more of the wearer's face.

Youths To Meet

The Marin Youth Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the curriculum laboratory on the fourth floor of the Marin Civic Center to discuss results of questionnaires sent by members of the council.

Senators Try Again For Salary Increase

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Senators, who insist they are grossly underpaid, again have approved measures allowing legislators to set their own pay. At present, legislative paychecks are $500 a month.

But the constitutional amendments by Sen. Virgil O'Sullivan, D-Williams, must win voter approval if placed on the ballot next year. The two measures would allow legislators to set their salary either by a majority or by a two-thirds vote.

Strep Infections Lead Disease List

Streptococcic infections again topped the list of communicable diseases in Marin County last week with 79 cases reported, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

The figure represented a rise of four on the previous week, with 48 of them located in Novato and 18 in San Rafael.

Other diseases reported were: mumps, three cases, all in San Rafael; measles, two, both in Marin City.

Davidson School Gym $117,000 Addition Set

The San Rafael Board of Education last night approved preliminary plans for a $117,200 expansion of the Davidson School gymnasium.

Plans were explained by architect Ralph B. Priestley. He said the addition will double the size of the gymnasium, will expand locker rooms, add new lockers and improve facilities of the lunch canteen at one end of the present gym.

If the contract is awarded on schedule, Priestley predicted, work will start in August or September and be completed six months later.

In addition to the basic specifications, which Priestley said will cost some $129,000 including fees, tests and inspections, the plans call for three optional features estimated to cost another $22,000.

The board hired three new teachers for the 1965-66 school year, approved leaves, retirements or resignations for 11 other teachers, and re-hired 150 classified employees in both districts.

Teachers hired were Mrs. Carol Majors, who will teach elementary educationally handicapped classes: Kathleen Marcone, to teach high school chemistry, and Cheri-Lee Ottaviano, to teach primary grades.

Resignations were accepted from Terra Linda High School mathematics teacher Alan Chipman, Davidson school English teacher Mrs. Gail Davis, Short School third grade teacher Marsha Leahy, San Rafael High School art and ceramics teacher Dennis Moran, and Davidson School English and history teacher William Thompson.

Retiring are MacPhail School second grade teacher Charlotte Frehe, who has been with San Rafael schools for 30 years, MacPhail School vice-principal and teacher Clarence Herkner, a 29 year veteran, and San Rafael High School science teacher Mrs. Leota Thomas, with the high school district 11 years.

Also approved was the request of Lauriston Tardy, director of the Terra Linda High School English department, for a sabbatical trip to the South Pacific during the 1965-66 year. Tardy's written summary said he would assemble literary materials, make folk music recordings, and do research in Japan, Korea, Australia and other Pacific spots, but would "forego valor" and avoid Vietnam.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

1. Requested that representatives of the major utility firms attend future meetings to explore ways of cutting the schools' mammoth utility bills.
2. Adopted two new textbooks, "Architecture, Drafting and Design" and "General Woodworking, Third Edition."
3. Accepted $200 from the Glenwood School Parent-Teacher Assn. for library books.
4. Adjourned until 7:30 p.m. today for a budget study session. Like last night's meeting, it will be at the former E Street School.

French Hit U.S. On Dominicans

PARIS (AP) — The French government said today foreign military and political intervention in the Dominican Republic can pose a threat to world peace if it continues.

The statement was made following a regular French Cabinet meeting presided over by President Charles de Gaulle. Afterward, in a special communique, the Cabinet said:

"The French government is certain that the foreign intervention now in course at Santo Domingo in political and military domains can, if it continues, lead only to the extension there as well as throughout that region of the world of disquieting troubles for international peace."

More Travel To U.S. By Foreign Visitors

CHICAGO (AP) — Foreign travel to the United States hit a new record high with 6,786,340 foreign visitors entering the country for pleasure and business in 1964.

The American Society of Travel Agents says the visitors spent $1.255 billion, breaking the previous high for foreign tourist spending in the U.S.

BRIDGE TRAFFIC IS UP IN 28 YEARS OF LIFE

There was a time 28 years ago when only 9,000 cars a day crossed the Golden Gate Bridge.

There are now 68,500 crossings a day and the number is increasing, reported L. E. Castner, president of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Tomorrow is the 28th anniversary of the opening of the bridge. It was opened to pedestrians May 27, 1937, and to auto traffic May 28.

Since then about 330,150,000 vehicles have crossed the bridge.

Annual traffic for the first year was 3,311,512 vehicles and the annual traffic for 1965 is estimated at 25,100,000.

Average daily revenue in 1937 was $4,400; now it is $15,000.

San Rafael City Hall Changes In Offing

There may be several new faces around San Rafael City Hall before the summer is out.

Six appointments to the city's park and recreation commission and library board are up for consideration now and two planning commissioner's terms will expire in July, according to Mayor C. Paul Bettini and City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen.

Bettini has asked city councilmen to be thinking about possible appointments to four of the five seats on the parks and recreation commission at the council's June 7 meeting.

Bettini said several citizens have written to volunteer their services. Other applications also will be welcomed, he added.

Technically, all present park and recreation commissioners except Charles L. Tacchi are "lame ducks." The terms of Mrs. Anita C. Strom, Arthur W. Feidler Jr. and Mrs. Norma Wall expired last year, but were informally continued without action on the council's part, Andersen said.

Following the April city election, the council removed Irwin Taranto. Mrs. Strom has said she planned to resign soon because of her new board of education duties.

Library trustees Philip F. Brown and Donald E. Paterson Jr. are "lame ducks" also. Retiring Mayor John F. McInnis took no action when their terms expired in April. Library board appointments are made by the mayor, subject to ratification by the council.

Mayor Bettini said he is planning to interview prospective board members before he nominates, and hopes to name at least one person from other than "downtown San Rafael," but "I have no idea who it will be."

All prospective appointees should be interviewed before decisions are made, Bettini urged. "If they're going to represent us, we should know what they think, what their background is," he stressed.

Terms of planning commissioners Thomas R. O'Toole and Charles J. Hendrickson will expire in July, but Bettini said he and the council have not yet thought about those vacancies.

The city fire commissioners' appointments all run into next year, City Manager Andersen reported.

Exercises Set At Junior High

Promotion exercises for 370 eighth graders at Hill Junior High School in Novato will be held at 2 p.m. June 10 in the new gymnasium at Novato High School.

Parents andfriends of the students will be welcomed by Dale Pensotte, fall student body president. Dist. Supt. James G. Bunker will present several scholarship awards.

The farewell address will be given by Wendy Kanoff, spring student body president.

Hamilton Calls Bids On Office Machines

Call for bids on surplus office machines at Hamilton Air Force Base has been issued by the defense surplus sales office.

The machines may be inspected between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. June 4 through June 23 in building 727 on the base. Bids will be opened at the Oakland Defense Surplus Sales Office, Naval Supply Center, at 10 a.m. June 24.

Scholarships Slated For Eight Students

Awards of eight scholarships of $250 each to graduating high school seniors in Marin County was announced today by the Marin County Parent - Teacher Assn. scholarship committee.

Scholarship recipients at Novato High School are Pamela Coletti and Ninette Larson, both of Novato.

Other winners are Clement Glynn of San Rafael, student at San Rafael High School; Donna Spencer, of Terra Linda, at Terra Linda High, and Lavon Kieffer of Tomales, at Tomales High.

The eight $250 scholarships were financed through 10-cent allocations from membership fees in participating parent-teacher associations and other parent-school clubs.

The scholars, their counselors and principals will be guests of the scholarship committee at a dinner June 2 at Drake High.

BLUSHING ROMEO SAVED BY LITTLE BLUE PILLS

"Every time I go on a date I take one and then I'm immune from my troubles for several hours," says Tim, 21.

Every time Tim bussed his girl friend, blonde Billie Tordoff, 17, he blushed and broke out in a rash.

Schofield consulted a skin specialist. After test, the specialist said the rash was caused by emotional disturbance. He prescribed the blue pills.

Tim didn't say what the pills are, but apparently they're some form of tranquilizer.

Reed Trustees Favor New Teaching Ideas

Trustees of Reed School Distrct last night approved a host of new ideas, methods and aids for teachers.

They looked over a 29-page summary of the district program and progress, then approved the following:

Listening Centers—The aim is is to provide more listening centers, such as at Del Mar School, for recorded lessons with which pupils use earphones. Recordings would be aids in teaching foreign languages and spelling. The district has applied for federal funds toward cost of the centers.

Outdoor Education — Shift the outdoor education program from the summer school session to the regular school year, to include one week at Lokoya outdoor education camp. Make the program available to all sixth grade students, instead of a selected group as had been done.

ITA — The initials stand for Initial Teaching Alphabet, which includes some added letters to help youngsters learn to read. The program approved would use ITA materials to supplement existing reading materials at Belvedere and Tiburon schools.

Team Teaching — Extend the present practice at Reed School of multiple age grouping and shifting of children to different teaching groups for different subjects, according to individual ability. Two parents objected to this modifed ungraded, team-teaching approach last night; other parents backed the plan.

Noontime Supervision — Extend the half-time clerical teacher aide program at Belvedere, Tiburon and Granada schools, where such employes supervise lunch break, to Reed, Del Mar and Bel Aire schools. The plan would give teachers a minmum of a half-hour lunch break.

Audio-Visual Coordinator — A present staff member will take over the half-time post, which will include supervision of the closed-circuit television system coming for Granada School.

Psychologist Intern — An intern program in cooperation with San Francisco State College will give the district the services, for a "small stipend," of the intern for 35 to 40 hours a week, under guidance of the school psychologist.

Art and Musc Teachers — A half-time employe in each category will be added.

Supt. Edward C. Pino noted under each recommendation for program changes that any extra costs already have been included in the working budget of $1,167,713 which went to trustees in February.

Assassination As Federal Crime Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy strongly backed legislation today to make such offenses federal crimes.

Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., criticized what they called confusion and lack of coordination in the hectic period after the assassination when Lee Harvey Oswald, accused of the killing, was in the hands of local authorities until he was killed while still in custody.

Ford quoted FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as telling the commission Oswald probably would not have been killed if the FBI had been able to take custody of him. Ford said Hoover also expressed the opinion that better and longer interrogation of Oswald might have brought a confession from him and avoided a fog of speculation about Kennedy's death.

The principal purpose of the legislation pending before a House judiciary subcommittee is to give federal authorities immediate and exclusive jurisdiction in any case in which a president or someone in line of succession to the presidency is killed, kidnaped or assaulted.

Poverty War May Benefit Rec District

The federal anti-poverty bill may assist the Marinwood Park and Recreation commission in getting leaders for its proposed summer recreation program, Commission Chairman William T. Lane Jr. said today.

Title 1C of the anti-poverty bill provides student work programs, including jobs as recreation leaders, up to 90 per cent of the salaries can be provided by federal funds, Lane said.

He said five or six students are needed for the program.

Commissioners last night recommended a budget of $750 to $1,000 to cover the local share of the cost.

The commission will meet again at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at the Marinwood Community Center to go over budget recommendations before submitting them to the Marinwood community services district board.

Redwood Bank Fuss Solution Appears Near

Merger Plan, Stock Purchase Ideas Discussed

Members of two factions warring for control of San Rafael's National Bank today predicted a solution to their differences will come soon—but they disagreed as to what that solution will be.

Bank president Byron W. Leydecker insisted his group is going to buy the stock of trustees who resigned as directors last December at the request of Comptroller of the Currency James Saxon.

However, one of the ousted directors, Douglas M. Christensen, said he and four other trustees are considering merging Redwood National with another bank—perhaps Bank of California.

MAINTAIN VALUE

"It is the concern of the majority of the voting trustees to maintain the value of the bank's stock," said Christensen.

"Toward this end it is up to us to appraise the shareholders what advantages might accrue by a merger with the Bank of California—or any other bank that is interested."

Bank of California has been Redwood's correspondent in San Francisco since the local bank opened.

Victor T. Cranston, senior vice president of Bank of California, said his firm has taken no active part in discussing such a merger.

"There is nothing doing along these lines," Leydecker said, contending that the merger rumor had been "going on for three months," largely at the instigation of the rival group of trustees.

COMMENT DECLINED

Attorney Roderick P. Martinelli, who resigned as the bank's counsel at the same time the five directors stepped down, declined comment on the likelihood of a merger.

Martinelli said "things are quiet" and will probably remain so until the First District Court of Appeals holds a July 20 hearing on a temporary injunction order of Marin Superior Court preventing a stockholders' election to reduce the number of directors from 11 to seven.

The voting trustees who were ousted as directors claim the stockholders have no right to make such a change under the bank's original articles of agreement, which placed election of directors in the hands of the trustees.

Leydecker said the "only logical answer" is his group's purchase of the ousted directors' stock. He predicted this would be accomplished, and publicly announced in a week or less.

Annex Plans Due Commission

Proposed annexations of the McDaniel and Albright lands and the Campbell property to Bolinas Public Utilities District be considered tomorrow by the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The meeting will begin at 8:15 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Also on the agenda is the proposed annexation of lands along the east side of Tomales Bay to the North Marin County Water District.

Dixie Due Reports

Trustees of Dixie School District are scheduled to hear reports on state testing of the district's fifth and eighth graders, and consider employment of eight new teachers and staffing of the district summer school at their meeting at 8 p.m. today at the district office, 35 Trellis Drive, San Rafael.

DEMONSTRATOR CARRIED OUT

Policemen carry one of demonstrators at the scene of the House Un-American Activities Committee hearing in Chicago yesterday after pickets tried to block squad car carrying arrested pickets. Police arrested 19 persons. Today, two juveniles were carried kicking and screaming from the U.S. Court of Appeals Building hearing room. They shouted "HUAC must go!" as a former professed Communist began to testify about Communist organization in the Chicago area. (UPI Telephoto)

Another Baby Tangles Hospital-Doctor Fight

Marin Hospital District trustees last night were confronted with yet another potential problem concerning Dr. Stanford W. Ascherman. Mrs. Joyce Conway is soon to have another baby.

Dr. Ascherman is in the midst of a court battle with the district to gain staff privileges at Marin General Hospital. He was allowed to attend the birth of a baby to Mrs. Conway, of Terra Linda, one year ago today, after she threatened to deliver her own baby at the hospital otherwise.

A letter from Ascherman asking that he again be allowed temporary use of hospital facilities for the expected new birth was presented to the board last night and referred to the credentials committee of the medical advisory board for a report at a special meeting June 1.

The board took action to insure that in the future no blood alcohol test of a patient would be made without the patient's permission. This came in the wake of a Marin Municipal Court decision finding against the hospital in behalf of a driver who had been given the test without permission.

Following lengthy discussion on the proposed mental health facility to be built on the hospital grounds, the board asked the facilities expansion committee to present a master plan recommendation on general development of the hospital site.

Board members agreed to allow a call for bids on a sprinkler system in the warehouse area, but held up action on a pneumatic tube system.

New controller Thomas Sinna was authorized to sign hospital district checks. Sinna replaced Gordon Goodrich in the position.

Larkspur Ice Skating Rink Blocked By Building Design

By 2-1 vote, the Larkspur Planning Commission last night rejected the architectural design for an ice rink, saying a metal building would not be good enough for the area.

The vote came just after William P. Schnell, who has served almost four years on the commission, submitted his resignation and left. Schnell said he was resigning at once because of a job change. His term expires June 30.

Commissioners Robert H. Lee and Colin White voted against the plans, and chairman William Fleckles, in favor. Commissioner Victor Donati abstained. Fleckles said he was unhappy about the design, but felt the building would help business in downtown Larkspur.

The rink was planned for East Ward Street and Rice Lane. The commission earlier approved a different design, which the builders said would be too expensive.

Plans by Everett Berg for a convalescent hospital on South Eliseo Road near Bon Air Road were approved.

Safeway Stores was told to return with a request for a variance on parking requirements before plans for a store at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road could be approved.

Blood Center Open June 5

Marin Blood Center will take donations of blood Saturday, June 5, instead of this Saturday, as was reported in Monday's Independent-Journal.

The center will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. June 5 and will be closed Monday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Reservations for making donations may be made at blood center office at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

San Rafael Chamber Group Backs Bonds

Directors of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce yesterday unanimously endorsed the proposed $7,750,000 bond issue which will be put before voters June 8 as a means of financing the hall of justice at Marin Civic Center.

Directors also agreed to recommend that state Senate Bill 779, which would place all state junior colleges under a central board of trustees, be sent back to committee "for interim study."

School District Committee Bill Nearing Vote

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to eliminate county committees on school district organization has breezed through the Assembly and is on the verge of passage in the Senate.

According to Gilbert Oster, research assistant to Assemblyman Garrigus, main purpose of the measure is to transfer authority back to the elected county board of education. The county committee on school district organization is an appointed body.

The original Garrigus bill would have eliminated all county committees on school district organization and transferred the power to the county boards of education.

The measure passed the Assembly 59 to 3. But on May 17, the bill hung up on the Senate floor with a 19 to 19 vote.

The bill was then amended to make the measure permissive rather than mandatory. Under its present provisions, the State Board of Education may order the county board of education to act as the committee on school district organization on petition of either the county board or county committee.

Oster said the bill was introduced to remove conflicts that have developed within some counties. Elected county boards of education have been powerless to move for school unification if appointed county committees decided to block unification.

Killing Youth Called 'Stupid'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The lawyer for a teen-ager says the boy "acted foolishly, ignorantly and stupidly, but not maliciously" when he shot and killed another high school student.

Patrick Hallinan's statement was made yesterday in the juvenile court hearing for Glen Caldwell, 15, accused of killing Rodney Garcia, 16, April 19 in gunplay at a drive - in restaurant near Balboa High School. Another youth was wounded.

The defense contended Glen came from "the wrong neighborhood" and had been intimidated by classmates. Glen lives in the Hunter's Point area, outside the Balboa district.

Five others, with Caldwell when he fired from a car window are also defendants.

Novato Council Balks At Outlawing Peddlers

Supporters of a city-wide ban on uninvited door-to-door salesmen in Novato couldn't get a foot in the door with the Novato City Council last night.

Councilmen refused to introduce an ordinance outlawing all "solcitors, peddlers, hawkers, itinerant merchants and transient vendors of merchandise."

Several representatives of Fuller Brush Co. and Avon Cosmetics were on hand to protest the ordinance. They said their business would suffer.

Mayor Robert D. Carrow said the reputable salesperson would not be affected by the ordinance because he was, in effect, invited to come to the homes of regular customers.

The ordinance sets a maxmum penalty of $500 fine and 180 days in county jail.

Councilmen agreed to consider it again June 8.

The Novato City Council Also:

1. Unanimously endorsed a $7,750,000 County Civic Center bond issue to be voted on June 8. Supervisor William A. Gnoss appeared before the council to urge its passage.

2. Introduced an ordinance lowering the speed limit on Novato Boulevard between Our Lady of Loretto School and the western city limits from 35 to 25 miles per hour.

3. Approved a temporary pedestrian crosswalk at St. Paul Circle and Novato Boulevard for children crossing to Our Lady of Loretto School. The action was requested by R. F. Gunn of 8 St. Paul Circle.

4. Upheld planning commission approval of a lot split by Steven C. Keller at 1255 Yukon Way, which will result in lots slightly under the 10,000-square foot minimum for the area.

5. Returned to the planning commission appeal of its denial of an application of Harry Leff Jr. for a permit for construction of a garage addition to a single-family residence at 3 Nova Lane.

6. Overruled the planning commission to deny a 22-foot high sign for a Shell service station on Novato Boulevard, west of Wilson Avenue.

7. Approved an agreement for presentation to the Novato Unified School District board regarding mutual use of school grounds and playfields.

8. Upheld planning commission denial of a variance for a single-family residence on Kaden Street, appealed by K. D. N. Corp.

9. Introduced a zoning ordinance amendment rezoning property south of El Encanto Motel on Nave Drive from a limited agricultural to limited roadside business district, as requestd by Alexis Ellis.

10. Postponed discussion of the parks and recreation director's report on the little league until the June 8 meeting at request of little league officers.

Burglary Court Case Is Moved

Cases of two suspended San Francisco police officers and other men, suspects in the April 6 burglary of the San Francisco home of Sally Stanford (Mrs. Marsha Owen), yesterday were transferred to Judge Harry Neubarth's division of San Francisco Superior Court.

Suspended officers Salvatore Polani and Patrick Buckman and ex-convicts Wesley Gant and Louis Romero first were to appear before Judge Norman Elkington. Judge Elkington disqualified himself last week after he was challenged for having a possible bias in the case.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Walter Giubbini yesterday moved to have the cases moved to Judge Neubarth's court. The judge is expected to rule Friday whether the cases all will stay with him or will go to still other courts.

Recorder Society Elects Officers

Marin Recorder Society has elected Alfred Spalding of Ross as president for 1965-66.

Also elected were: vice president, Sue Erlenkotter of Kentfield; treasurer, Richard Hughes of Kentfield; secretary-editor, Toby Rein of Mill Valley; music coordinator, Peter Ballinger of San Rafael; chapter representative, Douglas Perrin of Mill Valley.

Novato Annex Plans Will Be Discussed

Annexations to the Novato Sanitary District totalling 43.5 acres will be considered by the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission on June 10.

The parcels consist of 8.3 acres south of Center Road and west of McClay Avenue, known as the Wisgerhof Annexation, and 35 acres on the north and south sides of Vineyard Road between Wilson and Sutro avenues, known as the Vineyard Road Annexation.

Development Group Vote Set June 17

Eugene A. Ostaggi of Sylvan Lane, Ross, a private investor and former executive vice president of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn., has been nominated for president of the Marin County Development Assn.

Assn. President Rex T. Silvernale said Ostaggi's name and the names of nominees for other offices will be voted on by development association members at their annual meeting June 17 at the Peacock Gap Country Club.

Others nominated for offices are:

Coast School Trustees Get Aide's Report

Fifteen recommendations, including suggestions on school philosophy, extra-mural coaching, more library books and in-service materials for teachers, were presented to Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees last night.

The 100-page report is result of a nine-month curriculum study by a dozen people, the citizens study committee.

Robert Spain, rural education supervisor in the county superintendent of schools office, presented the report. The board agreed to go over recommendations item-by-item at future meetings.

"The school philosophy should have in its content a statement such as, 'promote practices leading to the building of habits that are conducive to health, safety and physical and mental well being'," is one recommendation.

Others are: More assistance for coaching extra mural activities should be provided; three thousand dollars should be spent for books during 1965-66; in-service meetings or workshops should be available for teachers in new instructional media.

It was recommended that the school bulletin be distributed to all community residents and that a study of Bolinas graduates at Tamalpais High School should be continued over several years to see if a definite pattern develops.

The study, reported Mrs. Alyce Thompson, board clerk, showed Stinson and Bolinas students are "well above what is expected of them."

Copies of the report are available for reading at both school libraries and at county library branches in both communities.

Marines To Train

Novatans Flay $6.15 Planting Tax Cost Error

The difference between 35 cents and $6.50 brought more than 60 San Marin residents to the Novato City Councl meeting last night.

For nearly two hours, the obvious difference was restated by many residents who were annoyed because maintenance of landscaped median strips on streets in San Marin was to cost $6.50 per year for the average homeowner instead of 35 cents per year as estimated last fall.

Soon it become apparent that the council, planning department and most of the residents at the meeting, which was held in the auditorium of the community house because of the large turnout, agred the landscaping was desirable.

The San Marin developers, Sunset International Petroleum Co., had estimated maintenance of the stips would cost about 35 cents per homeowner per year.

At last night's meeting, Lawrence A. Coleman, city engineer, estimated that over a five-year period, maintence of the areas would cost about $47,750, of which $23,000 would be raised by a special tax of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation in San Marin.

Herbert Gordon, president of the San Marin Homeowners Assn., declared the difference between last falls estimate and the current one was too great to be a simple miscalculation and "bordered on mis-representation."

The council requested the developers, represented at the meeting by Dale Stringfellow, director of community relations, to discuss the landscaping plan and costs with the Homeowners Assocation. It then posponed further action on the matter for two weeks.

Mill Valley Due 'Street Name Bank'

A "street name bank" of persons who were pioneers or who have historical importance to the City of Mill Valley is being prepared by Harvey E. Bragdon, city planning director.

Bragdon told the planning commission last night that the names will be recommended to developers of Alto Bowl and North Ridge for use on subdivision streets. He said that he feels this is more suitable than some of the street names used.

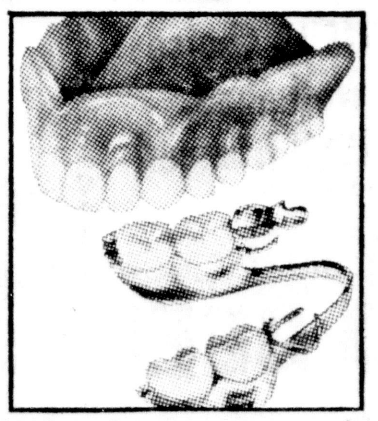
Mrs. Lucretia Little, deputy city clerk, is assisting Bragdon in preparing the list.

The commission, which sat until 12:45 a.m. today, approved rezoning of land owned by Robert L. Hamann at the rear of 181 Miller Avenue from single family to multiple dwelling. Six other lots, for which similar rezoning was sought, were not acted upon pending Bragdon's investigation.

Appeals Board Session

A special meeting of the Marin County Board of Appeals has been scheduled for 2 p.m. next Tuesday to review proposed amendments to the county building code.

Do You Take Out Your Dentures At Night?



Modern dentures are expensive and easily damaged. Whether you take them out for the night or remove them only long enough to clean, they must be treated with special care.

But today there's a newer, safer way to clean dentures—soak them clean in KLEENITE!

Fast-acting KLEENITE combines three stain-removing actions: (1) detergent; (2) oxidizer; and (3) solvent. It safely soaks away discolorations—even dingy film and smoke stains.

IMPORTANT: A recent survey proves more dentists now give KLEENITE than all other denture cleaners combined. Soaking with KLEENITE beats even the hardest brushing with an ordinary dentifrice. Get KLEENITE at all drug counters.

Sottile Again Heads Students At College

RENATO SOTTILE
Wins second term

Sottile, of Mill Valley, beat Warren Glass of Sausalito 450 to 252.

The election drew 746 vooters to the polls, a record 37 per cent of the students at the college.

For vice president, John Bright of Kentfield, polled 447 votes to defeat Steve Tenney of Larkspur, who drew 233. Mike Solomon of San Rafael, running as a write-in candidate, received 13 votes.

Only other contested office was that of head song leader. Donna Sullivan of Novato, heading the group called the "Student Bodies," tied with Dorene Wilson of San Rafael, leader of "Try 7." The tie necessitates a runoff election.

Barbara Dillon of San Anselmo, unopposed for treasurer, drew 584 votes. Write-in candidate Dave Abel of San Rafael got 44.

Jered Dreyfus of Mill Valley was elected public relations commissioner with 614 votes. Write-in competitor David Cinti of San Rafael had 11.

Six hundred and twenty-nine votes, the highest number going to any single candidate, whent to Jim Brewer of Fairfax, unopposed for the rallies and assemblies commissioner.

The title of head yell leader went to Lawrie Driscoll of Novato, with 537 votes. Driscoll led the group called "Us Four."

San Quentin School? Well, Uh, Mmm, No!

Carl J. Brown of the San Rafael Board of Education last night presented the "final" report of a three-man committee to name the Canal Street elementary school site — then watched the recommendation fall on its face.

Brown said he, board president Walter J. Doll and schools Supt. Bert C. Corona had agreed on the name "San Quentin Elementary School."

Board members Anita C. Strom, Walter R. Castro Jr. and Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. looked at each other and frowned. Kramer groaned slightly.

Brown said the name was proposed to keep alive the name of the present San Quentin School, which will be closed next month. Corona pointed out that the name was there before the prison, and briefly cited its historical derivation.

"But Bert," complained Kramer, "people associated the name with only one thing—that big group of yellow buildings over there."

"Besides," observed Mrs. Strom, "I think your mail would get all mixed up."

In mock anger, Brown—who was acting chairman in Doll's absence—formed a new committee, named the three dissenters to it, and closed the subject with a loud bang of the gavel.

Lie Detectors Not Absolute

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI official said yesterday lie detectors actually don't detect all lies.

John P. Mohr, assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, said: "The FBI feels that the polygraph technique is not sufficiently precise to permit absolute judgments of guilt or nonguilt without qualifications."

Mohr told a House subcommittee evaluating the use of polygraphs—lie detectors — that the device "is used as an investigative aid and the results are considered within the context of a complete investigation."

Three Inmates Arraigned In Felony Assault Case

Three San Quentin Prison lifers — two of them brothers — yesterday were arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of the Jan. 21 felony assault on a fellow-inmate, Myford G. Duncan, 24.

Judge Peter Allen Smith granted a continuance until 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, for the trio to obtain counsel and enter pleas. They are James and John Schrenkengost, and Russell Dillard.

The trio allegedly beat Duncan senseless and cut his throat in the prison's paint shop. Duncan, who survived, is serving six months to 15 years on two counts of second degree burglary in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Cause of the assault was not learned.

James Schreckengost was convited Dec. 18, 1956, in Contra Costa County for passing worthless checks, and again on July 8, 1959, in Monterey County for assault on another prisoner.

John Schreckengost was convicted Aug. 9, 1961, in Contra Costa County for first degree robbery. Dillard was convicted Dec. 12, 1961, of a Los Angeles County robbery and for possession of a weapon while a prisoner on May 20, 1965.

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)— It's estimated only 20 per cent of Pakistan's 110 million people are literate enough to sign their names. Only 30 per cent of the nation's school-age children attend school.

PUC Slates Phone Hearing

The California Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a hearing at 10 a.m. June 9 at the Novato Community Clubhouse on "extended services" for Novato, Ignacio and San Rafael by two telephone companies.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. has asked "extended service" between Ignacio and San Rafael. Western California Telephone Co. has asked "extended service" between Novato and San Rafael.

Extended service would do away with the toll charge on these calls, but the monthly rate on phones in the areas would be increased. The PUC has ordered an investigation of the rate structures proposed.

NIKITA'S SUIT TO BE AUCTIONED

Ths Italian-made suit belonging to Nikita Krushchev will be auctioned off for charity on Aug. 7 in Washington, D.C. The former Soviet premier didn't claim it from his Italian tailor, so Sam Levy, a Washington tailor, did. Levy, who brought the suit back from Italy, displays it yesterday at his shop in Washington's Georgetown section.

Condominium Plan Passes After Heated Argument

San Rafael planning commissioners got their first look at plans for development by the Broderick Investment Co. of 73 town-house, condominium apartment units at the end of Channing Way last night.

They approved a use permit for the development after a heated argument and one tie vote.

A roll call vote on the permit resulted in a three-three tie, with Commissioner Charles J. Hendrickson abstaining.

Dividing the commission was the lack of a stipulation that the apartment units on Channing Way have a 10-foot set back.

Planning Director George H. Rodgers recommended the stipulation. He pointed out that apartments just down the block were required to have such a setback.

The deadlock was broken when Klein said he saw no need for the setback and changed his vote to yes.

After the permit was granted, Brown angrily told the commissioners who voted yes:

"I just hope you keep this vote in mind when someone else comes in here asking for a variance from the standard setback on a street."

The development called Channing Terrace, will feature stilt-like apartments built on the side of the hill.

The density was estimated by Planning Director George H. Rodgers at 3,000 square feet for each apartment unit.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

1. Set regular meetings for June 9 and 22 and a special meeting for June 15. The regular meeting of June 8 was set back because of the special county election that day.

2. Set public hearings on proposed changes in the off-street parking requirements of the zoning ordinance for June 9 and 15.

3. Set public hearings June 15 on slope policy amendment to the subdivision ordinance and an amendment to the zoning ordinance to allow cluster developments in a planned unit development by use permit.

4. Approved the final map of the San Rafael Newport Co.'s 19-lot subdivision between Porto Bello West and Point San Pedro Road.

5. Approved a final map for Larkspur Village, a 12-lot subdivision on Larkspur Street, between Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard.

6. Put over until June 9 consideration of a variance to permit Northco Contractors to build a garage with no setback on the south side of Maywood Way.

7. Extended for one year the use permit of Ralph C. Croker for an office at 1800 Lincoln Way.

8. Denied architectural approval for island cover additions on the Shell Oil Service Station on the southeast corner of Lincoln Avenue and Second Street.

9. Approved the architecture of a drive-up market to be built by Abbott Western Co. on Fourth Street at Margarita Drive.

10. Approved the architecture of an 11-unit apartment to be built by Louis Gaviati on the north side of Belle Avenue, between Park Street and Valencia Avenue.

11. Approved the architecture of a commercial building by Ronald Antonioli on Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park.

$35 In Cash Taken At Home

Nancy L. Barnes of 20 Oak Grove Avenue, Woodacre, told sheriff's officers yesterday that someone entered through an upstairs bedroom window to steal $35 cash belonging to her son, Nolene.

Deputies said the money was taken from a money sack in a dresser drawer.

Loss of two tool boxes and tools from the car garage of Phillis Benedetti, 1105 Via Escandida, Loma Verde, was also reported. Entrance was apparently through a garage door last Wednesday, deputies said. No value estimate was given.

U.S. Begins To Pull Troops Out

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The United States today began withdrawing 600 of the 21,000 troops it has stationed in the Dominican Republic. Their place is being filled by Latin American soldiers arriving for the new peace force of the Organization of American States.

Within a week the Latin Americans in the Inter-American Force will total about 1,700 men. An equal number of Americans are expected to leave the divided country.

Fighting in Santo Domingo between troops of the military-civilian junta and rebel forces has come to a halt. But U.S. officials admitted that a political solution was not in sight due to the junta's insistence that the rebels surrender and that it become the country's only government.

McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special envoy, was returning to Washington today after 10 days of intensive but futile efforts to bring the rival factions together.

About all the two sides have agreed on is that any new government should be strongly anti-Communist and should not be a right-wing dictatorship.

U.S. officials said OAS Secretary-General Jose A. Mora would now have charge of negotiations. Deputy U.S. Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance, who came here with Bundy, is remaining to help Mora.

Bundy and his team of negotiators have been trying to promote a coalition government headed by Antonio Guzman, agriculture minister in the government of exiled President Juan Bosch. The rebels have welcomed the idea, but the junta has rebuffed it.

The junta president, Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, assailed the coalition formula yesterday as a "frank intervention in the internal affairs" of the Dominican Republic because it originated abroad.

Instead, Imbert proposed creation of a provisional legislative council to serve, apparently in an advisory capacity, under the present junta. The council members would be appointed by professional, industrial, agricultural and labor organizations. The armed forces would publicly pledge allegiance to civil authority.

Imbert made no mention of elections or the proposed life span of the council and the junta.

Novato Endorses Bill On City Transit Role

Novato city councilmen last night urged passage of an Assembly bill that would give cities representation on the Marin County Transit District Board.

The council backed AB 3362, introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, which would add two representatives from cities to the transit district board. Without this bill, the Marin County Supervisors would be the sole governing board.

The Novato council acted in response to a letter from Bagley, asking cities for reactions they might have to the bill.

The previous board of supervisors had voted for the bill. Bagley said he asked for reaction from the cities because the new board of supervisors did not seem so concerned about it.

The board of supervisors voted 3-2 against the bill Monday but later rescinded that vote and put the matter over until next Tuesday.

Tax Protestants Announce Plans For New Office

Robert M. Burns of Belvedere will be chairman of the headquarters, staffed by the citizen group to "Correct Unfair Taxation" which is protesting recent assessment rises on the Tiburon Peninsula. Headquarters hours have not yet been set.

A finance committee consisting of Walter P. Simi, Belvedere, chairman, Russel D. Keil of Keil Cove; Fred Mantegani of Tiburon and Clarence M. Kretchmer of Belvedere has been appointed by the steering committee, reported Mrs. Chester C. Vargas, steering committee member.

Suicide Offense Penalty Defeated

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Defeat has been the fate of a bill adding another law making it a crime to urge people threatening suicide to go ahead.

The bill by Assemblyman Joseph Kennick, D - Long Beach, died in the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee yesterday when it couldn't get any motion.

Opponents noted a law already exists making it a felony to incite suicide. Kennick proposed making it a misdemeanor to do so.

Bolinas Lagoon Plans Asked Of Supervisors

The Marin Conservation League, in a letter to the board of supervisors, has asked that precise plans be developed for use of Bolinas Lagoon, defining what areas are to be preserved as a sanctuary for wildlife and what areas used for boating.

The letter, signed by league president Mary Summers, also urges that supervisors adopt open area zoning for the lagoon. this has been protested by directors of the Bolinas Harbor District.

Vote Blocks Fluoridation

LINCOLN, Placer County (UPI) —Voters at a special election yesterday decided unofficially 455-375 that the city water supply should not be treated with fluorides.

The ballot proposal made it a misdemeanor for an agent or employee of the City of Lincoln to add fluorides to the domestic water supply.

The vote overturns an action by the City Council which voted approval to fluoridating the water. The council's action was held illegal by a Superior Court and the Third District Court of Appeal ordered a decision at the polls.

Bay Crossing Bills Gain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The final two of three bills aimed at expediting new crossings of San Francisdo Bay were passed yesterday by the Senate.

One authorizes a $300,000 study by the Department of Public Works of various south crossing routes from San Francisco or San Mateo to Alameda County.

The other puts a $133 million ceiling on the amount of Bay Bridge revenues to be used for a rapid transit tube. The idea is to free revenues over that for future crossings.

Both bills are by Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, D-San Francisco.

Wallet Stolen

Patricia Colleen Rooney of 182 Belvedere Street, Apt. 2, San Rafael, complained to police that her wallet was stolen Monday while at the Country Club Bowl, 88 Vivian Way, San Rafael. She told officers it contained notes and change amounting to almost $10.

Denture Invention
Replaces messy powders, oozing pastes, reliners

The nearest thing to having your own teeth is possible by an artificial membrane invented by chemists. This membrane connects dentures to gums and mouth surfaces just as living tissue firmly binds natural teeth. Now many can eat, speak and laugh with little worry of dentures dropping.

FIXODENT elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing – protects gums from bruising. You bite harder — eat faster, without pain. You can enjoy hard-to-chew foods like steak, apples, corn-on-cob.

Americans' Debt Payments Increase

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans' monthly payment debts are 11 per cent larger than a year ago. Business, too, is borrowing more. New York bank loans to commercial and industrial concerns have risen $1.4 billion since the first of the year. In the like period of 1964 they dropped by $574 million.

The nation's commercial banks as a whole have been net borrowers for 12 straight weeks from the Federal Reserve banks to meet the demand for loans from business and individuals. When money is easier and lending demands less urgent the banks have nest eggs of excess reserves in the central banking system.

Are debts, business and individual, rising too fast and too high? Is this a sign, as sometimes in the past, that the business upswing is peaking? Is the net borrowed position of the commercial banks a warning that the Federal Reserve is tightening up on credit to keep the economy from overheating?

Some bankers are answering "not necessarily" to all three questions.

Delinquency of instalment loans has risen very little. And This is reassuring. A worrisome factor: repayments of outstanding instalment debt is taking 14 per cent of disposable income — what's left of an individual's income after taxes. That's a new high. At the same time borrowers have been taking on new instalment debt at such a pace that they are pledging 16 per cent of their disposable income for future payments. This, too, is a record. Bankers say this is manageable for most families — unless times suddenly turn bad.

The rise in loans to business by New York banks of late has been chiefly to retail stores, public utility and transportation companies, apparel and leather goods producers. Earlier in the year loans were heavy to makers of machinery and other durable goods and to commodity dealers.

Bankers say the rising demand for loans is due to the general upswing in business and is actually smaller in relation to the growing economy than in past booms.

In fact, many companies have been borrowing sparingly, because they've had more profits and more cash flow from such items as larger depreciation tax write-offs on which to draw to meet financing needs.

Better Insurance Statistics Urged

MONTEREY — The insolvency of some companies insuring substandard risks and the unprofitable underwriting results of most major insurance carriers can be blamed largely on inadequate rates and rising claims clost, according to James F. Crafts, board chairman of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies at the annual meeting of the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

Crafts advocated wider participation by insurance companies in the recently established National Insurance Acutarial and Statistical Assn. in order to provide competent loss and cost estimates to state insurance regulatory bodies.

Crafts also told the audience of West Coast insurance executives that NIASA could remove the need for "assigned risks" classifications, because better actuarial and statistical data could make risks "writeable at identifiable loss and claim costs, plus reasonable expense."

HER PUBLIC RELATYONS PRETTY POOR

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — When a public relations woman wrote to Bart Lytton and identified his Lytton Financial Corp. wrongly as Litton Industries, he penned her the following pointed reply:

Dear Miss D . . . Iou have hurt me to the quyck. Yf iou don't know y, when one of us has slypped veri baldli yn our public relatyons. And methynks yt's iou . . . Sadli but syncereli iours."

Dividend Declared

DETROIT—An increased dividend of 45 cents a share has been declared by directors of Ex-Cell-O Corp., payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 10. Dividends have been at the rate of 40 cents quarterly for the past three years.

Market Closes Low After An Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed lower today after an early advance vanished. Trading grew more active as prices weakened.

The list advanced at the start and held a higher edge into the afternoon. But prices began to soften and then traders unloaded.

Eastern Air Lines was off about 3, IBM 5, Xerox and Studebaker about 2 each.

Losses of a point or more were taken by Union Carbinde, Control Data and Polaroid.

Consolidated Cigar lost 1 at 49 on a late block of 286,800 shares, one of the largest transactions in market history.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4.8 million shares compared with 4.93 million yesterday.

Here was the picture toward the close:

Kennecott gained more than 3, DuPont well over 2 and American Telephone (ex-dividend) was up nearly a point as it paced the market on volume. The company will report to New York security analysts next Wednesday.

A somewhat higher trend prevailed among airlines and electrical equipments. The pattern was scrambled among oils, rails, sfeels, motors and electronics.

Studebaker's new stock was off about 2. Ford held a fractional gain. Chrysler and General Motors edged lower.

Schick was active but unchanged amid news of a stock purchase move by Eversharp and Technicolor. Thiokol continued active and fractionally higher.

IBM lost 2 and Eastern Air Lines 1.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Treasury bonds were stronger.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Lindner Investment Office Opens; Santa Rosa Savings Eyes Novato

A new business specializing in financial guidance and the management of investments has been opened by Edgar T. Lindner of Ross.

It is called Investment Analysis and Counseling and is located at 1005 A Street, San Rafael. Advisory services on taxes, legal matters, real estate and securities are offered on a retainer basis.

Lindner has been in the field of securities and real estate investments for many years. In Marin he was formerly manager of the San Rafael office of Henry F. Swift and Co. and also headed the real estate investment firm of Growth Properties, headquartered in San Rafael.

OFFICIALS of Santa Rosa Savings and Loan Assn. are hopeful they'll be able to open temporary quarters for a new Novato office by July 1,

The company owns about 37,500 square feet at the southeast corner of Highway 101 and Grant Avenue and plans on erecting a prefabricated structure for use until all the hurdles of designing and having a permanent building approved can be overcome. Present plans call for the permanent office to be colonial-type construction in keeping with the theme of other Santa Rosa Savings and Loan offices. No manager for Novato has yet been appointed.

Eventually, other property adjoining the loan company site is expected to be developed into a shopping complex

Weber

VOLUME of Marin County real estate loans in April was $29,860,650 — the highest of any month since Oct., 1963, according to figures of the Data Sheet published by Title Insurance and Trust Co.

Almost 58 per cent of this was by savings and loan firms — $17,269,710 — who also had one of their best field months over an equally long or longer period. Their usual proportion of real estate loans in Marin is a little over 40 per cent.

The year to date still lags behind the first four months of 1964.

FRANK T. WEBER of San Rafael has joined the San Francisco headquarters of Insurance Securities, Inc. as assistant general sales manager.

Previously he was a representative in San Rafael, and before that was agency manager for Equitable Life Assurance Society.

PAUL R. TERRY JR. of Novato, partner in Terry and McNeil insurance agency, has been made manager of the insurance department of Nipper and Marchant real estate offices. Nipper, Marchant and Mrs. Marchant will continue as agents and will be active at both offices in San Anselmo and San Rafael in the insurance department. Ronald Cockburn will also continue as an insurance solicior with the firm.

ELAINE A. BLAIR of Bolinas, who formerly managed the Tankersley Realty office in San Rafael, is now associated with Mrs. Helen Anderson's Real Estate Center in Mill Valley.

JAMES LIDDELL of San Rafael is back from a trip to Kansas City and Excelsior Springs, Mont., which he won for his sales of Wear-Ever aluminum cooking utensils during the first three months of the year.

Surfboards were introduced to California from Hawaii about 1907.

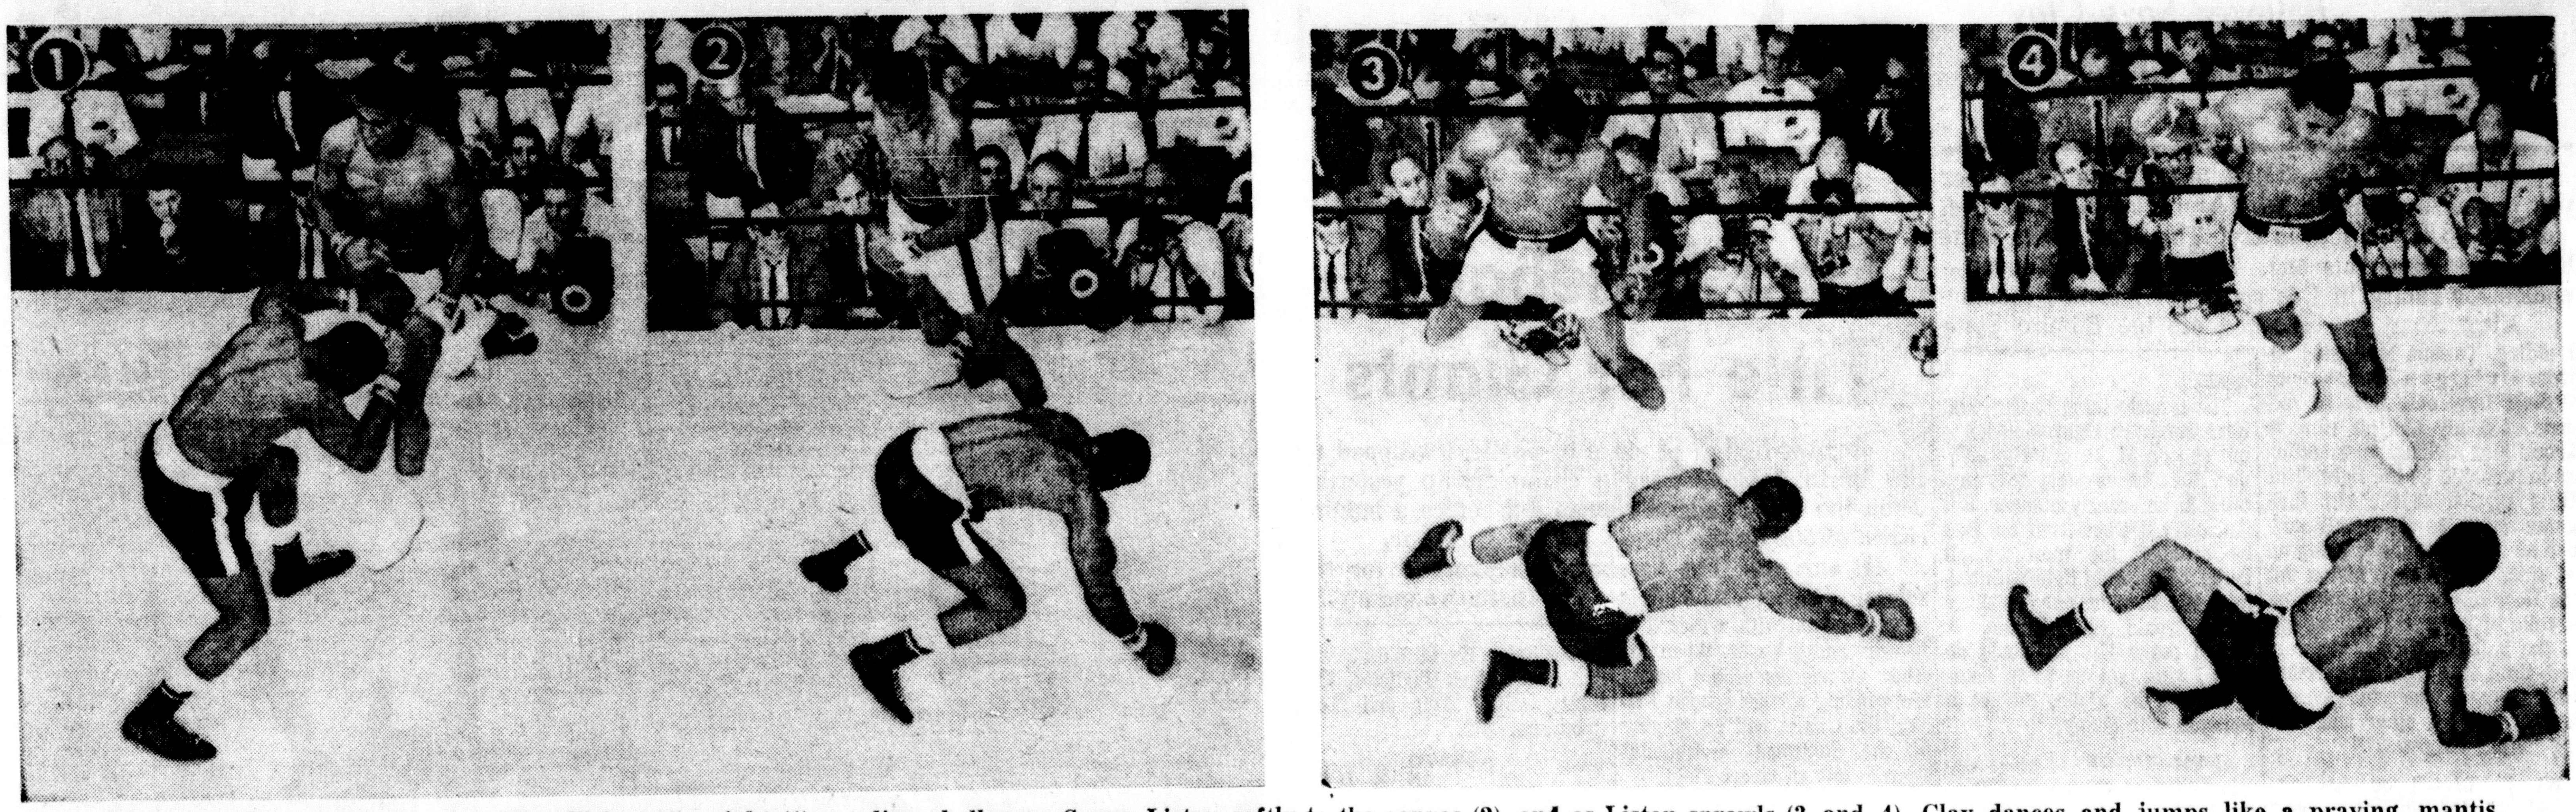
'Fiasco..Fix..Fake' But Clay Still The Champ



Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay flicks out a right (1), sending challenger Sonny Liston softly to the canvas (2), and as Liston sprawls (3 and 4), Clay dances and jumps like a praying mantis (UPI Telephotos)

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, knockout conqueror of Sonny Liston in the record time of one minute for a heavyweight title fight, hollered for "the rabbit — Floyd Patterson" today while the boxing world buzzed with talk over another fiasco.

A short right hand to the jaw knocked out the aging, former champion for a "12 count" in a confused and controversial finish that had many of the 4,280 fans in the heavily police-guarded Central Maine Youth Center yelling "fake" and "fix."

But the undefeated Clay, unperturbed over reported threats on his life, shouted "that was my secret — it was a phantom punch. It was lightning and thunder — fast as lightning and booming as thunder from the heavens."

"It was a good, right-hand punch," said the unmarked, 31-year-old Liston. "No, I didn't quit. The blow landed on my left cheekbone. I've never been knocked down before. It made me groggy. I got to my knees but fell the second time because I was off balance."

"It was a good lick," said Patterson the two-time former heavyweight king and the rabbit Clay wants next in about four months. "He really hit him. I'm more anxious now than ever to meet him."

"There was nothing suspicious about it as far as I'm concerned," said George Russo, chairman of the Maine State Boxing Commission. "The only thing is that it ended too soon. The people didn't get their money's worth."

Nothing much had happened in the early moments as Clay, hands down, danced and circled from the plodding former champion, out to nail Clay with one punch. Then the 23-year-old Clay caught Liston with the right.

The stocky, heavy-set Liston fell on his back in a delayed fall. Sonny rolled over, got to his right knee and then fell on his back again.

In the meantime, referee Jersey Joe Walcott, the former heavyweight champion, never counted once. First he tried to steer Clay to a neutral corner. When he got back and peered to the knockdown timekeeper across the ring, Liston had fallen back on the canvas.

When Liston arose, Walcott rubbed Liston's glove and looked toward the timekeeper again. Then he left the fighters, to go over to the timekeeper. With the referee gone, Clay and Liston started slugging away.

By then Walcott had been informed by the timekeeper that he had counted to 12 before Liston got up and that Clay had won on a knockout. Walcott rushed back, separated the fighters, and declared Clay the winner on a knockout.

It was then the fans let loose with a chorus of boos.

"It would have been different, no confusion if the timekeeper had a microphone so he could be heard," said Walcott.

"Walcott was looking at the crowd, not at me," said McDonough. "What was wrong with him?"

"Clay hit Liston a right hand," said Walcott. "I was trying to keep the fighter (Clay) away and move him into a neutral corner. I let the timekeeper start the count while I was busy. By the time I got the champion aside I couldn't hear the count. I could see someone trying to shout at me."

"It was really a 12-count," said McDonough. "When it got to 12 I clicked the stop-watch. Walcott was supposed to pick up the count when I did. There is no question in my mind that Liston was knocked out."

Russo verified that the knockout time was one minute.

By taking out Liston for the second straight time — this time in 60 seconds — he wiped out the record time of 1:28 for a heavyweight title fight set by Tommy Burns when he beat Jem Roche in Dublin, March 17, 1908. Clay's quick kayo was the 12th first-round knockout in a heavyweight title fight.

Ironically, it was Walcott who had been involved in a first round knockout that caused a mighty stir in his fighting time. After he had lost the title to Rocky Marciano in the 13th round in Philadelphia, Sept. 23, 1952, he was knocked out in 2:25 of the first round of the return in Chicago May 15, 1953.

Thus the return Clay-Liston fight, which was telecast to 258 outlets in the United States, Canada and Mexico and was beamed overseas by the Early Bird satellite, kicked up almost as much of a storm as their still hotly-discussed first fight at Miami Beach 15 months ago.

That was the strange fight in which Liston, a prohibitive 7-1 favorite, quit on his stool after the sixth round, claiming an injured left shoulder. Clay had tried to quit after the fourth, claiming he was blinded by liniment on Liston's gloves.

This time Liston was only a 6-5 favorite over the 23-year-old Clay, who was almost reserved at the weigh-in yesterday compared to his hysterical outbursts in Miami. Clay weighed a surprisingly light 206 pounds and Liston 215¼ for the return.

Clay, who turned pro in 1960 after winning the Olympic light heavyweight crown, now has a 21-0 record, including 17 knockouts. Liston, winner of 28 straight over a nine-year span until he ran into Clay, now has a 35-3 record, including the two knockout losses.

The fight, kicked out of Boston because of the promotional setup, drew 4,280 customers and $201,000 according to Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. With the television and other rights included, the fighters each probably earned about $600,000.

As for the reported threats on his life by avengers of the slain Malcolm X, Clay said:

"All that talk about bombs and guns and people going to kill me, didn't bother me at all. But it had Sonny frozen stiff with fear."

More than 200 police from state, county and city, guarded the high school hockey arena. First the building was searched for bombs and later the purses of women spectators were inspected at the one entrance in which the customers were permitted to enter the arena.

Clay, as usual, got in the first and last words.

Just before leaving the arena, he said "I told everybody I had a secret but I couldn't reveal it. If I told the people what I was going to do, they wouldn't have come to the fight.

"I knew I was going to knock out the Big Bear in the first round. I'm just too fast for everyone. My punches just blur."

Ali Blabber And 40 Thieves Play Short Run On TV Screen

I had a complimentary working press pass and felt cheated. Imagine how the payers felt. They'd been taken by Muhammad Ali Blabber and his 40 thieves.

I joined 2,000 other fight fans at Richmond Auditorium for the closed-circuit smellovision. "Phew," said one man, "close the window." "That," cried another, "is coming from the screen."

They'd just seen Sonny Liston star in the first internationally-televised sit-in. His criminal past reflected in his newest nickname, "The One-Minute Yegg." It wasn't very well done.

In fact the whole show laid a bomb. I had an inkling that it was going to be a bad night when Robert Goulet muffed the first line of the national anthem. I was still trying to figure out what he meant by ". . . the dawn's early NIGHT" when Liston was meeting his burly plight on the screen.

Goulet was reading the Stars Spangled Banner from a cue card and had no excuse. Sonny had to memorize his lines.

LISTON JUST has to be the meanest looking man I've ever seen. At the introduction he stared daggers at Clay that would reduce most men to puddles of fear. He even scared my wife. Too bad he wasn't fighing her.

However, it soon became evident Sonny wasn't so tough. I could swear I heard him say, "Ouch, not so HARD" when they touched gloves.

The television people showed us the knockout a total of three times and I still say I swat flies harder than Ali Blabber shut up Liston.

PUTTING MY dumbell math to work I figured out Punch and Judy earned more than the Brink's Robbers for just about the same time of crime. Each earned $600,000 — which comes out to $10,000 per second.

And another thing: That timekeeper who recorded the time at one minute flat must have been using a sun dial. Radio announcer Russ Hodges (yep, the same local boy from Mill Valley) reported five clocks around him had Sonny hitting the canvas at 1:45. If I were an astronaut I'd just hate to have that timekeeper giving me the countdown. I think he goes by fractions.

THERE WAS a technical problem for those who bet on the color of trunks. I told a friend to bet on the Black Muslim. He thought I said muslin and lost his shirt. The only thing blacker than Sunny's duds was the eye the whole farce gave to sports.

In fact, when the Richmond crowd started yelling, "We want our money back," I joined the chorus. Then, remembering my Annie Oakley, I felt pretty smug after all. I'd really gotten my money's worth.

The whole fight can be summed up thusly: There were only two blows hit. Clay hit Liston and Liston hit the deck.

Since all seven teams in the Redwood Invitational Baseball Tournament this Friday and Saturday are champions of their respective high school leagues, the tourney winner will claim the mythical Northern California prep baseball championship.

Tourney Director Al Endriss of Redwood expects every professional scout in the Bay Area to attend the Friday and Saturday game in their relentless and high competitive search for talent.

According to Endriss, one of the most sought-after preps who will appear in the tourney is John Tyler, a catcher from El Camino High of the North Peninsula League.

Two stars who as sophomores played in the first Redwood Tourney two years ago will re-

Someone Up There Told Me—Clay

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay says it was "a sharp right hand" that put challenger Liston down for the count and today he feels sorry for him.

What's more, the champ said, he "knew all along" he would end the title fight in the first round because "someone above" told him so. The bout lasted precisely one minute.

"That's exactly what I said," the 23-year-old Clay emphasized. "I knew I was gonna whup him in the first round.

"That was the surprise that I wouldn't talk about. I didn't talk about it before the fight because if I did everyone would say it was fixed.

"I'll tell you how I knew it would be in the first round. I knew because someone told me. Someone above, that's who. Believe me, I knew it would be this way. But I don't care whether anyone believes it or not, I knew it. I swear I did."

"I really feel sorry for him," Clay said. "At first all the people were for him, but they're hypocrites and now they've taken all his money away and he got nothing.

"I honest and truly feel sorry for the man. He isn't a bad man.

WANTS RABBIT

"The one I want now is 'the rabbit.' I mean Floyd Patterson. I want him so bad that I wish I was in the ring with him right now."

Patterson, who sat in the third row at ringside Tuesday night, recognized the punch that put Liston away.

"A short right did all the damage," he said. "I'm sure the film will show it. Liston was really hit."

Clay knew Liston was really hit too. The second the challenger slumped to the floor, Clay bounced around him shouting, "get up, get up."

Sonji Clay, who saw her husband fight Tuesday night for the first time, said, "Oh, he's the greatest. He's the greatest. I love him."

Clay said he and his wife will take a vacation trip soon, probably to the West Indies.

WRY COMMENTS ON TITLE FIGHT

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

That was the comment from Henry Cooper, British heavyweight champion, after watching the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston title fight, beamed to London via Early Bird satellite.

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. — London time — and dry wry comments from two other British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to then champion Joe Louis, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing — and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former middleweight champion, said:

At the Hotel Theresa one employe said to another:

"Suppose you had flown to Maine and the usher was a little late taking you to your seat. . . ."

Then there was Lloyd Von Blaine, one of the owners of the section's most popular restaurants. He said:

"I'm just puzzled, that's all. It's like the Truman election — what happened!"

The cries of "fix," "fraud," "fake" were sounded in many theaters showing the closed circuit television of the fight but there were no serious incidents.

A few people asked for their money back, but Clay's mouth may have prevented further disturbances.

At Richmond, it was reported that most of the crowd of about 2,000 was engrossed by Clay's commentary when the fight was rerun in slow motion.

Albany, N.Y., there was a short scuffle between two men when one complained:

"Your head was in my way and I missed the whole thing."

A portion of the crowd was distraught — before the fight started.

Seems the arena ran out of beer.

Bob Moore Qualifies For 'Open'

CARMEL (UPI) — Bob Moore of Salinas and formerly head professional at the Meadow Club in Fairfax, shot 70-74 — 144 over the tough Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club yesterday to lead nine qualifiers for the U.S. Open sectional tournament at Bakersfield.

Moore's par-equalling rounds gave him a five-stroke bulge over amateur Guy Bills of Oakland, who was second with 73-76—149.

Liston: I Didn't Hear The Count

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI)—Sonny Liston has no thoughts of retiring.

"I'll fight anybody," he said after his one minute knockout by the right hand of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay last night. "What choice do I have?"

Liston was deeply disappointed for secretly he thought this was a fight he was going to win. But he had no alibis other than that "I didn't hear the count."

Then he admitted it was a "fair" and "fast" right hand punch that summarily ended the bout.

MURRAY'S COLUMN

He touched his left cheek and jaw, which showed no marks of any kind, in response to questions of where the telling blow landed.

NOT HARDEST

He said Clay's punch had landed "flush" but had not been the hardest ever to strike him in the ring. He said Cleveland Williams had thrown a heavier one. He added that Clay "hits like another Hurricane Jackson."

Liston did say that the punch had surprised him as a new weapon in the Clay arsenal and that he thought he had done "well" until the knockout punch which he only saw "partly."

Could he have gotten up?

"Yes," Liston said. "I didn't know the count. I couldn't hear it."

Franks Grumbles After Pounding

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Maybe Cassius Clay pitched a one-hitter last night in Maine, but the San Francisco Giants should be so lucky.

Nineteen hits — count 'em, 10 — juiced up the Milwaukee Braves' batting averages last night as they fell upon the Giants, 14-1.

The outcome left manager Herman Franks of the losers rumbling assorted curses afterward as he gobbled up a bunless cheeseburger.

"Let's say we just got the heck kicked ut of us," unhappy Herman thundered when asked for a capsule comment. "And Wade Blasingame? Why he's marvelous, sensational."

Franks then tramped off toward his office, jaws working furiously.

Blasingame was close to being everything that Franks said he was in the frigid Candlestick Park. Coming right back from posting a one-hitter against the Mets, the Braves' lefty held the Giants scoreless until the ninth inning. Then Harvey Kuenn's single, the Giants' fifth and last hit of the game, brought across Ken Henderson to wreck Blasingame's shutout bid.

Mack the Knife Jones, back in town after a couple of seasons in the minors, led the Milwaukee attack by driving across four runs with the two homers and a single.

After Eddie Mathews' 10th home run of the season started Ron Herbel toward his fourth defeat as early as the first in-

Believer Says Clay Is 'The Greatest'

LEWISTON, Me.—I hate to spoil the picture for you if you're going to the Liston-Clay fight movies. I'd only go if you like to cry. The guys in the white hats really blew this one. The last best—if poor—choice for sanity in this sport got knocked kicking.

King Kong got knocked off the Empire State Building. Cassius Marcellus Aladin Mulligan Montmorency O'Toole Clay only took 60 seconds of Sonny Liston's time to knock him kicking in a setting as improbable as the fight. This fistic version of the old shell game ended as shockingly sudden as a window shade going up at midnight. Sonny Liston hit the floor like a guy slipping on a cake of soap and getting out of the bathtub. This is the second time this fight has ended with several thousand people looking at each other and asking "What happened?"

WELL, I'LL tell you what happened. That's what I'm here for. Sonny Liston got the hell beat out of him is what happened. This time I was looking for it and I saw it: An old man dropping his way into a speedy, insolent, reckless kid. He was like a guy braving a barrage of rocks. He hasn't hit Cassius Clay yet. And he never will. The closest he ever got to the world's foremost Arabian fist fighter was the weigh-in. When he didn't hit him then he was volunteering for an evening of catching. He should have worn a catcher's mitt on his face. I counted three times when Cassius staggered him. The first time was when the bell echo hadn't died down yet.

Cassius is on ad lib fighter and he thought up a beaut to get this dance under way — a right cross. Nobody ever started a heavyweight title fight with a right before. That's the kind of dirty trick your wife would try. But Cassius messed up Liston's unpretty features with a crazy right that he started to throw as he left his corner. Liston should have known then and there that his play was to find a soft place to land.

WE ALL KNEW Sonny was slow but we didn't think he'd need to call a cab to get to center ring. Actually, he should have called a cab to take him home. Two years ago we were saying this guy was the best heavyweight in history. Now he's not even the best heavyweight in Lewiston. And if you think that isn't a comedown, you've never been to Lewiston.

Sonny fought as if his feet hurt. If he was a horse they would have scratched him. Cassius could have beat him in high heels.

THEY TRIED to drum some strategy into Sonny that was Napoleonic in concept. He was counselled on how to cut off Cassius' retreat in mid-ring. The only trouble was that Sonny was always getting there some time after Cassius left. His problem seemed to be he had to surround Clay.

The ending was a disorderly disgrace. But then Cassius Clay's histrionics usually are. Cassius Clay hadn't gone to a neutral corner yet. He kept trying to get at the fallen Sonny. But is seemed a shame to wake him up just for that.

THE FIGHT game has a new "long count" to add to its lore. The referee never did get to count. By the time he had finally steered Clay away from the semi-conscious who looked as if he were trying to get off a banana peel, the count must have been at least 12. Ref Joe Walcott let them start to fight again.

The orderly thing to do would have been for Cassius to go to his corner in an orderly manner. But Cassius never does anything in an orderly manner. But it doesn't detract from the fact he drubbed the man we all thought he should fight with bullets. We thought only a silver bullet would floor Liston. It turned out a left jab could do it. If I were that cop in St. Louis whose leg he broke, I'd get a rematch with Sonny.

ANYMORE OF these one-minute fights, though, and they can hold these fights by phone. Several thousand people in Lewiston saw fit to miss the live fight. Earlier in the evening, there were so few on hand it looked as if attendance was by invitation. Lots of people in Lewiston found something better to do, although having been up here several days I can't think for the life of me what it is. Up here they fight with their feet and for a minute when Clay rushed at the fallen Liston, I thought it was catching.

It might not have been the best fight in heavyweight history but it was the hottest — at least since they used to fight on Fourth of July afternoon.

I NOW KNOW why Cassius wanted a big ring. So there'd be room for Sonny's feet when he stretched out. Sonny had never been knocked down before and apparently he didn't know which way was up. He should have consulted Floyd Patterson. The only trouble with Cassius Clay is that if ever a guy misplayed a role in history it was he. Not Anna Sten in her worst movie could have topped this. You have to think Cassius would play Hamlet for laughs and the Marx Brothers as a tear jerker. The casting called for Joe Louis and Cassius gave them Jerry.

When he came along he was America's sweetheart, the guy who was going to kick sand back in the bully's face. He was going to show that crime didn't pay. Sonny Liston at that time would have been the sentimental underdog in a rattlesnake hunt. It took Cassius and a bunch of shavehead agate-eyed types one year to turn Liston into the most popular public favorite since St. George. They gave him the part of the marshall in "High Noon," and he wanted to be the guy in the black hat. He's the kind of guy who could get people rooting against the doctors in an epidemic.

THE AUDIENCE couldn't be more confused if Jack La Rue got the girl at the end. He made a lamnister out of the fight, lost his title in 46 states without a punch being thrown. For 364 days, 23 hours and 59 minutes he might be a whacked-up kid. But for 60 seconds last night he beat Sonny Liston so bad he'll probably need help getting in and out of bed for a week. Whatever Cassius Clay is or believes in, he's all ours. Sonny Liston couldn't get close enough to hit him with a bucket of birdseed. It's going to be terrible on the ears, but Cassius is right back where you have to listen to him and he's coming in loud and clear.

turn for an encore — twin brothers Albert and Alvin Strange of St. Elizabeth High in Oakland.

Since Samuel Ayers and Pioneer high schools from the Mt. Hamilton League in San Jose tied for the championship, a special meeting today was to determine which team will come to the tourney at San Rafael's Albert Field.

The six other entries have a combined won-lost record of 100-22. They are Monterey (20-2) of the Monterey Bay League; St. Elizabeth's (17-3) of the Catholic Athletic League; El Camino (14-5) of North Peninsula; Redwood (18-4) of Marin; San Leandro (16-3) of Alameda County and College Park (15-5) of Diablo Valley.

First Baseball Title For Giants

Redwood High School's baseballers wrapped up the Marin Athletic League championship yesterday when the Giants edged Novato 4-2 before a bulging crowd of 500 on the Giants' field in Larkspur.

It was the first baseball championship for the school and coach Al Endriss. The Giants wound up the League season with a record of 10 wins and 2 losses. When the other six schools of the league are winding up the season Friday, the Giants will be playing in the Redwood Invitational Tournament at Albert Field.

Novato got off to a one run lead in the second inning when John Young, Hornets leftfielder, smacked one out of the park with bases empty. It was the first pitch to him, a curve ball.

Novato made it 2-0 in the top of the fourth, with Youngs again getting the run batted in, scoring Ron Rowell from third on a sacrifice fly.

Redwood scored enough runs to win in its half of the fourth. Sophomore leftfielder Kevin Wilson blasted a homer to straightaway center to lead off the inning. Tom Gootherts knocked in the tying run on a fielder's choice and later scored the go-ahead run when catcher Steve LeBeck rapped a clutch single.

TIME CONFUSION

Officials Insist: 'One Minute Flat'

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Despite questions from many quarters, there's no doubt by fight officials that last night's heavyweight championship fight ended in one minute of the first round with Cassius Clay the winner by a knockout over Sonny Liston.

The time of the knockout was announced at one minute after Clay dropped Liston with a chipping right hand to the head. But that's when the confusion started.

Referee Jersey Joe Walcott, himself a former heavyweight title holder, didn't start the count as Liston rolled on the canvas. Walcott was too busy trying to shoo Clay to a neutral corner.

Clay wasn't easily convinced. He stood over the fallen Liston and refused to move to a far corner.

But after a brief huddle through the ropes with McDonough, Walcott separated the fighters and raised Clay's hand.

Chairman George Russo of the Maine State Boxing Commission verified after the fight that the time was exactly one minute and the time was recorded on two watches.

"There's no question about the time — it was one minute of the first round," Russo said.

Walcott explained after the fight that he failed to pick up the count from McDonough because "I was too busy trying to get the man (Clay) to a neutral corner."

McDonough said that Liston was actually on the floor for 12 seconds but the fight ended — officially — when McDonough's count reached ten.

Some confusion may have resulted from Clay and Liston going at it after Liston got back to his feet with neither fighter realizing that the count had ended.

Hands Pitches Eighth Straight Win For Tacoma

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hands pitched the Western Division leaders to a 3-1 victory over Seattle last night. It was his eighth straight triumph without a loss, including four shutouts.

Hands struck out six and walked none. After giving up one run, his earned run average stands at 0.50, lowest in the league.

Mrs. Dickover Wins Tourney

Mrs. Joseph Dickover scored a 54-hole total of 212 to win the Spring Handicap tournament at the Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday, with Mrs. Harold Baer finishing as runner-up with a 213 total.

Low net winners for each day were Mrs. William Cardinal, 81-18—63 on May 18; Mrs. Fred Craddock, 92-20—72 on May 20, and Mrs. Dickover, 89-25—64 yesterday.

Redwood Boys Are Honored

Tim Frost and Don Kreuzberger won captain blankets for the Redwood High School swim team last night at a banquet sponsored by the Redwood Benchwarmers. Frost also won the senior scholarship award.

In track, Buzz Salata and Greg Yuhas were named winners of the captain blankets, and Dave Lee won the senior scholarship award.

Terra Linda Wins To Nab Second Place In League

San Rafael Is Whipped By Trojans

Terra Linda blasted San Rafael 11-4 yesterday with hopes of tying for the Marin Athletic League baseball title, but found out after the game that Redwood had clinched the crown by dropping Novato 4-2.

The triumph gave the Trojans of Terra Linda a record of 8-3, clinching second place with one more league game remaining, Redwood finished the season with a 10-2 mark.

John Forry, Terra Linda shortstop , cracked a double and single and knocked in three runs to lead the assault. Second baseman Bill Hall hit a triple that scored two runs.

Scoring all their runs in the bottom of the fourth inning, the Marin Catholic Wildcats thumped the Tamalpais Indians 7-4 yesterday in Kentfield.

It was Marin Catholic's fifth win in its last seven games. Vince Sherry had 2 of Marin's 4 hits and knocked in 2 runs. Marin was helped along by wild pitches and a total of four Tam errors. The Wildcats committed five errors themselves, but they were not as costly.

Venturi Calls Open Site 'The Toughest'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Venturi didn't have any trouble with his hands as he shot a practice round at the 1965 U.S. Open site yesterday but he had plenty of trouble with the Bellerive Country Club course.

"I never saw anything like it," said the defending U.S. Open champion who has been out of competition for six weeks because of a circulatory ailment which limited the use of his hands.

"It's the toughest course I ever played," he continued.

Venturi, the San Francisco golfer who won the Open last year at the Congressional County Club in Washington D.C., in a comeback bid, was satisfied with his game at this stage though.

"This is the first round since the Masters Tournament at Augusta in April that I have tried to do something with the ball," he said. "My game is beginning to jell."

The Bellerive course is the longest, at 7,200 yards, in U.S. Open history and it's pocked with water, woods, doglegs, and sand traps.

"And, there are more out of bounds than on any other open I can remember," Venturi said.

Venturi judged he would have shot 75 or 76 yesterday if he had not taken several alternate practice shots. Par for the 18 hole course is 70.

He said his hands were responding to treatment and he would be "ready to defend my title June 17-20."

Venturi plans to play in the Buick Open at Detroit, June 3-6 and the Cleveland Open, June 10-13, before returning to St. Louis and the Bellerive golf course.

After Venturi reached the 606-yard 17th hole in three shots, he remarked: "Its tougher than Congressional. I could reach every hole there, but I can't here."

$15,000 Peacock Tennis Tourney Starts Tomorrow

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Ten International tennis professionals start going after $3,000 to prize in the first Peacock Gap International Tennis Tournament tomorrow at the new layout at Peacock Gap Country Club.

There will be a total of $15,000 in prize money in the tourney which runs through next Monday. Two singles matches and one doubles match will be held daily, starting at 1 p.m. It's an elimination tourney that winds up with finals in both singles and doubles on Monday.

In opening round matches tomorrow, England's Mike Davies goes against Earl Buchholz of St. Louis in the first singles match and Chile's Luis Ayala squares off with Australia's Ken Roswell in the second singles. Pancho Segura of Beverly Hills and Davies will oppose Ayala and Berry McKay of the United States.

"The last time I played in a tournament was in July in Boston," MacKay told an Independent—Journal deporter yesterday during a press luncheon at Peacock Gap, prior to a golf tournament that included seven of the tennis pros and members of the press. Also playing were members of the newly-formed Peacock Gap Youth Tennis Foundation.

LEG IN BRACE

"Yes, this will be the first tourney for me in quite a while," MacKay said. "I'll be playing with a big brace on my leg. I can move around, but it's the sudden turns and twists that are hard."

MacKay, since his knee injury, has acted as representative for the International Tennis Players Assn., and has the personality to fit right in that position.

Absent from yesterday's luncheon and golf tourney were Pancho Gonzales, Segura and Davies. But they'll be around when the pros start going after the big money. Gonzales lost to Rod Laver in the finals of the Masters Round Robin pro tourney Monday in Los Angeles and got a late start to Marin.

LAVER FAVORED

With the triumph in Los Angeles, Laver was given the top seed in the Marin tournament and Gonzales the No. 2 seed. Roswell, host pro from Peacock Gap, is the No. 3 seeded player and Andres Gimeno 4th.

Workmen at the site of the tourney were hammering and sawing yesterday putting the finishing touches on the new tennis layout at Peacock Gap, It will seat 3,500 when completed. That should be sometime today.

It will give the pros just one day to find out about the courts, since none of them has had any practice on it yet.

Segura was slowed down by an auto accident 10 days ago in Los angeles, but is expected to be able to play in the Marin tourney. But just in case, Alex Olmedo has been put on standby duty to take his place in the lineup, MacKay said yesterday.

Busholz, who lost to Laver in the L. A. tourney, yesterday said playing against him was "like being in a jungle in Viet Nam with a water gun." He agreed that Laver will be the one to beat in the Peacock Gap tourney.

DRYSDALE STOPS CARDS WITH NEAR NO-NO—2-0

By CURT BLOCK
UPI Sports Writer

When Don Drysdale gets down to business he's a hard man to deal with—in fact, he's almost impossible.

Drysdale was all but perfect last night against the St. Louis Cardinals when he stopped the world champions on one hit in a 2-0 Dodger victory that snapped a seven-game Redbird win streak.

Curt Flood, the game's first batter singled and thereafter only one Cardinal reached base and he did on an error.

The one-hitter was the first of the tall righthander's career but he said after the game that there was no question in his mind that the ball should be scored a base hit even through it glanced off his right hand.

The game was a scoreless pitching duel until the eighth when the Dodgers pushed over the only runs of the contest to hand unbeaten Bob Gibson his first setback after eight straight wins.

In other National League games, Philadelphia belted the Mets 10-3; Pittsburgh nipped Chicago 7-6 in 12 innings; Cincinnati trimmed Houston 7-4; and Milwaukee clobbered San Francisco, 14-1.

Drysdale, who led the league in innings pitched last season, opened the Los Angeles eighth with a single. He was sacrificed to second and Wes Parker then drew a walk. With two out, reliable Ron Fairly stepped up and stroked a double to left center, scoring the only two runs of the game.

In achieving his seventh win against three losses, Drysdale struck out six and did not walk a batter. Of his three setbacks, two were one-run losses and the other by two runs. His handling of St. Louis marked Drysdale's fifth complete game and second near perfect shutout of the year.

The Phillies shook off the cobwebs and pelted five Met pitchers for 18 hits. Johnny Callison, Frank Thomas, Gus Triandos and winning pitcher Ray Herbert had three hits each as the former American League righthander stopped the New Yorkers on seven hits. Ron Swoboda (11) and Johnny Lewis (6) had circuit clouts for the losers.

Last place Pittsburgh won its fifth straight on a 12th inning single by Andre Rodgers. Hot-hitting Donn Clendenon had four hits for the Bucs and led off the 12th with a single before being sacrificed into scoring position.

Herbel was long gone when Jones came up again in the third and singled across another run while the Braves were belting southpaw Bob Hendley around for three more tallies.

Another lefty, Masanori Murakami, gave up five more runs—including Jones' fifth homer of the season, during the sixth.

The 19-hit attack matched an output which the Braves unloaded against the Pittsburgh Pirates on May 13.

Hendley, who used to be a starter, gave up five runs and seven hits in the three frames he worked. This lifted his ERA to 12.6 with 27 hits in a total of 15 frames.

"What am I supposed to tell you?" Franks countered when asked what plans he might have for helping the former Milwaukee hurler find himself. At the moment, jolly ol' Herm was somewhat lost on his own.

Nine Marin Grade School Track Marks

Nine records were either broken or tied at the annual Marin County track and field championship meet for seventh and eighth grade boys and girls last Saturday at Novato High School's field.

Barbara Dickens and Ivory Foster of Richardson Bay, Jim Bauer, Lynn Vogensen, Jorgene Allen, Gena Gotlieb and Donna Peterson of Davidson Junior High, and John Malvino and Maryann Monestier of Henry C. Hall School were the record breakers.

PINEAPPLE BONNET SALAD recipe chooses to add a layer of cranberry sauce, sour cream, raisins and vinegar to the tangy taste of crushed pineapple.

Crushed Pineapple Livens Salad Mold

Perky posies brighten the crown of this bonnet salad made with refreshing crushed pineapple, chosen to combine throughout the lively orange pineapple gelatin top layer. And below that there's a deep handsome amethyst layer which combines canned cranberry sauce, sour cream, raisins and vinegar. Its tangy taste goes wonderfully well with the pineapple layer.

Mold this bonnet salad in a round fluted flat bottomed pan and brim it with mint, parsley, watercress or shiny lemon leaves. The flowers used for trim are fake but they look real. Canned unsweetened pineapple juice as well as pineapple slices, chunks and tidbits are useful in molding other salad ideas for spring.

PINEAPPLE BONNET SALAD

1 (6-ounce) package orange-pineapple gelatin
1¾ cups boiling water
1 (8½-ounce) can crushed pineapple
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup dairy sour cream
1(1-pound) can whole cranberry sauce
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup dark seedless raisins

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; divide into two equal portions. Add undrained pineapple, lemon juice and celery to one part. Pour into 6-cup mold. Chill quickly until set but not firm. Blend sour cream into remaining gelatin. Stir in all remaining ingredients. Chill until very thick. Spoon over pineapple layer. Chill firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Serve with mayonnaise or sour cream. Makes 8 servings.

Sponge Cake, Nibble Tray Just Right On A Warm Day

Nibble Tray
Swedish Sponge Cake Iced Tea

SWEDISH SPONGE CAKE

1½ cups unsifted regular flour
1½ teapsoons baking powder
½ cup boiling water
¼ cup butter
3 large eggs
1 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon

Grease a 2-quart fluted tube pan with 1 tablespoon butter; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon fine dry bread crumbs, shaking pan to distribute evenly.

On a piece of wax paper, stir together the flour and baking powder. Pour the boiling water into a small mixing bowl; add the butter; stir until melted; cool. In a medium mixing bowl, beat eggs until foamy; gradually beat in the sugar; continue to beat, if necessary, until ivory color. Add flour mixture, water mixture and lemon rind; beat gently just until blended. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven for 1 hour or until cake begins to pull away from sides of pan and tester inserted in center comes out clean. Loosen edges with a spatula; turn out on wire rack; cool.

Asparagus Freshens Salads

Asparagus, a native of Europe, was introduced to America by President Jefferson who grew the rare asparagus from imported seeds in his greenhouse for state dinners.

Fresh asparagus, cooked and marinated makes a delicious spring salad The ancient Romans had a saying, "You can do it in less time than it takes to cook asparagus." And it's true, asparagus is best cooked quickly and until just tender. Prepare a marinade of corn oil and fresh lemon juice seasoned with tarragon, thyme and oregano while the asparagus cooks. Drain asparagus and marinate in the refrigerator for several hours. Arrange the chilled marinated asparagus on crisp western iceburg lettuce cups and garnish with thin strips of lemon peel. Add a tomato wedge and a generous dollop of mayonnaise.

An asparagus Souffle Salad made with gelatin and mayonnaise is another delightful way to serve plentiful asparagus. Still anohter colorful salad is asparagus and shrimp marinated in a mayonnaise and lemon juice combination then served with iceburg lettuce.

ASPARAGUS SALAD

¾ cup corn oil
½ cup lemon juice
1½ tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon tarragon leaves
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
½ teaspoon oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ clove garlic
2 pounds fresh asparagus
lemon peel slices
Tomato wedges
Mayonnaise
Iceburg lettuce

Measure corn oil, lemon juice sugar, salt, tarragon, thyme, oregano and pepper into jar. Add garlic. Cover and shake well. Chill, then remove garlic. Trim scales and tough ends from asparagus. Wash asparagus well. Cook in 2 inches boiling salted water in covered deep narrow pan, just until tender. Carefully drain and arrange in large shallow dish. Pour ½ cup dressing over asparagus; reserve remainder to use as desired. Cover and chill asparagus several hours. Serve on lettuce, garnish with tomato wedges, lemon peel and mayonnaise. Makes 4 servings.

ASPARAGUS SOUFFLE SALAD

1 cup boiling water
1 (3-ounce) package lemon flavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 cup diced cooked asparagus
1 cup diced seeded tomatoes
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
1 teaspoon chopped chive
Dash chervil, optional
Iceburg lettuce

Pour boiling water over gelatin in bowl; stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add cold water, vinegar, mayonnaise, salt and pepper; blend with rotary beater. Pour into freezing tray or metal loaf pan. Chill in freezing unit until firm about 1-inch from edge of pan but still soft in center, about 20 to 25 minutes. Turn mixture into bowl and whip with rotary beater until fluffy and thick. Fold in asparagus, tomatoes, parsley, chive and chervil. Pour into 1-quart mold or individual molds. Chill in refrigerator (not freezing unit) until firm, about 45 to 60 minutes. Unmold. Serve garnished with lettuce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWEDISH ASPARAGUS SALAD

3 cups diced, cooked asparagus
1 cup cooked shrimp
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 hard cooked egg, sliced
4 ripe olives

Mix asparagus, shrimp, mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and pepper together. Let marinate in refrigerator at least 2 hours. Arrange for serving; garnish with sliced egg, olives and a few shrimp from marinade. Makes 8 servings.

many and varied, imported and domestic, but all with the essential excellence of design and craftsmanship that gives them authentic beauty and elegance. Did we say many? We mean many kinds, not many of each. In some cases, we have only one—the $200 French-imported alencon lace tablecloth, for instance. We have the lovely French Limoge ash tray, $2.50. Clearly, we're not interested in "quantity stock," and, if you've read this far, neither are you. We have a few of many beautiful things ranging from Bavarian stemware to Sheffield silver to Belgian linens to Italian pottery to Stieff pewter to Florentine cigarette boxes. Prices range from $2.25 to $50.00.

…linens of superlative quality

A dazzling variety of table mats and napkins range from Italian handmades to the best of the American-made; tablecloths too, of course, from France and Belgium. As for bed linens: they bear the familiar name of Fieldcrest, but these are the finest of Fieldcrest sheets, pillow cases, bedspreads; gorgeous new bath towels, also by Fieldcrest, and, to coordinate in breath-taking colors, Regal bath rugs of regal splendor. Prices range from $6.00 to $25.00.

…and closet accessories of comparable quality, from $1.00 to $16.98

…and a Patio Corner with everything from aprons to patio lights. Prices range from $1.00 to $12.00

Party To Follow Final Show Of Ballet Gala On Saturday

By MOLLY MARIN

Leona Norman, director of the Marin Civic Ballet, will be honored at a party following the last performance of the Marin Civic Ballet Gala in the College of Marin gymnasium Saturday by Sen. and Mrs. Jack McCarthy at home in San Rafael.

The highlight of the gala to be presented both Friday and Saturday at 9 p.m. is the satire Mrs. Norman has created, "Golden Moments of Ballet" with the participation of the Guckenheimer Sour Kraut Band. Two new works commissioned by the Marin Civic Ballet will also be presented: Marc Wilde's "Rustic Wedding" and Ron Poindexter's "Twink." The program will include the Snow Scene Pas de Deux from "The Nutcracker" and Le Pas de Quatre of Perrot.

WITH THE Redwood High School Senior Ball set for Friday night at the Peacock Gap Country Club, a number of events have been planned to fete the near-graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Moore have invited friends of their daughter, Kathleen, to a dinner party at their Belvedere home before the ball. Among the guests will be Eleanor Watkins, Patricia Langille, Russ Keil, Tim Frost and Rick Wynne.

Invitations have been received by friends of Gail Noah to top off the festive evening with breakfast hosted by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Noah, at their home on Belvedere's West Shore.

ELAINE THOMAS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas of Peacock Gap, will be honored at tea at her parents home on Thursday after graduation ceremonies at Dominican Upper School where she has been an honor student all through high school and lower school. She is enrolled at University of California Davis where she will major in design.

The 30 guests will include

AT MUSIC CHEST TEA

TEA PLANNED

Belvedere Guilds To Preview Wares

The five Belvedere Guilds of Sunny Hills will present a preview of their wares for the Grape Festival at a tea to be held on June 4 from 2 to 5 p.m., at Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere.

Mrs. Stanley W. Totten is chairman for the event assisted by Mesdames Robert Joses, Elmer McCallum, Maury Saltzman, William Steen, Peter Sutter, Walter Unna, Edward Brash and William Saville.

Past presidents of the guilds will pour.

Guild presidents are Mesdames Totten, W. A. Main, Corwin Hinshaw, Robert Temby and Donald McLeod.

Mrs. Harry C. Duncan is president of the executive committee of guilds.

Vinetta Ashmore Is Wed In Chapel Rite

Vinetta Gaye Ashmore of Hamilton Air Force Base, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Vincent H. Ashmore, became the bride of Lt. Richard Otto Lundstrom of Fargo, N. D., Saturday at Chapel Two on the base.

The chaplain, Maj. Henry C. Bielski officiated at the ceremony at which the bride was given in marriage by her father. Vinetta wore an organza over tafetta gown and Chantilly lace jacket with attached chapel length train.

The bride's sister, Mrs. John P. McVicar of San Francisco, was matron of honor and Pamela Mitchell of Hamilton was bridesmaid. They wore powder blue crepe dresses with over lace on the bodice.

Lt. Lundstrom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lundstrom, who came from their home in Fargo for the ceremony.

Vinetta attended Yuba College and has been employed as a photographer. She has a brother, Tom. Richard was graduated from the University of North Dakota.

Following a honeymoon at Lake Manitowoc the newlyweds will visit the new Mrs. Lundstrom's grandmother, Mrs. T. R. Ashmore of Rhode Island before reporting to their first home at Luke Air Force Base, Phoenix.

Marianne Hallroan Becomes Bride Of Werner H. Sellman

A double ring ceremony united Marianne Hallroan and Werner H. Sellman the afternoon of May 8 at St. Anselm's Church in Ross.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George M. Hallroan of San Anselmo, and the late Mr. Hallroan. Her brother, Edward Michael Hallroan, gave Marianne in marriage. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Radieve of San Anselmo.

MR. AND MRS. WERNER H. SELLMAN (Schroll-Heritage photo)

Werner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sellman of Mill Valley. He has one brother, Reinhold, of Mill Valley.

A cousin of the bride, June Cortese, of Pacifica, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marianne's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward M. Hallroan, of San Anselmo, and Eleanor Schembs of Kentfield.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Tamalpais High School, and is now employed with the Marin Municipal Water District. The new Mrs. Sellman completed her studies at Marin Catholic High School. She works in San Francisco.

The couple's first home will be in Woodacre.

BACK AT their Cascade Drive home in Fairfax are the Glen Tarwaters, who have just returned from a 10-week holiday vacation in Europe, during which they enjoyed a visit with friends in Germany. They returned to New York aboard the liner T. S. Bremen.

OTHER MARINITES have returned from European holiday trips. . . . The Theodore Rosenbergs of San Rafael returned aboard the liner Cristoforo Colombo to New York from a Continental holiday. And the William Kaffers of Hill Haven, Tiburon, are home following three weeks touring European countries. They began in London for two days and went by boat to Amsterdam and drove on through Germany, Switzerland and Austria. Next came Venice, Florence and Rome and the Riviera. The Kaffers and their group went on to Lyon, Avignon and Paris, and their trip terminated in Brussels, where they boarded a plane for New York and a World's Fair visit before coming on home.

Garden Club Sets Dessert Meeting

Members of the Garden Section of the Tamalpais Centre Woman's Club will meet in the clubhouse at noon on Friday. Dessert and coffee will be served by the chairman, Mrs. Thomas Cusick.

Gate Span Stroll Curfew Unexpected And Puzzling

The curfew on pedestrian use of Golden Gate Bridge was both sudden and inexplicable.

It would not have been quite so sudden and quite so puzzling if the decision had been made by the bridge board of directors at a regular board meeting.

The reasons for the need to close the pedestrian walkways between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. would then have been debated and reported to the public.

What happened was that the bridge general manager apparently issued the order out of a blue sky. No explanation was given other than that it was in the interests of better bridge operation and efficiency.

The bridge directors are willing to spend thousands to publicize the bridge and encourage tourism in the Bay Area. The Golden Gate Bridge is a famed landmark that is attracting tourists from throughout the country and the world.

Visitors look forward to their one chance in a lifetime to stroll across the bridge or catch the sunset or the sunrise from the famed span.

Then without warning, a simple edict snatches that privilege from the public.

It certainly makes little sense for the bridge authorities to encourage visitors to the Land by the Golden Gate, then turn right around and deny the visitors one of the best views of the Golden Gate during the best hours of the day.

In the past, the pedestrian walkways were open to the public from sunrise to sunset. Offhand, we can think of nothing objectionable to public use of the span during those hours.

But the new ruling cuts off about two hours from both ends of the day. You can't stroll onto the bridge until after the sun has been out for two hours. And you've got to be off the bridge two hours before the sun sinks over the horizon.

No doubt the bridge board of directors will review that ruling. And the reasons for the curfew will be aired during that review.

Those reasons should be convincing and compelling, if the public is to be barred from strolling the span at sunrise and sunset.

In the absence of compelling reasons, we urge that the bridge directors over-rule the general manager and "re-open" the span to its rightful owners.

TO LEAD IS TO SERVE

Leadership can be summed up in many ways, but one brief and meaningful definition of "to lead" is "to guide by drawing along, or by going ahead and showing the way."

This type of leadership, urgently needed in the world today, offers little in the way of ease, honor, or personal gain. More often than not, it involves the very opposite—frustration, misunderstanding, hardship, personal risk and sometimes personal loss.

But in the long run, the trouble encountered in being such a leader is small compared to the sense of personal fulfillment and achievement in working for the common good of all.

Show leadership initiative, courage and perseverance in your home, on the job, at school or in the civic, social or church organizations to which you belong.

Develop a love for people based on love of the Lord and you will be on the lookout for opportunities to be of service to others by humble leadership.

"The Son of Man has not come to be served but to serve." (Matthew 20:28)

Deepen in me, O divine Master, a desire to be of service to others.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Fast-Breeding Special Districts Still A Burden To State Citizens

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — While the Legislature wrestles with tax increases, tax reforms, or possible shifts in tax burdens from property owners to other sources, State Controller Alan Cranston once again has reminded Californians of the state's "fantastic jungle" of special districts.

THE CONTROLLER noted that, besides 58 counties and 382 cities, there are 1575 school districts and 3622 special districts, or a total of 5677 taxing jurisdictions.

"Worst of all . . . when you count the overlapping segments of the resulting kaleidoscope, you find 18,759 separate little tax code areas," Cranston said. "Some of these code areas include as many as 15 or 16 taxing jurisdictions.

"It's like living in the Amazon, with all sizes and varieties of alligators all around — snapping at your hip pocket," he added.

This is not a new lament with Cranston. In a Legislature as tax conscious as California's, it is a wonder the formation of these districts has been permitted over the years. However, individual legislators have taken care of individual situations for years and the hodgepodge has been the result.

WHILE COUNTY assessors often are in trouble with the voters because of increases in appraisals for assessment and county supervisors often feel the wrath of the property owner at tax time, the hundreds of little districts often go unnoticed, taking big bites out of the tax dollar.

Few people are even aware of the existence of some of these districts. Fewer still are aware when such districts hold elections, if they hold them. Governing boards often hold office through default.

THE SPECIAL district situation, in extreme cases, has produced even greater problems. An Assembly committee turned up a case in which a firm which wanted to develop some resort property formed a special district and issued bonds to finance the program. The bonds have not been repaid.

Cranston said the picture on special districts is not as black as it could be because something finally is being done about it. In 1963, the Legislature adopted a law providing for the more orderly formation of such districts, by creation of local agency formation commissions throughout the state.

"Special districts were growing at the rate of almost 200 a year—186, for example, in 1963, when the LAFCO legislation was enacted," Cranston said. "Last year, the first full calendar year of the LAFCO's, only 17 new special districts were created."

Special districts are formed for fire protection, special lighting, mosquito abatement, flood control and water conservation, irrigation, utilities and many other purposes. The 1963 legislation regulating formation of new districts may slow down the increase.

"UNDER OUR present system, the taxes on any piece of property turn out to be whatever grand total is accumulated by the various budgetary needs of whatever combination of districts the particular property lies in," Cranston said. "This means that the taxes are never fixed, and simply cannot be fixed, with carefully calculated regard to what the property taxpayer may be able to bear."

Suggestion For 'Saving' Mints

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Re: the letter from Tom Worth on the preservation of the New Orleans Mint. . . .

Here in the West, we, too, have the problem of saving the Old San Francisco Mint at Fifth and Mission Streets from demolition. The present plan seems to be razing the building to provide for another parking facility.

Inasmuch as Mr. Johnson has approved the minting of $45,000,000 new silver dollars, which undoubtedly will never see public circulation, might I suggest the sale of these dollars to the public at a premium price of two or three dollars each? This was always done with commemorative issues, so the legality is already established. The revenue could be used to finance the building of the new Philadelphia Mint, and to establish a trust fund for the preservation of the old mints as historical landmarks.

Redwoods League Seeks Site Funds

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your May 18 editorial, "Redwood Empire Bounces Back . . ." is well taken and timely.

One organization in particular, among the combined individuals and organizations responsible for the incomparable Redwood region, is the Save-the-Redwoods League. The League has helped to preserve the Redwoods so that tourists may go to visit these magnificent trees in their natural setting.

The League has campaigned for funds to purchase Redwood lands since 1910. Together with the State it has bought 100,000 acres now in 28 State Redwood Parks. Without these parks there would be few places in the Redwoods for tourists to visit.

Gold Bluffs Beach and Fern Canyon have just been purchased for the State park system for an amount exceeding $2,000,000. The League has undertaken to raise the money to buy this land with the expectation the State Legislature will see fit to match private contributions with funds from the Parks and Recreation Bond Issue.

Save-the-Redwoods League is honoring its pledge: It is actively campaigning for funds, just as it has for the last 47 years. Contributions can be sent them at 114 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

County Salaries Don't Seem Fair

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have read with considerable interest the recent series of listings of the salaries of employees of the County of Marin by departments. It amazed me to discover that the annual salary of the Director (female) of the Department of Social Services (Welfare) exceeds that of the Sheriff of Marin County by $1,500. On close study, other glaring disparities appear, too numerous to mention.

Perhaps the Independent-Journal's public service-minded action in publishing these little known facts will stir up a hornet's nest among the residents of the County when they realize that a social worker IIIB (female) is a much better paid job that that of a Deputy Sheriff (male). Might this not lead to some interdepartmental requests for transfer, if this were possible? Why should a Deputy risk his life for $6,432 annually when, with a little bit of luck, he could play "wet nurse" for $7,080?

Obviously, in the highly complex society of the 20th Century, there is a real need for Social Services in its many aspects, but it does not justify a community standing superior to that of Law Enforcement.

'No' Vote Urged On Bond Issue

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Early next monh, the voters will be asked to vote on the proposed Hall of Justice Bond Issue to become part of the County's Civic Center. This is another instance where the authorities are presenting a potentially large tax liability without information to the voting public. . . .

I cannot envision the county needing a building the size of the new Emporium in Northgate, which contains 209,000 square feet, to meet its judicial needs. If we were to assign a cost of $30 per square foot to a comparable building, it would cost $6,270,000 to construct, which would leave approximately $5 million for furnishings, probably making it the second Taj Mahal in the world.

. . . Supervisor Peter Behr stated in a recent meeting that even if we vote "no" on the bond issue, the supervisors will build the Hall of Justice on a lease-back arrangement, forming a nonprofit organization for this purpose. The lease-back arrangement could cost the taxpayers up to 100 per cent more in interest costs over a 30-year period of time.

Either road is expensive, but I urge a "no" vote on the bond issue at this time and urge the Supervisors to reflect on the additional tax burdens they will place upon the already overburdened home and property owners in this county should they decide to use a lease-back arrangement. . . .

U.N. Flag In School Is Not 'Subversion'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Maria L. Cochran's letter in your May 17 edition sounds right out of the McCarthy era. To equate distribution of the U. N. flag with "subversion" is to deprecate Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy—all supporters of the U. N. President Johnson hopes the U. N. will be the instrument to settle Viet Nam.

The county could use another hundred John Wileys. More power to him.

U.S. Education Bill Violates Tradition

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The education bill which President Johnson signed in a Texas schoolhouse last month violates our traditional American separation of Church and State. The requirement that parochial and private students benefit through "shared time" programs constitutes indirect aid to religion.

Our great public school system is one of the sustaining and supporting elements of American democracy. Federal aid to the parochial student endangers that system.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON (AP)—Whatever happened to the Communists who, President Lyndon B. Johnson said, had taken over the revolution in the Dominican Republic?

That's one of the least clear points in all the confusion — and there has been plenty — about the revolution which started April 24 and this country's role in it. There were three stages:

1. When this country didn't even mention the Reds as a problem.
2. When this country said they had seized control of the revolution.
3. Now when U. S. officials say the Reds are not in control.

Throughout there has been one major figure, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, who has been in command of the rebels from the beginning and through all three stages.

WHEN JOHNSON sent in the Marines April 28, he said the purpose was to save American lives in the upheaval. U. S. officials, further explaining, said this country was taking no sides.

Caamano was the rebel commander a that time.

A few days later, May 2, Johnson announced the U. S. goal in the Dominican Republic was to prevent a Communist takeover.

He explained in a nationwide broadcast: "What began as a popular democratic revolution committed to democracy and social justice very shortly moved and was taken over and really seized and placed into the hands of a band of Communist conspirators."

BUT ON THAT DATE Caamano was still called the commander.

Now Sunday, three weeks later, the Associated Press from Santo Domingo reported U. S. officials are said to be convinced that Communist leaders no longer dominate the rebel command.

The U. S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, Ellsworth Bunker, was reported as saying:

"The U. S. forces in the Dominican Republic are not there to support either side against the other."

The A. P. also said that in the view of the men shaping American policy there the Communist threat remains serious and would quickly erupt into a new bid for power and a second Cuba if U. S. troops were withdrawn.

Various groups have been involved in the revolution. And no doubt Communists were. A revolution is made to order for them. Nor can there be any doubt that in the Dominican Republic, as elsewhere, they would turn it into a Communist state if they could.

But this question, despite the various official statements, hasn't been answered:

IF CAAMANO was rebel commander all the way through — even when Johnson said the Reds had taken control of the revolution — was Caamano under their thumb? This writer has seen nothing to indicate he was. But, if he was, what has happened to the thumb?

Or was the information Johnson got about events in the Dominican Republic wrong or exaggerated?

But this isn't the only confusion.

Last week when the civilian-military junta attacked Caamano's rebels, there were printed reports in this country that the Marines helped the junta.

Johnson's press secretary, George Reedy, said: "The president's instructions to the troops when they were sent in were to observe neutrality."

BUT WHY WOULD they remain neutral if they were sent in to prevent a Communist takeover and the Communists had control of the revolution? Could their very presence be called neutral when sending them in was an anti-Communist action?

But Secretary of State Dean Rusk says this country is pursuing a policy of "complete neutrality" in the Dominican Republic.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

U.S. Threatens Slash In Dominicans' Funds

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Lyndon B. Johnson's policy-makers are using U. S. aid as a major diplomatic lever to force a coalition government in the strife-torn Dominican Republic.

Under Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy's personal direction, these free-wheeling diplomats are delaying or threatening to withhold approximately $25 million in economic and military aid until Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras includes members of the Communist-infiltrated rebel forces in a provisional government.

IN THIS STRANGE diplomatic maneuvering, the Bundy group is flatly demanding that General Imbert install supporters for former President Juan Bosch as recommended by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the rebel movement, or face an indefinite freeze of U. S. aid.

Since the outbreak of fighting in Santo Domingo, the Bundy group has succeeded in embargoing a large amount of the $22.2 million in economic-military aid voted by Congress for fiscal year 1965, which ends June 30.

In addition to this aid freeze, General Imbert was informed that future U. S. aid depends on his cooperation in forming a coalition government, which would include neutrals and pro-Communists.

This proposed aid, being dangled by U. S. authorities before General Imbert, totals $14 million in economic and $2.4 million in military funds earmarked for the republic in the Johnson administration's $3.3 billion foreign aid budget now before Congress.

While General Imbert is making it clear his government needs and wants U. S. assistance, he has rejected the Bundy ultimatum, warning that a coalition government would lead to a Communist take-over and an anti-U. S. government in the Dominican Republic.

According to congressional leaders probing the backstage diplomatic activities of the Bundy faction, these pressure tactics are comparable to those that brought Fidel Castro to power in Cuba, and led to the ouster and assassination of President Diem in South Viet Nam.

IN THOSE TRAGIC cases, State Department authorities, with White House approval, cut off or drastically reduced aid to the pro-U. S. governments, which were then toppled by internal forces. In Cuba the freeze on U. S. arms during the Eisenhower administration directly helped Castro oust Batista, and led to a Communist regime.

While insiders report the Bundy group's secret objective in the Dominican Republic is to establish a "neutral or third force" government, many legislators are firmly convinced the outcome would be the same as in Cuba—a Communist regime controlled by Moscow.

Why President Johnson does not order his policy-makers and diplomats to throw this government's full political and economic weight behind the civilian-military junta of General Imbert is one of the unexplained mysteries of the present Dominican crisis.

Untrammeled Journalism Shines Forth In Bel Aire School Paper

ANOTHER ISSUE of the Bel Aire School Journal has just come off the presses.

"What is misery?" is the question, and Sam Dakin wrote that "Misery is staying after school on Friday, misery is having to eat liver."

In the agony column, someone wrote asking why people don't like nature and signed it "Naturific."

"Dear Naturific," came the answer. "Some people like nature but they think they will be thought a sissy if they say that they like nature. But other people just don't like beautiful things."

THEN THERE IS news from Miss Kluchnik's sixth grade:

"Miss Kluchnik was given two soft bunnies for an Easter present. These bunnies are two or three months old. Fuzzy and Wuzzy live in Room 18 all week and are cared for by the class. Every Friday someone is given permission to take the bunnies home."

Under the headline "Chalk Fun":

"For open house, Mrs. Basom's class made murals out of chalk. They were early transportation and communication, the gold rush, mission days, explorers and Indian life. They were fun to make and turned out very well."

"What happiness is" was the question and the answers were:

Writing About Cowboys Relaxes Politics-Jaded Columnist Art

WASHINGTON—Whenever I get tired writing about politics, I like to write a cowboy script. I've been working on one lately about Lyndon Baines, the famous mayor of Great Bird Falls.

"NOW FOLKS," he says, "Ah'm happy to announce that everyone is going to get more water, more schooling, and better medical care, and it is my intention to see that Great Bird Falls becomes the most wonderful town in the country and its citizens the happiest people in the world."

The townspeople cheer, but suddenly a cowboy rides into town, jumps off his horse and says breathlessly, "The Shawnees are fightin with the Blackfeet Indians, mayor."

"That's no concern of ours," the mayor says.

"But the Blackfeet are being led by Apaches."

"Apaches?" says the mayor incredulously. "How do you know?"

"I have the names of 53 Apaches here in my pocket who are fighting on the side of the Blackfeet."

"WHERE DID YOU get this list?" the mayor wants to know.

"It was given to me by the Shawnees."

The mayor is grim. "We have no choice but to send in the cavalry to protect the lives of the white women and children."

"But there are no white women and children in the area."

"We'll send some in with the cavalry," the mayor says.

The next scene shows the U. S. cavalry riding up the canyon into Indian territory. They arrive just as the Blackfeet are about to attack the Shawnees.

The cavalry takes up positions between the two tribes and the colonel announces he has come to protect the lives and property of the white man.

The colonel demands that the Blackfeet surrender and give up their Apaches. The chief of the Blackfeet denies he has any Apaches in his tribe.

"WE ANTI - APACHE," he tells the colonel. "All Blackfeet want is freedom."

The colnel goes to see the chief of the Shawnees and asks him to give up, but the chief says the Shawnees are the only ones who can keep the territory from going Apache. He demands the right to clean out the Blackfeet once and for all.

The mayor dispatches four deputies who meet with the chiefs and ask them to form a coalition tribe made up of Shawnees and Blackfeet.

Both chiefs say, "Ugh."

The mayor finally calls on the Orangization of Indian Chiefs to help him out.

The grizzled chief of the organization says to the mayor, "How!"

2 Apply For Education Board Post

Two persons have applied for a vacancy on the Marin County Board of Education but their names will not be known until the board takes action June 7.

The vacancy was created by resignation of Ben Roark Jr. representing area 6 which, included Point Reyes, Bolinas-Stinson and West Marin school districts.

The board of education decided by a 6-1 vote, with member James A. Carroll dissenting, that all applications for the job should be kept secret.

County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis said he and the interview committee will meet at the Civic Center in closed session tomorrow to talk to the two candidates, and will make a recommendation to the board of education June 7.

Increased commercial TV programs in Great Britain has resulted in the non-commercial BBC altering its program structure somewhat in order to meet the commercial competition.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

What You Can't See Might Still Kill You At Bridge

A certain school of philosophy teaches that what you cannot see does not exist.

If you follow this principle when you play bridge you'd better not look at the scorepad.

Opening lead — ♠ K

West led the king of spades, and East played the encouraging nine. East could see no threat and therefore acted as though no threat existed.

SOUTH RUFFS

East shifted to the jack of clubs, but it was too late. South took the ace of clubs and discarded two clubs from dummy on his high diamonds. The rest was easy, and South scored game and rubber.

It wasn't necessary to peek at the South hand to know that it contained some good cards. Surely South had not bid five hearts simply to hear the sound of his voice.

GOOD DIAMONDS

If South had good diamonds he could discard dummy's clubs by setting up his diamonds.

If South had good clubs, he could not discard dummy's diamond on a club. Hence it was both safe and necessary for East to attack clubs at the first opportunity.

East should overtake the king of spades with the ace to return the jack of clubs at once.

CLUB TRICKS

When East gets in with the ace of diamonds he can continue with the jack of clubs to make sure of two club tricks.

South goes down two instead of making five hearts, and this makes a difference of about a thousand points. If you can't see a thousand points, try persuading your partner that they don't exist.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ 7 6 4 2
♥ A 10 9 8 3
♦ 2
♣ 8 5 3

What do you say?
Answer: Bid two spades.

You can count 3 points for the singleton when you have 4-card support for partner's suit. The total of 7 points is enough for a raise.

The Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) was founded in London in 1855 by a group of Christian women who met as a prayer circle and determined to improve the conditions of working girls by providing decent housing and good food for those living away from home.

ALMANAC

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

Al Jolson, the American singer and comedian was born on this day in 1886.

On this day in history:

In 1937, members of the Ford factory police attacked and beat Walter Reuther and Richard Frankensteen. The two officials of the United Automobile Workers Union were supervising the distribution of a pamphlet demanding the end of Ford's policy of guaranteeing an open shop.

A thought for the day—English Poet Robert Browning once wrote: "What I aspired to be, and was not, comforts me."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

RESOLUTION NO. 4038 N.S.
RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MILL VALLEY GIVING NOTICE OF PROPOSED ANNEXATION

WHEREAS, the City of Mill Valley desires to annex the territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY RESOLVED, ORDERED AND DECLARED:

1. The City Council of the City of Mill Valley does hereby give notice of its intention to annex to said City that certain territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference. Annexation proceedings will be conducted pursuant to the Annexation of Uninhabited Territory Act of 1939.

2. The proceedings for the annexation of said territory have been initiated by the City Council of the City of Mill Valley on its own motion and the reason why it desires such annexation is that said territory, because of its location, topography and other features will be benefited by the municipal services of said City.

3. Said annexation shall be designated as the "Alto Bowl No. 1 Annexation".

4. Notice is hereby given that on the 21st day of June, 1965, at 8:00 o'clock P.M. of said day, or as soon thereafter as said matter may be heard, in the Council Chambers in the City Hall, Mill Valley, California, the City Council of the City of Mill Valley, will meet to hear written protests against the annexation made by any person owning real property within said territory proposed for annexation.

5. That the City Clerk be, and he is hereby directed to cause a copy of this resolution to be published in the manner prescribed by Section 35311 of the Government Code of the State of California, and said clerk is further directed to cause such other notices of the proposed annexation to be given as may be required by said section.

PASSED AND ADOPTED at a meeting of the City Council of the City of Mill Valley on the 3rd day of May, 1965, by the following vote:
AYES: Councilmen Wickham, White, Sheeks, Mayor Wornum

Let's Have Less Squirt

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — City hall's water fountain will be just a little squirt—about 18 inches of spouting water.

Maintenance chief George Hendrix had a wet time making this decision. Wind kept blowing higher spouts off path, and the water landed on concrete walks instead of in the fountain. Several times it got out of control and shot about 50 feet into the air.

Finally they settled for a little squirt.

President 'Sold' At Auction

He was "sold" in a UNM Student project to raise funds for charity.

Religion Divides German Schools

By JOHN DORNBERG
Worldwide Press Service

BONN — At the elementary school in Kuedinghoven, a village of 1,800 near here, the childrens' lavatories are divided not only according to sex but along denominational lines as well.

The separate lavatories for girls and boys are further divided into separate lavatories for Protestant and for Catholic girls and boys.

This example of religious apartheid is symbolic of one of the most controversial issues in West Germany today: the division of public schools along denominational lines.

For many years this issue has been simmering just below the boiling point. Now it threatens to bubble over—thanks largely to a concordat signed between the Vatican and the West German state of Lower Saxony which will give the province's Catholic minority a long list of new rights and privileges in the public school system.

The concordat, arranged by Lower Saxony's Social Democratic government, has already split the state's coalition administration between the SPD and the middle-of-the-road, third force Free Democrats. What's more, it is likely to have repercussions on the Federal Republic's September general elections.

But all that is secondary to the denominational schools issue itself. In only three of West Germany's 11 states are public schools truly secular and non - denominational — in the city-states of Hamburg, Bremen and West Berlin which, between them, account for only 362,000 of the Federal Republic's nearly six million primary-school children.

In most of the rest of West Germany, education is largely church-influenced—either by the Catholic Church or the German Lutheran Evangelical churches.

More than half of West Germany's school children attend public schools divided along denominational lines—Catholic or Protestant—in which they are required to participate in religious instruction, along denominational lines, and attend church under the supervision of their teachers a couple of times a week.

The remainder attend institutions described officially as "Christian but non-denominational"—which, in practice has come to mean that they are Protestant in outlook.

In addition to the obvious differences between the two types of schools arising from their religious origins, the choice of school books in the one or the other is dictated largely by the churches that influence them and the teachers are appointed according to their denominational affiliation.

The truly secular school in which religious instruction has either been abolished or reduced to a bare minimum is virtually non-existant. Parents who insist on this are generally forced to send their children to private schools and pay tuition.

In a few areas a genuine effort has been made at "communal" schools in which both denominations are represented equally and given instruction according to the faith of their choice by special teachers—pastors or priests—brought in for several hours each week for religion courses. In practice, however, this system has failed abysmally as it has in the village of Kuedinghoven and has degenerated into segregation.

If it does not always lead to separate lavatories, it has on occasion gone so far that even the bicycle racks in the school yard are divided along religious lines: Catholic bicycles to the right, Protestant ones to the left—often under signs so labeled.

Even more disturbing problems can arise in schools of one denomination attended, for convenience, by children of the opposite faith. For example, a Protestant parent in Aachen recently reported that his child, attending a Catholic school, had been forced to remove the sausages from his sandwiches during mid-morning snacks on (no meat Fridays.

It should be noted that all these types of schools are public-run, not church-run. Indeed Article 7 of West Germany's constitution specifically states that, "Religious instruction shall form part of the ordinary curriculum in state and municipal schools except in secular schools."

To Americans, accustomed to the traditional separation of church and State, this situation may seem like a remnant of the Middle Ages. In a sense it is. For though the Peace of Westphalia put an end to the Thirty Years War in 1648, religious schism has continued as a factor in German life. To reduce overt trouble, German rulers ever since have taken the course of least resistance by granting both major churches an ever larger voice in public affairs.

For example, donations in Germany's churches are virtually unheard of. Pastors and priests do not need to pass the tray. They get their money through an official tithe—one-tenth of the income tax—which is collected by the state, in their behalf, right along with other paycheck withholdings.

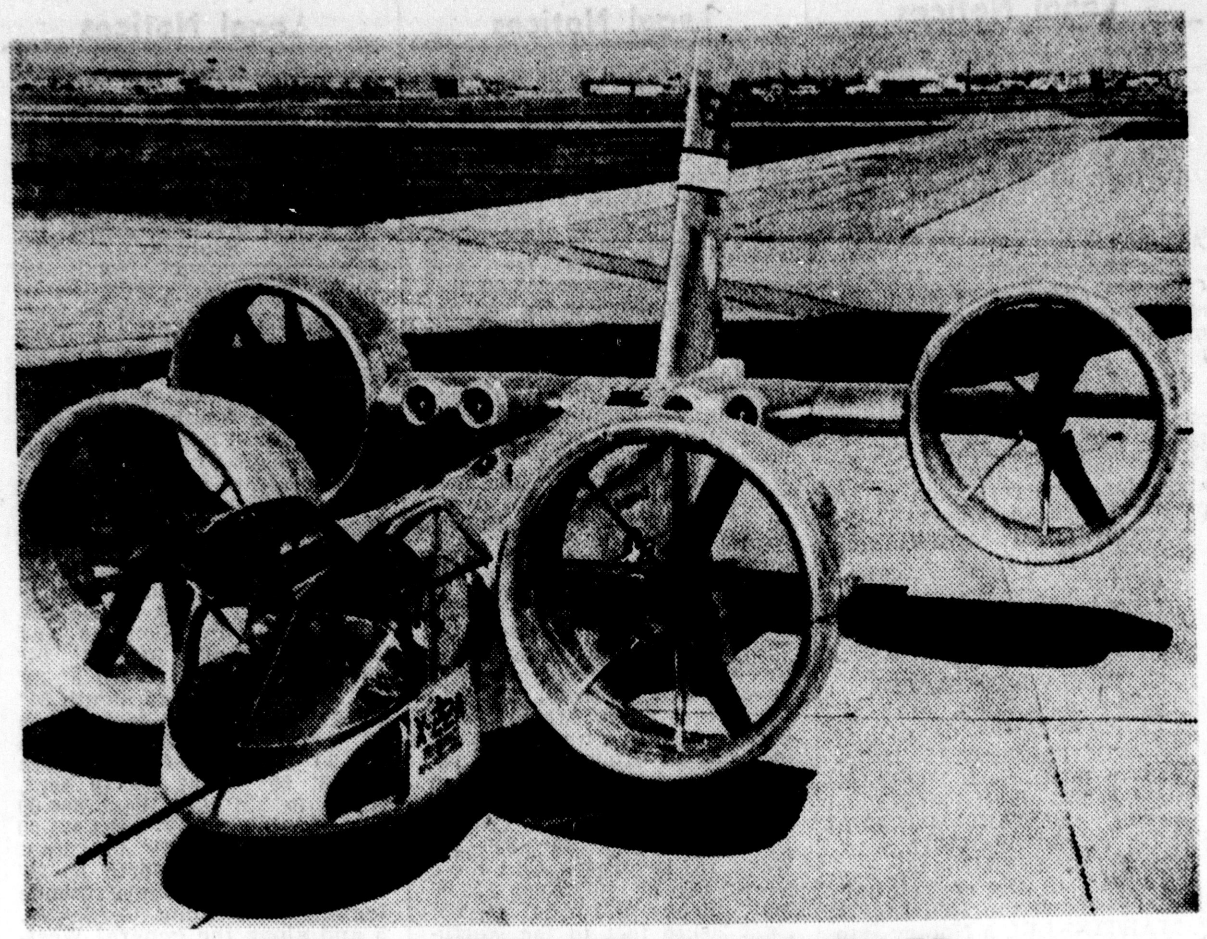
According to a recent poll by the Emnid Institute, 71 per cent of German parents favor non-denominational schools. To bring this about, however, requires a constitutional amendment, and chances for that are slim.

The issue, which in the past was confined largely to debate in the home or in the columns of esoteric monthly magazines, has now been brought into the open by the concordat between Rome and Lower Saxony.

This agreement was dictated largely by the desparate desire of the Social Democratic Party for victory next September, and the feeling that something must be done to capture Catholic votes.

But it has touched off a storm of controversy in West Germany which may backfire—largely because Lower Saxony's school system was relatively progressive and on the way to wider secularization.

Commented Hamburg's influential weekly, Die Zeit: "The common goal of all people interested in education in Germany has been the eventual abolition of the denominational school. It took the SPD—once in the forefront of this effort but now obstensibly motivated by tactical political considerations—to turn the clock backwards. This is all the more surprising because the SPD is supposed to be a party looking toward the future, a party which boasts of a certain measure of attraction for intellectuals."



NEW AIRCRAFT IS UNVEILED

The X22-a, a prototype of an aircraft designed for three military services that someday could be used in limited warfare of congested traffic areas, was unveiled at Niagara Falls, N.Y., yesterday. The X-22a was designed as a trainer for vertical takeoff and landings by student pilots. It will be used by the Navy, Army and Air Force.

County Asked For Continued Aid To Elderly

The Marin Council of Community Services has asked that its contract with the county to provide coordination for senior citizen services be continued for another year at cost to the county of $16,718.

This is $576 over the current budget, the increase being reflected primarily in a proposed raise in the salary of coordinator Richard Phenix from $9,600 to $10,080.

County Administrator Alan Bruce had recommended that senior citizen coordination be made an operation of the County Department of Social Service (welfare, which might be able to get state and federal aid.

Bruce said today he might reconsider the proposal if the contract with the council is to go for only one more year. In his budget, Bruce recommended that the same allocation be approved under the council contract for fiscal 1966 should the board of supervisors decide against the switch to welfare.

The contract covers only coordination of senior citizen functions and does not include other functions of the council, including coordination and planning of health services in the county.

The other functions are supported by the Bay Area United Crusade. This year the allocation totals $19,831 and mostly pays the council staff.

Two Marin Girls Due Scholarships

Two Marin girls have been selected for University of California scholarships.

Judith Gail Parsons, a senior at San Rafael High School, was awarded a regents scholarship. Judith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Parsons Jr., 536 Belle Avenue, San Rafael, plans to attend UC at Berkeley.

Elaine Marie Robba, a senior at Tamalpais High School, was awarded a president's scholarship. Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Robba, 12 Valley Circle, Mill Valley, also plans to study at the Berkeley campus.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

'Parrot Fever' Is Fowl Disease That Can Be Fatal For Humans

VAN DELLEN

Psittacosis is called parrot fever because, originally, members of the parrot family were thought to be the only carriers of the disease. Pigeons, ducks, domestic fowl, sea gulls, canaries, finches, and petrels transmit the causative organism. Many authorities prefer the term ornithosis.

Man develops the condition by inhaling dust containing droppings from infected birds. Prolonged exposure is not necessary as the disease has occurred among those feeding pigeons in public parks and on sidewalks. A famous eye specialist developed the malady from infected pigeons that roosted on his window sill. The elderly are unusually susceptible. Poultry workers contract the disease periodically. The attack is likely to be mild, possibly because some immunity develops.

MOST VICTIMS develop an atypical pneumonia with bronchitis and symptoms resembling influenza. Now and then, initial complaints are an intense headache with insomnia, suggesting brain involvement. In others, gastrointestinal complaints such as vomiting and abdominal pain predominate.

There have been epidemics of psittacosis on several occasions. One of the worst was traced to a shipment of 5,000 parakeets imported into Argentina from Brazil for auction. The birds obviously were sick and the managers were anxious to sell as many as possible. Many died and the rest were shipped to 12 different countries. The end result was 750 to 800 human cases, many of whom died.

DIAGNOSIS IS made by examining the blood and sputum. The chest X-ray usually shows an area of pneumonia that takes weeks to clear. The tetracycline group of antibiotics is the best remedy.

Avoid domesticated birds that appear to be ill. In addition, never purchase a tropical bird except from an established dealer. Epidemics in the United States have resulted in a strict quarantine and inspection of imported birds.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

SECOND CHILDHOOD

T. E. writes: What are the symptoms of senility?

REPLY

I would say feebleness of mind and body. Shakespeare said, "Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans everything."

Sir Walter Scott wrote:

"Thus aged men, full loth and slow,
The vanities of life forego,
And count their youthful follies o'er,
Till memory lends her light no more."

DIFFERENT BLOOD TYPES

Mrs. X writes: I have three children and each is a different blood type. Why?

REPLY

This is not unusual when parents have different blood types. For example, if one is group A and the other group B, the offspring may be O, A, B, or AB. Thus the blood of your fourth child may differ from that of the others.

CIRCLES UNDER EYES

S. H. writes: How do you get rid of dark, baggy circles under the eyes if sleep doesn't seem to help? P. S. They are not natural or hereditary.

REPLY

This is not easy to do except with cosmetics. An examination is suggested to make sure there is no internal disorder involving skin pigment.

NERVOUS CHILLS

F. L. B. writes: Is there something called nervous chills?

REPLY

Yes, in that some persons tell of a "chill going down their spine" and develop goose-flesh during unpleasant situations.

Dominican Convent Tennis Tournament

Trudy Vantress of Marysville defeated Sandra Donnell of San Rafael 9-7 in the eighth grade singles final of the Dominican Convent lower school division tennis playoffs yesterday.

Kathy Kennedy upset Kisty Cutter 6-2 to win the sixth grade playoffs. Both girls are from Mill Valley. Sally Sullivan seventh grader of Kent Woodlands, won the 1965 Tennis Sportsmanship trophy.

Winning achievement awards in the annual backboard competition were Pamela Bergman and Catherine Parks of San Rafael, both fourth graders.

Mexican Art Shown At Fair

President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, shortly after his election last year, ordered Mexico's display at the fair changed. All industrial exhibits were removed and emphasis was placed on native art.

A-Weapons To Stay At Front

McNamara issued his statement yesterday in response to an inquiry about published reports he had decided to pull back tactical nuclear weapons currently with forward elements in Europe.

A Chicago Tribune story along those lines was disputed Monday by the Pentagon which said it contained "inaccuracies and distortions." But the Washington Post said yesterday the denial "left the core of the (Tribune) story unchallenged."

U.N. Flags Used As Teaching Aides

United Nations flags given to Reed School District by United World Federalists two weeks ago are being used as aids in teaching about the U.N., a curriculum subject required by state law, Supt Edward C. Pino said today.

Each school in the district was given a flag by the Marin chapter of the Federalists in ceremonies May 11.

Listeners may call in questions during the broadcast, according to moderator Kitty Oppenheimer. The hour-long program will be taped for replay at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Mrs. Johnson Due In Washington Tour

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will be hostess of a one-hour television tour of Washington, in color, which ABC-TV says it has scheduled for the fall.

The producers of the special are John H. Secondari and Helen Jean Rogers, the husband and wife team responsible for the notable "Saga of Western Man" series of documentaries in the last two video seasons.

According to ABC-TV, the First Lady, in addition to the tour and look at national landmarks, will describe what has been done and what is being considered to resist urban decay and to maintain and increase the city's beauty.

The network adds that Mrs. Johnson, who is chairman of a committee for a more beautiful capital, will emphasize what Washington hopes to do to provideo model for the nation, and how individuals around the country can contribute to beautifying their own areas.

On Monday, Mrs. Johnson opened the White House conference on natural beauty, saying, "ugliness is bitterness."

An ABC-TV spokesman says the First Lady's program will be entirely different from Mrs. John F. Kennedy's televised White House tour.

Secondari, who is currently in Washington working on the special with his wife, said yesterday by telephone that he plans only "one or perhaps two" setups inside the White House. One, in the Oval Room, will start the show, he said.

Secondari said he estimated Mrs. Johnson would be on-camera for about 10 minutes, and that her narration would be employed in addition. "She appears at the key spots which are absolutely essential to tell the story of the past, present and future," he said.

The producer said that Mrs. Johnson's personal knowledge of the program's subject was contributing greatly to the content.

"She's astounding," he said. "She lives and breathes this."

THE CHANNEL SWIM: Govs. John McKeithen of Louisiana and Carl Sanders of Georgia discuss the voting rights bill on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" Sunday. . .Highlights of the "Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge" dinner and patriotic ball held by the women's division of the Los Angeles County chapter are presented as a one hour special on NBC-TV Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT, with Bob Hope as master of ceremonies.

Adventure TV Films Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Geographic Society announced it will participate in the broadcast of four hour-long television adventure documentaries next season.

The four exploration and discovery films will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS). The first, "Americans on Everest," will be telecast Sept. 10.

The others are about a female naturalist who studied chimpanzees in their native habitat in Africa, a round-the-world-voyage by the brigantine Yankee and about underwater research in "The World of Jacques Vyes-Cousteau."

Humphrey 'Good As A Minister'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., belives Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey may have missed his true vocation.

When Humphrey, a former Sunday school teacher, finished addressing an international prayer breakfast at the Capitol yesterday, Jordan said:

"If they ever take the vice presidency away from you I can get you a church."

Castro Sister Aids Refugees

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Juanita Castro, the Cuban dictator's exiled sister, said today the Marta Abreau Foundation which she established here will subsidize a Cuban refugee center in Jamaica.

Miss Castro said the help was offered after the Rev. Dormouth Verley, who operates the refugee haven in Kingston, informed her it was without funds.

Associates said Miss Castro set up the foundation with her own resources but soon will start a fund-raising campaign.

Aged Income Tax Proposal Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has removed from the House-passed Social Security-health-care bill a provision to lower income-tax benefits for the aged.

Under present law, persons over 65 can deduct all medical expenses in figuring their income taxes. Younger taxpayers can deduct medical expenses exceeding 3 per cent of their gross income, and medicine and drug costs exceeding 1 per cent.

A provision in the House Bill would have required persons over 65 to use the 3-and-1 per cent limits in figuring income taxes, but the Senate committee approved Tuesday an amendment by Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., to erase the section.

Tennessee Valley Horse Show Slated

Northern California riders will take part in the Tennessee Valley Riders' third annual horse show June 6, starting 9 a.m., at the stables on Tennessee Valley Road.

Reservations may be obtained through Eileen Fordyce of 15 Teal Road, Belvedere.

Two Confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday confirmed the appointment of Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) Chairman Alan S. Boyd to be undersecretary of commerce. The nomination of Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy to succeed Boyd was also approved.

Talk On Marincello

ARTIST PRACTICES FOR SHOW

Annual Art Show Slated At Center

Marin artists will spread their wares along the Corte Madera Center mall in the fourth annual art show there sponsored by the Marin Society of Artists tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

The show will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. On Saturday, as a special feature, seven artists will set up shop on the mall for "art in action," exhibiting the artist at work.

The public, by its votes, will select the work to receive one of the four $50 prizes in the show.

There also will be $50 prizes each for representational and abstract paintings or drawings and one for sculpture, will be awarded by a jury selection. In these three groups, there will also be a second prize of $25. The works shown will also be for sale.

Artists participating in the "art in action" show will be Kenneth Potter, watercolors; Mary Ann Fries, portraits; Maggie Leitner, collage; Louis Ferrario, pottery; Jack Haehl, vermiculite sculpture; Jim Munson, clay sculpture, and Carol Cunningham, silk screen.

The prize money will be from the merchants of the Corte Madera Shopping Center. Gordon Fransworth is chairman.

Simple Solution For New Room

CHICAGO (UPI) — A simple solution to that yen for a new room is a room divider system.

It's not easy and it's not inexpensive to knock down interior walls or put up permanent new ones, but room dividers are something else again.

Room dividers consisting of floor to ceiling pressure poles and screw-on panels make it easy to re-do an interior.

And unlike new, permanent walls, room divider systems can be easily dismantled for yet another interior partitioning attempt.

Cat Starts Fire

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Curiosity nearly killed E. T. Beasley's cat. It also started a fire in Beasley's home. The curious feline got into Beasley's radio in his den and bit into a wire. The cat burned its mouth and started a small blaze which necessitated calling firemen.

Patron's Choice Show Is Slated For Artists

From the time the Marin Society of Artists opened the gallery at the Art and Garden Center, its finest effort of each year, the annual show, was held in conjunction with the Art and Garden Fair, partly to give the fair the best the group could offer and partly because the fair provided a huge captive audience for art work.

Artists saved their most ambitious works for the annual and the best possible professional juries were obtained to select this most important show.

However, as professional quality improved, so did the criticism from viewers. The Marin Society of Artists was accused of trying to foist off modern, "far out" work on a public which prefered traditional, representational painting and sculpture.

Some viewers were so incensed that they wrote letters of protest to the Independent-Journal, and the newspaper itself editorialized with some fairly harsh criticism.

Feeling a responsibility for giving the community what it "likes" for the fair at least, the Marin Society of Artists under 1964 president, Lotte McWatters, postponed the annual until September and established the first "Patron's Choice Show."

Non-artist community leaders were asked to be the jury. The result? A good show generally, and certainly one that the public seemed to enjoy and appreciate. As might be expected however, it was more conservative than in previous years.

A few of the artists felt that the whole scheme was rather like allowing the patient to operate on the doctor, but most were good natured. At least, good natured enough to be willing to try it again this year.

Rental Gallery Is Best Outlet For Original Art

Undoubtedly the biggest and best outlet for original art work in Marin County is the Rental Gallery established by the Marin Society of Artists.

Patrons may view the paintings at the Francis Young Gallery during the semi-annual Rental Shows in May and November, or in the rental racks at the rear of the gallery throughout the year.

Then they may try a painting in their homes or offices for three months for as little as five dollars. If the rentor decides to buy, his rental fees may be applied to purchase price.

This easy method for obtaining and enjoying original art work inexpensively has grown beyond the fondest dreams of the founders.

Started modestly in 1955 under the inspiration of Adolaine Cadogan, the first chairman, the project has grown to the point where over 1,400 paintings are out on rental at one time. At this month's opening 137 pictures were rented off the walls.

What kinds of paintings do patrons prefer? Many enjoy the color and design of an abstract. Some like the fun of a non-representational "conversation piece." But, the largest proportion of renters seek out the Marin landscapes or seascapes that go well in their homes.

Few of these pictures, however, are photographic in approach these days, for while their subjects continue to be canals, boats, trees, barns, gulls and marshes, these familiar themes are depicted with more color, verve and imagination than ever before.

BBC Announcer 'Carries On' With False Teeth

LONDON (AP) — Within minutes listeners were calling the British Broadcasting Company wanting to know "what has gone wrong with the newsreader?"

BBC radio news announcer Michael Brooke, 60, had just begun to read the 10:30 p.m. news when his upper plate cracked. Undeterred by this dental mishap he carried on reading, although his voice seemed strangely muffled.

"For no apparent reason," Brooke said later, "the top set of false teeth cracked just as I was about to read. It was terribly embarrassing but I carried on as best I could."

Brooke, who has been a news announcer for 25 years, stuck the upper plate together with sticky tape and was able to read the 11:30 p.m. news without difficulty. There were no complaints.

The next morning he went to the dentist.

Age Affects Diets

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI)—Older persons need fewer calories than they did in middle age. Many, however, continue to eat as they did at 45 and become overweight. A U. S. Agriculture Department survey in this area showed one - third of its oldsters were overweight and most of them were women. They had sound diets but ate too much, the department said.

Rural Hungarians Aid Mouse Drive

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungarian children have been urged to help rid the country of mice—a major pest which is threatening this year's harvest.

The antimouse drive was ordered by the Hungarian Ministry of Agriculture—children included—have been asked to take part.

Hungary's considerable mouse population caused several hundred million dollars damage to the agriculture last year, deputy agriculture minister Janos Keseru said in an article in the Hungarian Communist Party daily Nepszabadsag recently. The harvest census showed that their numbers have increased alarmingly meanwhile.

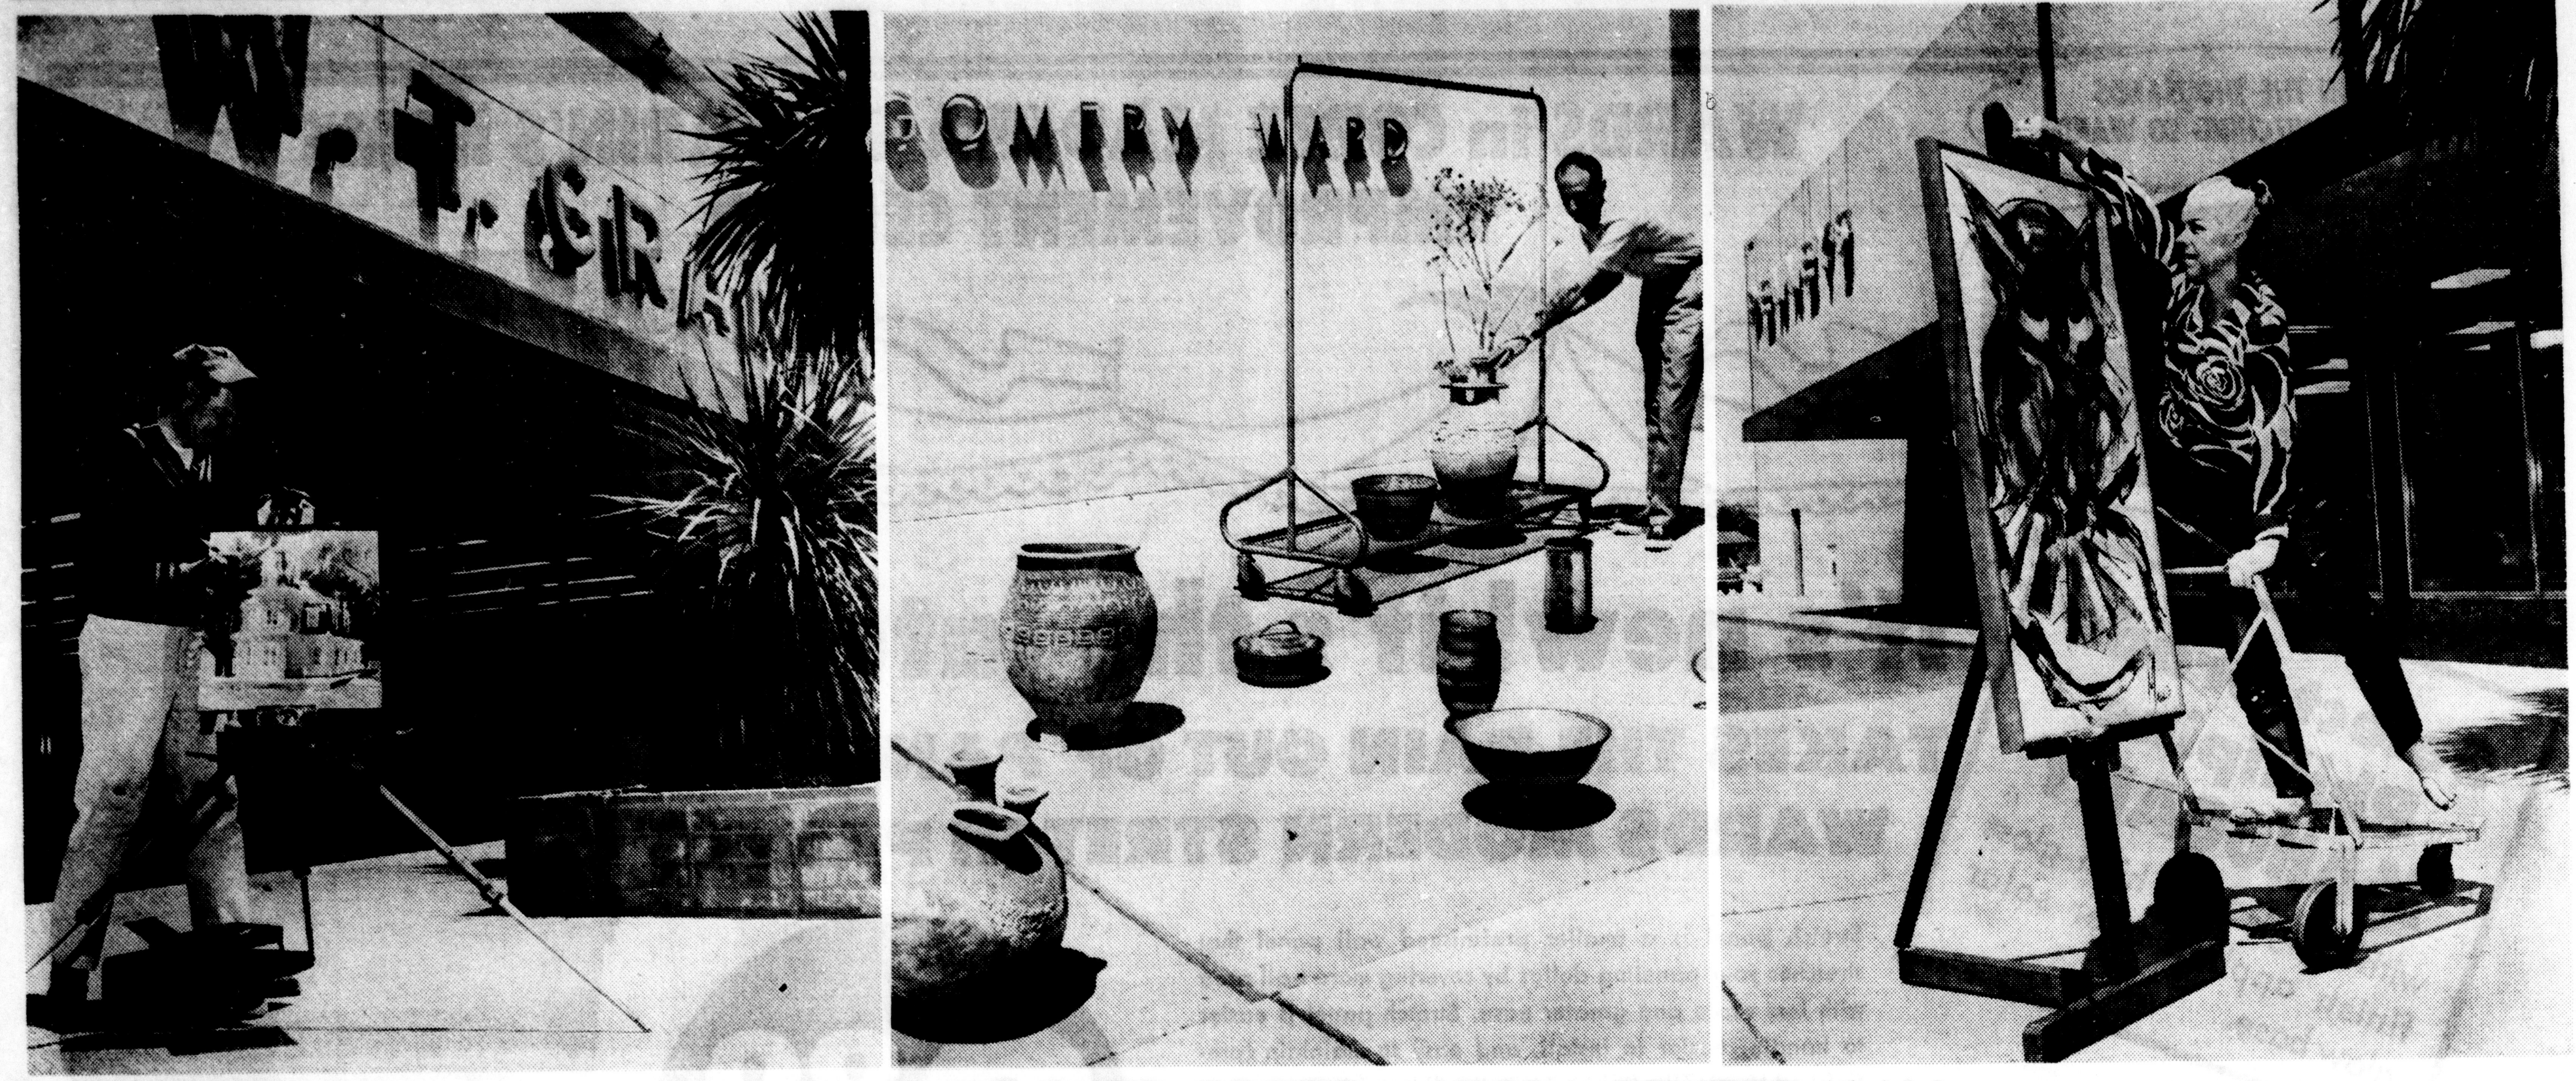
MONTGOMERY WARD IN CORTE MADERA SHOPPING CENTER



ARTISTS TAKE OVER CORTE MADERA CENTER MALL

Painters and ceramicists busy themselves today preparing their works for their debut tomorrow in the mall of the Corte Madera Shopping Center, under sponsorship of the Marin Society of Artists. Watercolor painter Kenneth Potter (left) completes his representation of the historic Lyford mansion, now the headquarters of the Audubon Society, at Tiburon. Potter, a painter and teacher, lives at 105 Eonora Way, Corte Madera. Arranging a display of works from his ceramics studio at 102 E. Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, is Louis Ferrario (center), who has taught at College of Marin, San Francisco State College and San Rafael High School. Maggie Leitner (right) stretches gracefully to set up her painting "Whoot Cares" for the center's Fourt Annual Art Show which will run tomorrow through Saturday.

Art Show's Participants Boast Experience, Talent

Here is something about the Marin artists whose works will be displayed in art-in-action tomorrow, Friday and Saturday at the Corte Madera Center. Many prizes, offered through center merchants, will be offered the artists.

They are:

Carol Cunningham, a Mill Valley resident, does silk screening and works in oils and watercolors. Her work has been in various shows throughout the State.

Louis Ferrario, potter, has exhibited in local, State and national shows, and his work has been sold in a number of retail stores. He has taught at the College of Marin, and was head of the Ceramic Department at San Francisco State College. He is currently teaching part-time at San Rafael High School, in addition to conducting private studio classes.

Mary Ann Fries, who specializes in portraits in oils or pastels, studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and was the recipient of one of the institution's traveling scholarships to Europe. After studying abroad she married and devoted herself primarily to raising six children. Now that her youngest child is a teen-ager, she has more time to devote to her numerous portrait commissions.

Jack Haehl, sculptor and painter, is head of the Art Department at Terra Linda High School. He has exhibited in both California and Arizona.

Maggie Leitner, the wife of Dr. Jerome Leitner, works in collage, oil, and watercolor, and has had several local exhibits of her work.

Jim Munson, a sculptor and graphic artist, studied at the University of Nebraska and San Francisco State College, and is now co-owner of an art school called The Studio in Terra Linda.

Kenneth Potter is the winner of many awards in local, California, national, and foreign competitions, and has had numerous one-man shows and commissions. He works in watercolor, oil, casein, collage, drawing, and serigraphy, and makes his home in Corte Madera with his wife and young red - headed charmer named Katie.

Lawmakers Storm Over State Bird

The House Waterways Committee has endorsed, 23-4, a bill to make the purple martin the new state bird.

Rep. John Morris, D-Chadwick Ill., the principal sponsor of the legislation, says there's nothing sacred about the cardinal.

"Besides, the purple martin consumes insects."

Morris contends that promotion of the purple martin would stimulate a bird-house building firm in Griggsville, Ill., which calls itself the "purple martin capital" of the nation.

Rep. Charles Clabaugh, R-Champaign, Ill., objects.

"It offends me that we should change the state bird on the basis of commercialism," he said.

Another First For Negro Judge

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—H. B. Daniels, the first Negro judge to sit in Arizona, is used to being first.

In 1925 he was the first Negro football player ever on the Tucson High School team.

Daniels, 57, has been named a Phoenix city magistrate.

Common Ground

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — There's a wide age range in the student body at University of Michigan, from the 44 youngest who are 16 to the oldest student, who is 71. A report prepared by the Office of Registration and Records shows there were 40 students age 60 and over at the beginning of the 1964 fall term.

One Night It Rained Cookies

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Three neighbors still talk about the night it rained cookies.

The "shower" was discovered by Stanley Morris who heard a noise that sounded like an explosion.

Stepping outside, Morris found his backyard and garage roof littered with bags of cookies. It was the same situation at the homes on either side of his.

There was no name or identifying clue on the bags.

Morris speculated the cookies may have been part of an air cargo, but a check of local bakeries failed to turn up any who had made such shipments.

Churchill Citizenship Papers On Display

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1963 the U. S. Congress, in appreciation of a lifelong service to humanity, made Sir Winston Churchill of Great Britain an honorary citizen. Only one other person, the Marquis de Lafayette, has been so honored. Churchill, whose mother was American-born, especially treasured the certificate of citizenship, and the proclamation, signed by the late President John F. Kennedy. These documents are on view at New York's 1965 World's Fair in the People-to-People pavillion designed as, and named, a Tribute to Churchill.

WARDROBE-WISE COED—Karen Franz of San Rafael won top western region honors in a Montgomery Wards fashion contest, and will appear in the big firm's next catalogue. She and her mother also will be given a trip to the New York World's Fair.

San Rafael Coed Honored As Teen-Age Style Expert

Karen will become a member of the Wendy Ward National Pacesetter Board; be awarded the five wardrobe outfits she coordinated for her entry; will be awarded a trip for herself and her mother to New York and will meet with the company's key fashion merchandisers and advise them of fashions and fashion trends from this area.

Miss Franz's picture will appear in Wards fall and winter catalog which will be issued in July.

Karen is a senior at Marin Catholic High School and last fall was Homecoming Queen. She plans to major in art at College of Marin next fall.

Cluttered Homes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The best-ordered homes can become cluttered with magazines and newspapers unless there's a place especially designed for them. A rack or alcove built into the wall of your living room is a good solution to this problem. If the area is surfaced with ceramic tile it will add real beauty to convenience.

Artists Getting Ready For Fair

Members of the Marin Society of Artists have plans already well under way for the Society's section of the Marin Art and Garden Fair on July 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

Drawing from its membership of approximately 650 artists and art lovers, the Society plans a continuous art-in-action program for the enjoyment and edification of Fair visitors.

At any time throughout the day people may watch painters at their easels, some making portraits, and other artists participating in group sketching; sculptors at work in wood, clay, steel, or "found objects" (making sculptures out of ready-made objects).

There will be weavers at their looms, spinners, and someone demonstrating stitchery, an art medium that currently is evoking much interest in the art world. Also to be seen will be artists working on collages, jewelry, and silk screening.

Always of great interest will be the potters, with their kick and electric wheels. Visitors will be encouraged to converse with the artists and ask questions on the work in progress.

Those who want to buy as well as look may find the sales area interesting, for there they will find pots, weaving, paintings, and prints for sale at reasonable prices. Jewelry and sculpture may be purchased from the individual artist.

Hungry art patrons can get an over-all view of the activity from the Society's Snack Bar, located between the sales and art-in-action sections.

The Society is also entering the garden competition with painter's, weaver's, and potter's gardens. There may also be a sculptress's garden.

Flat, fertile Jerba is the largest island in the entire 2,450-mile sweep of Africa along the Mediterranean.

Blaze Battling Taught By Film

TEANECK, N. J. (UPI) — How can you teach a forester to fight fires without giving him a forest to practice on? The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service does it with a new optical device known as a fire simulator. The device projects a variable moving picture of flame and smoke, and responds to the decisions of fire - fighting trainees.

It's a new way of playing with fire without getting burned," says Thomas A. Wood president of Decision Systems Inc., of Teaneck, manufacturers of the device.

Youngster Doesn't Enjoy Cooling Off

WEST COVINA (UPI) — For Gerald D. Gazaway, 6, eleven hours in a beer keg cooler were just plain "awful." The lad was trapped in the cooler accidentally, and wasn't found until 11 hours later — slightly cool, but in otherwise good condition.

"Daddy says I'm not old enough to drink beer," said Gerald, denying he sampled any of the brew.

State Fair Prize Winners To Show

An exhibit of California State Fair Purchase Prize Winners will be held at the Frances Young Gallery of the Marin Society of Artists beginning June 6 and continuing through June 20. The show is under the joint sponsorship of the Marin Society of Artists and the Marin County schools, under the direction of Superintendent Virgil S. Hollis.

Eleanore Bender and Gwen Stone (Mrs. Karl Barron), who are among the Society's elected jurors for the current year, made an exciting mid-May journey to Sacramento to select the works to be shown.

Mrs. Bender reports that the exhibit will be limited to approximately eight works in each of the following mediums: oils, watercolors, prints, textiles, and ceramics, and that she and Gwen were interested in quality rather than quantity.

At each California State Fair a number of purchase awards are made in the Arts Division. In addition, various works that are awarded prizes automatically become the property of the California State Fair and Exposition.

This year, for example, two first prizes, each in the amount of $700, wil be awarded for oil paintings, one for a conservative painting, and one for a modern one. These prize-winning paintings then become part of the permanent collection of the California State Fair & Exposition and may be loaned to schools and art galleries throughout the State. Should the judges find no painting worthy of any of the awards offered, they are instructed not to make the award. Only living California artists may enter the State Fair art competition.

Edward J. Lynam, Exhibit Supervisor for the State Fair and Exposition, made the necessary arrangements in Sacramento for the loan of this show.

A family of four on a moderate-cost food plan spends $32.11 a week for food needs, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture studies.

'Jet-Set' College Professors Hit

NEW YORK — The "jet-set" type of professor may be to blame for the student discontent that has been manifest in so many campus demonstrations throughout the country, according to a prominent educator here.

Wesley J. Hennessy, executive dean of the Columbia University School of Engineering and Applied Science, used the term to describe the professor who is on so many panels, has so many consultancies, and administers so many research contracts that a student can talk to him "only on the way to the airport."

See The Experts

NEW YORK (UPI) — In any major rebuilding and remodeling project about the home, consult the experts. For example, if you plan to install ceramic tile on walls and floors, see your contractor for help in selecting the type, color and design. Extensive alterations should not be undertaken without first getting the advice of your architect. For a decorating job with a flair, your interior decorator is the specialist to see.

Electronic Digits Expected To Aid Lunar Astronauts

The instruments will consist of five numerical digits displayed on a 2 by 4-inch flat surface. The numbers will indicate changes in the speed at which the moon craft is traveling.

Electroluminescence creates light through the excitation of phosphors in an electrical field. No bulbs or filaments are used in construction and, unlike electro-mechanical instruments, they are not affected by irregular gravity fields.

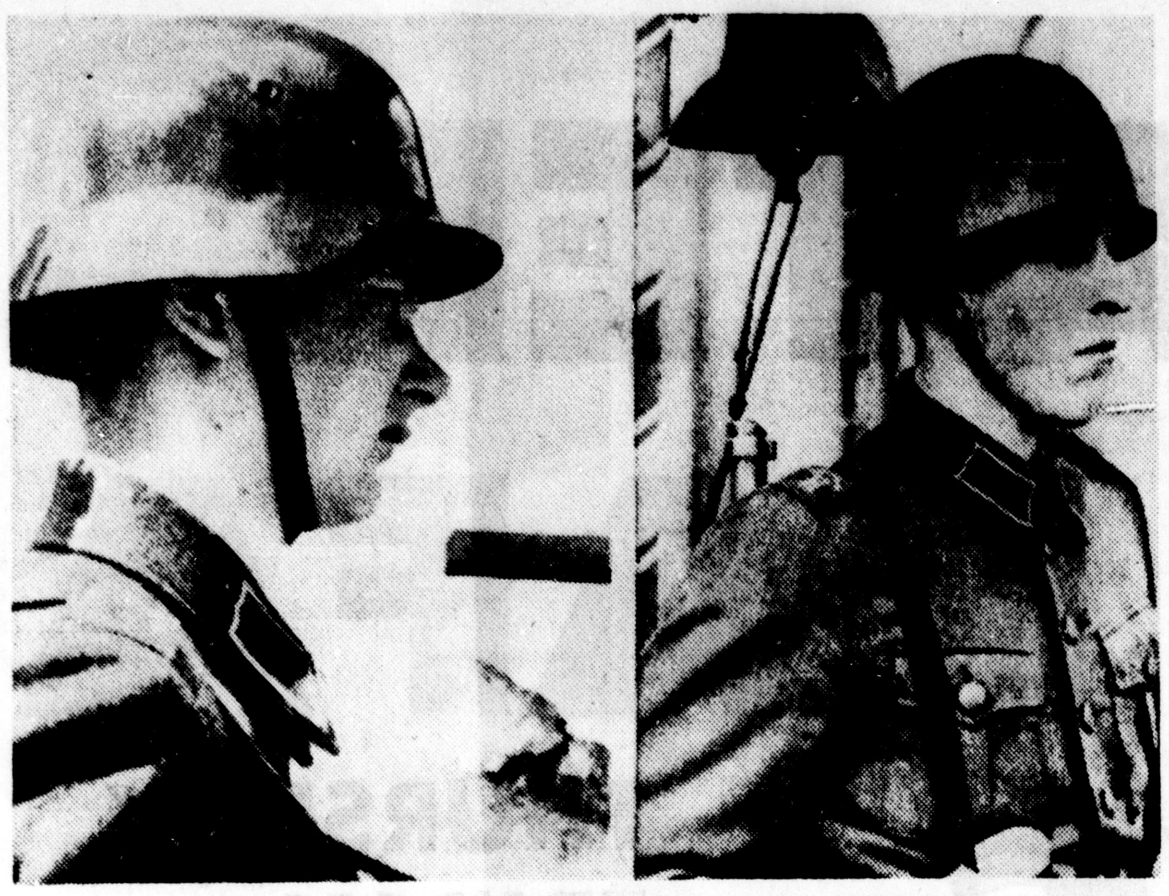
Sylvania, which has been a pioneer in development of electroluminescence, has been awarded a contract for the instruments by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., which is developing the moon ship.

Texan Outlines Safety Cost Idea

HOUSTON (UPI) — A safety official who said cold statistics help little in cutting accidents cited another kind of example for Texans.

He said completely cover a football field with $1 bills. Then make successive layers of $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100 and $500 bills. Then pile on 5,619 tons of silver dollars.

It will come to $486,846,000. That is the estimated cost of accidents in Texas last year.



G. I. LOOK REPLACES S. S. STYLE

In Helsinki, Finland, troops model the old-style steel helmet modeled after World War II German headgear (left) which is being supplanted by a new, lightweight model inspired by United States Army equipment. The changeover is expected to take several months to complete.

Costly Rescue For Officers Manslaughter

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An ambulance and police hurried on an emergency call to find a couple sleeping in a car with the windows closed, doors locked and the engine running.

When that failed, they broke a window to unlock one of the doors. The couple, appearing groggy, thanked the officers.

Two hours later, the man presented police with a bill for $12.15 for the broken glass.

Graduated Himself

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A correspondent student's lesson came back to the office at the University of Colorado. On it the Canon City post office had stamped, "Return to Sender. Moved. Left No Address." In one corner a state prison official had penciled one word, "Escaped."

Attorneys Scarce

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Peace Through Law Center here has put together a world directory of lawyers, estimated to number 1 million. It shows that some countries have no more than three lawyers. Guinea, for instance, has only three; Laos has 23 and Libya has 115 lawyers.

Scotland Plans Ferry Service To Norway

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — A new direct car-ferry service is expected to start next year between Aberdeen and Norway.

The Scottish Tourist Board also said that discussions are now under way for a new passenger, cargo and car service between Leith (Edinburgh) and Oslo.

The planned Aberdeen service will be to two Norwegian ports —Granvin on the west coast and Arendal on the south. The service will carry about 50 cars and 400 passengers.

The Leith-Oslo service will be primarily for cargo, but it is likely the ship would also carry 60 passengers and a number of private cars.

Men Litter Most According To Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Keep America Beautiful recently polled litter authorities in the 50 states to determine whether men or women litter the least. The men lost, hands down.

The survey, covering an equal number of men and women leaders of anti-litter groups, showed 73 per cent of those polled voted men the nation's No. 1 litterbugs, Only 12 per cent thought women litter more than men and 15 per cent had no opinion.

Forester Has Gift: He Can 'Read' Trees

By ELDON BARRETT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI)—Jack. E. Winn of Olympia has an unusual gift: he can read trees as if they already had been turned into newsprint.

Winn is a professional farm forester and under his prolonged surveillance are trees on 3,500 acres of privately-owned timer land, most of it in Thurston County, Wash.

Winn, a Washington State University graduate, has spent most of his adult life working with timber. He is one of the few men who have gone into the tree farm forestry business on a full-time, private scale.

For his clients, Winn and his 27 employes, cruise timber, decide what logging should be done, how it should be done, and where the trees should be sold once they are harvested.

"If this one comes out, these other four will grow and develop properly," he will say as he examines a cluster of trees. 'See that one? It has root rot and should come down. Notice that tall, straight Douglas fir? It has been growing for about 40 years and will increase in value by one-third or more if allowed to stand another 10 years."

His main job is to manage the harvesting of timber crops and when one considers that many trees do not get "ripe" until they are 50 or 60 years of age, this might seem like an impossible task. But Winn gets the job done, and he will take "cant" for an answer.

To Winn and other foresters, a cant is a saw log that has been roughed out to a specific dimension in the forest. Enough leeway is allowed to assure quick and easy finishing touchest at the mill.

In some cases, Winn might advise a client to move a portable sawmill operation to cant out the timber to be harvested.

Another way Winn makes money for his clients is to advise on selective cutting. Maybe the timber should go for pulp, or perhaps it should be earmarked for furniture manufacturing. Sometimes he recommends that it be cut just as plain firewood.

Contact Lense Risk

STANFORD (UPI) — The chances of getting an eye infection from bacterial contamination of contact lenses may be less if the lenses are kept in a dry case when not in use, according to researchers at the Stanford University School of Medicine.

Few Prairie Chickens Left In Midwest

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Prairie chickens, once in the millions in Illinois and surrounding states in the Midwest, are close to extinction. Apparently few people care except a few conservation--biologists. There are now no more than 500 or 600 birds left.

According to biologist William Edwards of the Illinois Natural History Survey, the prairie chicken population had reached an all-time peak in the 1860s as grain crops spread over wide acres and the prairie grass was starting to give way to plow.

Prairie chickens unlike other species will not adapt to their surrounding — they must have grassland in which to nest.

Ireland Making New, Long Try At Reviving Gaelic Language

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN (UPI)—An English politician once commented "if you want to start a fight in Ireland try religion, then politics —if they both fail, raise the language question . . ."

And he was right.

The problem of how to revive the Gaelic language as the everyday spoken tongue of the Irish nation has exercised an incendiary effect on the national temperament for half a century.

Now Ireland is making a new, long-range try.

All phases of political, religious, civic and academic thought in the country agree on the national aim of language revival. But the method is in dispute.

At the turn of the century when Irish national pride finally stirred the nation into open revolt against the British, a determined effort was made to revive Gaelic as a badge of nationalism.

But Ireland found it easier to wipe out the physical evidence of British occupation than to deal with the invisible grip their language held on the people.

The first Irish governmemt that was formed in 1921 set about a vigorous restoration policy. Preference and compulsion went hand in hand as the state attempted to entice and force the Irish people back into a tongue that had been dying for centuries.

Successive Irish governments followed the same pattern in their approach to the Irish language. Gaelic was made a compulsory subject in all examinations at school, and in state-run schools all subjects were taught through Gaelic. Civil service jobs and state appointments were dependent on a fluency in Gaelic.

These areas, known as the Gaeltach, were traditionally economically depressed areas covering approximately 1,860 square miles, a large portion of which were mountains, bog and marshlands. With the difficulty of making a livelihood in these areas increasing each year, the families began moving toward the English - speaking towns and cities in search of employment. As each group moved, depopulating the area, the last remaining strongholds of the Gaelic language began to fall asunder.

In the constitution of Ireland, Gaelic is the first official language of the country while English is recognized as the second official language.

In practice, English is the dominant language of everyday life. Religious services, parliamentary debates, newspapers, radio, television and virtually all media of communication are in English.

Some years ago, Premier Sean F. Lemass, who knows little Gaelic, decided to tackle the whole program of the restoration of the language.

Last month the government issued a white paper setting out in full the aims of the Irish nation in regard to the language and the steps to be taken to restore it.

It represented the first real effort in years to get down to the problem of restoring the language as a living tongue.

It envisaged a 10-year period during which the government called upon all sections of thought in the country to cooperate in pushing the revival. Compulsion was virtually dropped as a total failure. In its place was state, religious, educational and industrial encouragement to those who wished to learn the language.

It also announced plans for "strengthening the social and economic life of the Gaeltacht" and increasing monetary benefits to those areas.

One of these benefits was a payment of five pounds ($14.) for each child who spoke only Gaelic—this has been increased to 10 pounds ($28). This particular enticement often has given rise to much puzzlement among tourists who have approached groups of children in the Gaeltacht areas to chat with them. When the tourists would speak, frozen fear would descend on the children who would turn tail and run as if their lives depended on their getting away. It may well have been the case, too, because if an inspector from the department of education had caught them speaking English to the tourists their parents' bonus would have been cut.

The Gaelic League, the militant Irish-speaking and Gaelic games organization, has announced it will cooperate fully with the government in this final move to save the language.

SLIGHT FAMILY DISTURBANCE

In police parlance, a domestic quarrel is a "415-F," but in the Chicago zoo, it's just a couple of seals having their say. Whether they're casting aspersions on each other's in-laws or complaining about the cuisine, who knows, except another seal? (UPI Telephoto)

Bookmobiles Bringing Outside World To Mountain Families

By JEROME BRAZDA

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Little Hallie and some Washington bureaucrats find it mighty exciting that the government is finally doing so much for public libraries.

But the job has hardly started. There still are 16 million people in this nation of advanced technology who have no easy-to-reach public library facilities.

Hallie is a little girl from the Georgia mountains. She was introduced to the outside world through books from a bookmobile financed with federal funds. The Washington executives are the people at the Office of Education's Division of Library Services. The division did not come into existence until 1956 and then struggled until last year to stretch a $7.5 million annual appropriation across a great national need for better and more libraries.

The 1956 Library Service Act that provided the money was only a beginning. But the rural bookmobile program it set up was a great success. Last year Congress followed up with the Library Services and Construction Act of 1965. It is providing $30 million during the current fiscal year for construction of permanent public library facilities and $25 million for books, equipment and salaries of librarians.

In addition, the administration is asking this year for two new programs under its two education aid bills to provide library materials for schools and colleges as well as supplementary education centers.

The sudden largesse after years of famine is none too soon for the people at the Division of Library Services, especially John Lorenz, its director.

"We get all sorts of letters about how a whole new world opened up when the bookmobile came down the road," he told UPI. "This program has meant so much to people who have never had access to books before.

"And there still are 16 million people who have no library services anywhere in their areas."

Lorenz is a native of Michigan. He has been with the Office of Education since 1957 when the Division of Library Services was created. He has been its director since 1958.

The division began sending bookmobiles into rural areas where children knew only the tattered readers the poverty of their country school districts allowed them. Their parents, for the most part, saw no books.

For adults who could read it was a new world of riches. Those who could not read sometimes learned through the eyes of their children.

"It is almost too much for me," one adult wrote the Office of Education. "When I look at all these books of knowledge and adventure at my fingertips and think of how old I am and of how much I've missed in the past, I'm just desperate to know where to begin."

A Georgia bookmobile librarian said that "at one of our new stops we met a 5-year-old boy who had never had a book in his hands." In the same area Hallie's mother told of her daughter's wonder at learning what lay beyond the rocks and pines of her environment.

Santa Fe Is Wacky City, But Folks Like It There

By ROBERT E. HUBER

SANTA Fe, N.M. (UPI)—This is the wackiest city. But that's just the way the folks here like it.

There are roving bands of billboard vigilantes who meet on dark nights to chop down signs along nearby highways. Some of their memberships contain prominent artists and businessmen.

Then there are the city ordinances which prevent neon signs on store fronts.

On top of that, you can't even chose the exterior design of your own home in some parts of the city, and one of the busiest streets was paved only last year.

Called the "City Different" by the locals, most folks here have stubbornly refused progress over the years to the point where the city has become a curiosity. Narrow, unpaved streets stay that way, and there's many a court case to prove it.

Most of the buildings in the city are made of adobe, which is nothing more than mud and straw. But they provide warmth in the winter and a cool dampness in the summer. Some are still standing after 350 years. New ones go up every day.

When territorial governor Lew Wallace arrived in Santa Fe 87 years ago to write his famous book "Ben Hur," his new resident was already 270 years old. It was the Palace of Governors, home for Spanish dons, captains, admirals and Indians.

The Indians took back Santa Fe from the Spanish in a 17th Century revolt, and even today, as they sit beneath the Palace portals and quietly sell their jewelry, there's a question as to who owns what.

In 1821, Mexican rulers took over Santa Fe from Spain. The same year, the first Yankee Trader, William Becknell, arrived with a wagon load of merchandise and said the city was one of the most unique on the northern continent.

Then the Confederate Army took Santa Fe briefly in 1862, and there still are several private flagpoles that fly the Stars and Bars each day. But the city settled down to federal rule and in 1912, became the capital of the country's 47th state.

Rapid Transit Needs Mountain Of Cement

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Construction of the first subway system for the San Francisco Bay area will require five times as much steel as the Empire State Building and enough concrete to build five Pentagons.

The Bay Area Rapid Transit System will connect San Francisco with Oakland and other East Bay communities.

This Woman Takes Emergency Calls

NORWELL, Mass. (UPI) — If any resident of this town is in trouble, chances are Mrs. Elizabeth Cox will hear about it.

She is on duty daily at Norwell's emergency communications center. If you wish to report a fire, call police, get a doctor, ambulance, school nurse public health nurse, civil defense, tree warden, highway department, or the like, you merely dial 659-2211. Mrs. Cox takes it from there.

Chicago Safest City For Driving

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gaudy reputation to the contrary, Chicago is the safest big city in the nation in which to drive. Such things as 50,000 gallons of paint a year and drivers who don't honk their horns have made it that way.

The newcomer to Chicago is amazed. He can drive quickly through the city. There is orderly movement both of through vehicles and vehicles that are turning. The quiet is almost eerie to a stranger—there is hardly anyone honking.

And more important, Chicago's traffic fatality rate is dropping at a time when that of most other cities is rising. For the last few years, the rate has been below 3 deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles. In 1964, 270 persons were killed, 34 fewer than the year before.

Comparatively last year, New York had 708 traffic fatalities for a death rate of 4.3. Of the other cities in the top five population centers, Los Angeles had 458 deaths and a rate of 3.3, Philadelphia 175 deaths and a rate of 3.1, and Detroit 254 deaths and a rate of 3.9.

Then, policemen mounted on horses patrolled the Loop. The authority of the city's traffic division was confined largely to the downtown. Lighting was poor. The network of streets was a mess.

And 505 persons died in 1947—a rate of 8.5.

That year the field division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police was asked to make a study of the Chicago situation. Franklin M. Kreml, founder of Northwestern University's Traffic Institute, directed it.

The authority of the traffic division was extended. Its manpower and equipment were beefed up. In the years that followed Chicago achieved:

—Synchornized traffic lights that permit drivers to travel farther between red lights.

—Improved street lighting, said to be the best of any big city in the world.

—Good connection between streets even though Chicago is sliced up by waterways, railroads and industrial areas. In one notable example, a one-mile viaduct on Damen Avenue carries traffic over railroad yards.

—Channelization of traffic.

—Superb accident reporting.

—Public acceptance.

One of the most important factors has been "channelization," or funneling of traffic by destination. At many intersections drivers wanting to make a left turn pull into "refuge bays," or concrete islands, where they do not interfere with other traffic. Special left-turn arrows give them the go-ahead.

Michael Robinson, deputy commissioner of streets, estimates the city uses 50,000 gallons of paint annually in maintaining the lanes.

As a result, traffic safety officials say, there is systematic movement of traffic, drivers aren't barging into their neighbors, and there is something "tangible" to drive by.

Not only has there been improvement of existing streets, but Chicago has added an impressive network of expressways. The Eisenhower Expressway, formerly the Congress Expressway, goes underneath the Chicago post office and carries traffic into the western suburbs. The Eden and Kennedy expressways go northwest.

The new Dan Ryan Expressway, which strings out south from the Loop, has been advertised as the world's widest highway. Lake Shore Drive runs north and south.

There are overpasses that carry through traffic over congested sections, such as at Ashland and Pershing, or Belmont and Clubourn.

Studies are under way to meter traffic about to pull onto the expressway. Drivers would be advised whether the expressway load could accommodate them.

Yankee Caution Still Typical In Portland

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — When the local action group began its anti-poverty drive by announcing that eight months would be devoted to a study of the situation, the Portland Evening Express editorialized:

"Poverty in Portland doesn't seem to be in any immediate danger."

Delinquency By Another Name

NEW YORK (UPI) — They don't have juvenile delinquents in Russia. It's simply a matter of terminology. In the Soviet, they're known as "misguided youth," says Akos Valentin in "Coronet" magazine.

Valentin — it's not his real name — speaks with authority. He spent two years at the Corrective Camp for Juvenile Offenders at Ufa, Capital of the Bashkir Autonomous Republic, 700 miles east of Mosow.

His crime? Then 16, he was apprehended stealing cigarettes from the pocket of a clothing factory foreman.

West Germany Notes Home Building Boom

BONN (UPI) — A record 623,000 new dwellings, were built in West Germany in 1964, the federal housing ministry reports. Officials anticipate another 600,000 dwellings will be finished this year.

About two-thirds of the dwellings were built by private persons, and more than one-half of them were wage-earners, a ministry spokesman said.

Bridge Is Favorite

CHICAGO (UPI) — A playing card company here says a survey shows that bridge is the most popular card game in America. Next in popularity, the firm says, are poker, canasta, pinochle, rummy, hearts, auction bridge and solitaire.

NO CAT NIP, NOW

Mrs. Eugene Olson of Niagara Falls, N.Y., has no fears that her husky tomcat "Barney" is just nuzzling that sparrow on her hand preparatory to making a meal of it. "Barney" found the bird injured and brought it home. He became a bird-watcher rather than a birdchaser last winter, through friendship with an injured robin the Olsons nursed through the winter and released last month. Maybe the feline became lonesome, so sought out a new pal. (AP Wirephoto)

Six More Holidays Per Year Suggested

By DON BACON
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Six more holidays a year.

Sound good?

Well, don't start making plans just yet, but Congress has received proposals to set aside a total of six days a year for national observances of one kind or another.

There are already eight federal legal public holidays.

And congress has been reluctant to add any more because of the high cost in lost wages, sales and porduction.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.), chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, has estimated that a nationwide holiday costs the federal government about $70 million and industry about $900 million. Other losses put the holiday price tag well above $1 billion.

Proponents in the House and Senate are trying, nevertheless, to win support for their favorite day of recognition. Introduced this year are bills to set aside days in honor of Christopher Columbus, Abraham Lincoln, the Constitution, the flag, the elections and the American Indian.

Some are already on the books as state holidays. Thirty-two states, for instance, observe Columbus Day every Oct. 12.

A legal holiday designated by Congress or the president is binding only on federal employees and the District of Columbia. States have jurisdiction over the holidays they observe, but they almost always follow the federal designation.

Of all the current proposals, Columbus Day has the best chance of becoming a federal holiday. Italian - American groups have worked hard in recent years to promote the honor for the discoverer of America, and have won considerable backing in the house and senate. No fewer than 20 bills calling for a Columbus Day have been introduced this year.

The newest of the proposals is for an American Indian Day. First to introduce the bill was freshman Rep. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), who proposed designating the fourth Friday in September every year "to honor the original inhabitants of this nation."

A similar Indian Day bill was later introduced in the Senate by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) and 33 co-sponsors.

Another proposal relating to holidays has been offered by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D-N.Y.). Stratton proposes to change the days of observing Washington's Birthday (Feb. 22), Memorial Day (May 30), Independence Day (July 4) and Veteran's Day (Nov. 11), so that they always fall on Mondays.

That would assure long weekend holidays, and would eliminate the feeling of being cheated by the calendar when a holiday falls on Saturday or Sunday.

More holiday bills have been introduced this year than in other years, but conspicuously absent are some old proposals to honor former Presidents Andrew Jackson and Franklin D. Roosevelt on their birthdays, and to observe the anniversary of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, "Anti - Segregation Day" and Good Friday.

Americans Visit Their Physicians

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans made 844 million visits to physicians during the 12-month period ending June, 1964, the U.S. National Health Survey reports.

The figure includes telephone consultations. This averages out to 4.5 visits for each person in the U.S. civilian non-institutional population.

Impatient Girl, 9, Just Can't Wait

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Used to waiting days to get films developed, Eric Lyons considered his camera which develops a print in just 10 second quite an achievement. His 9-year-old daughter, Madeline, wasn't impressed.

She fidgeted as she waited for the 10 seconds to pass so she could see the picture she'd taken and finally demanded: "Daddy, why does it take so long?"

Farm, City Video

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U. S. Agriculture Department report issued recently showed 90 per cent of all rural families owned television sets. For urban families, the percentage was 91.

READY TO 'LAUNCH' NEW LIFE

Engineers of the Douglas Missile and Space Systems at Santa Monica struggled to get this bird on the pad, only in this case the bird was aimed at becoming a mother. The dove chose a nesting place amid the framework of the gantry of a Saturn missile. After the eggs were hatched recently, the bird family moved away.

U. S. Has Blind Spot About Sightless

By CHARLES SCHAEFFER
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Medical science — and the federal government — have a blind spot about helping the sightless.

A report by a private agency, Research to Prevent Blindness, Inc., reveals that of one million current cases of blindness 800,000 are unknown to science. Yet private donations and government spending to combat blindness add up to less than $20 million a year.

A "rock bottom" investment of $38 million annually over the next five years — a total of $190 million — is required to set the stage for an all-out attack on blindness, the report says. This is about the pricetag of two Mariner shots at Mars.

"Ophthalmic Research: USA" was authored by Dr. Thomas D. Duane of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. The association is in New York City.

Last year, Dr. Duane told a House appropriation subcommittee that "the time is at hand to recognize that blindness is a major — and catastrophic — health problem which is increasing far beyond our ability to cope with it."

He gave preliminary findings of the report showing that combined sources spent only about $14 million on eye research in 1963. About $9 million of this was spent in direct ophthalmic research.

The U.S. government share in eye research totaled roughly $10 million in 1964. In its new budget before Congress, the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness here is asking $11 million, only a modest increase.

The House Appropriations Committee took no initiative to boost eye-research funds last year. But members in the past have nagged U.S. planners to improve efforts. No move to add money this year has cropped up.

Dr. Richard L. Masland, director of the institute, and a member of the science advisory panel of the blindness research foundation, observed that Dr. Duane has "mapped out a very imaginative and broad program for the support and development of this important field."

On some points, the government can cooperate, he said. "First of all, the easiest thing for the federal government to do is to support research projects." But the projects must have "defined objectives," he reminded the association.

He said the government can support research training, but not direct medical training. He said the U.S. obviously cannot create the recognition in a community for programs of vision research; supply top level physicians to do clinical research, and award "fluid" funds that go beyond research and research training.

". . . There must be someone who is willing to gamble on some projects that we, in government, cannot. There is a need for risk money for preliminary exploration of new ideals," he said.

Dr. Duane's assault on the problem calls for a five-year budget of $190 million. "If the people of the nation should demand a full-scale, nationwide attack against blinding diseases," the report states, "these figures might easily be doubled or tripled.

"It is not merely a matter of awarding grants to assist in the development of ongoing projects. The base must be broadened — the laboratory facilities, the equipment, the trained men and all the necessary appendages which support their effort."

The report also noted that: 90 million Americans have some eye trouble; 3.5 million suffer permanent non-correctable visual defects, and 1 million are blind.

In addition, 30,000 more lose their sight each year because of diseases that might be prevented through adequate research. Eight of 10 new blindness cases stem from mystery-ailments such as cataracts, glaucoma, old-age degeneration, detached retinas, diabetes and others.

The plight of eye research is partly due to its step-child status in the nation's medical schools, the report declared.

It called for "aggressive action" to upgrade ophthalmic research to a full departmental status.

Film Portrayal Has Witchdoctors Angry

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Members of South Africa's Witchdoctors' Association are angry. They claim scenes in a locally made movie, starring British actor Sidney James, discredit their profession.

"These people are killing our business," said Lucan Teane, national president of the Witchdoctors' Association, after seeing the movie. "We are here to cure and not to kill. That witchdoctor in the film was definitely not genuine."

Another witchdoctor, Estrom Molocia, bedecked in monkey skins and wearing magic beads, said: "I do not know of any man in our business who kills in order to cure."

Both were among 30 witchdoctors invited to the south African premiere of the film.

Black magic and sorcery are practiced by many Africans in this country. For the price of a live chicken an African can get a witchdoctor to cast an evil spell on a fellow tribesman.

The witchdoctors also sell medicines guaranteed to cure all sorts of ills. They include lion and crocodile fat, tree bark and herbs.

Helpful Hints For Your Lawn

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—It's not too early to think about watering the lawn.

Regular care during the early months can mean the difference between a green, healthy lawn and a brown, withered one later on in the year.

B.F. Goodrich engineers here say that lawns shouldn't be flooded with a steady stream of water. A slow, soaking drizzle is best for grass. To test the need to water, push a knife or stick into the soil to a depth of about four inches. If the earth is crumbly and dry at that depth, the lawn needs watering.

During hot weather, lawns should be watered to a depth of about six inches.

Nevada Residents Face Greatest Chance Of Having Heart Attack

By CHARLES SCHAEFFER
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Nevada's residents and itinerant gamblers face the greatest odds in the West of having a heart attack.

Otherwise, middle-aged men living West of the Mississippi River have fewer cases of fatal heart disease than Easterners. Nobody knows the reason. It just happens to be so.

A state-by-state breakdown on the chance of developing fatal cardiovascular disease has been pieced together by the American Heart Assn. with data partly supplied by federal researchers here.

White males aged 45-64 living in the nation's capital, for example, run double the risk of dying of heart disease than men in New Mexico. This also gives Washington, D. C., the dubious distinction of having the highest rate of death from heart and artery trouble in the nation.

The grim statistics of the survey show that of every 100,000 Washingtonians, 1,003 die annually of heart disease. South Carolina is second with 933, and Nevada is third, with 898. The report didn't speculate whether gambling was a factor.

The experts attribute Washington's high risk partly on the fact it is a city having no relaxed rural living to offset urban deaths.

Cardiovascular disease, nicknamed CV, covers all types of heart and blood-vessel disorders. It now kills nearly one million Americans a year, accounting for 54 per cent of all deaths, a 34 per cent increase since 1900.

"Despite the magnitude of the problem," the association report notes, ". . . trends indicate that the death rate from cardiovascular disease is actually going down. The total number of people dying is larger, but the number of deaths per 100,000 members of the population is getting smaller."

The higher total is explained by the fact that more people are surviving to older ages when CV takes its greatest toll. The rate itself started down in 1940 and apparently is still dropping.

Some researchers credit drugs that lower blood-pressure, improved surgery, better diet information and stroke-prevention techniques for the decline.

The association itself recommends steps for reducing the risk of heart attack and strokes. These call for:

Substitution of vegetable fats or liquid fats like corn oil in some meals.

Elimination of cigarette smoking.

The association believes at least 100,000 premature deaths from heart disease are smoking-linked.

High blood pressure sufferers run a greater risk of heart attacks and strokes. Now, more than 21,500,000 persons have hypertension of some degree. Nearly half have accompanying heart disease, and about seven million have high blood pressure without heart disease.

The figures do not include another 13 million Americans classified by the U. S. Public Health Service as having "suspect heart disease."

Women resist heart disease better than men. And at ages 45-54, the while male death rate from coronary disease is more than five times higher than the white female's, and more than twice as high as the non-white female's.

The report—"Cardiovascular Disease in the U. S."—was published by the heart association in cooperation with the National Heart Institute and the Heart Disease Control Program here.

Science Is Fighting Yellowjack Threat

By WILLIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Disease fighters are mobilizing a "permanent solution" to the still-prevailing threat of yellowjack — yellow fever — in Southern United States.

Federal and state health authorities are attempting to wipe out every last mosquito of the aedes aegypti variety which transmits the disease virus to humans.

Absolute eradication of the aegypti mosquito, which still abounds in 10 states, is considered the only certain way of freeing the country from a return of the scourge that periodically killed thousands of persons up until 60 years ago. But the eradication program is running into controversy.

Some researchers want to preserve colonies of the insects so they can continue studies of how the virus is carried and passed back and forth to people. But this could be risky. Some of the mosquitoes might get loose through careless handling in a laboratory and quickly reinfest cleared areas.

One proposed solution is to move such research into the northern part of the country where the aegypti does not normally survive. But this may be dangerous, too. The mosquito's eggs can remain dormant for years and hatch out when weather conditions are favorable.

Moreover, rendering the mosquito extinct in this hemisphere is part of a long-standing agreement between the United States and Central and South American nations. Brazil, Peru, Bolvia, Ecuador and other nations already have succeeded in destroying the health menance at considerable expense and they don't want to be reinfested.

The U. S. Public Health Service currently is wrestling with a policy on the research issue and is expected to make a decision shortly.

Meantime, the Federal Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., reports that eradication programs employing DDT sprays are moving ahead in Florida, Texas, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

Next year, the center says intensive spraying will start in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi where the mosquito is prevalent, and extend on up into North Carolina.

The mosquitoes must be hunted down in every conceivable nesting place, from a water-filled discarded toy to the deep reaches of swamp lands. The task involves covering thousands of square miles and will take five years and more than $50 million to accomplish, officials say.

The last yellow fever outbreak of major proportions occurred in 1905. One of the worst happened in 1878 when more than 13,000 persons died, including 4,046 victims in New Orleans.

No yellow fever cases have been reported for many years in this country and it has been practically forgotten by the public. But authorities believe that as long as the transmitting agent lives, as one expert puts it, "an outbreak of yellow fever could occur without warning in any of 10 Southern States."

Only one person carrying the virus in his bloodstream has to get by quarantine and be bitten by an aelgypti to start an epidemic.

There is no cure for yellow fever, which gives its victims jaundice and a raging temperature. And it can be fatal for most persons who have not been vaccinated.

Past Presidents' Illness Hushed Up

By GEORGE J. MARDER

His true condition is kept secret from the public, congress, and even his cabinet.

The time comes when, under the Constitution, he must report to Congress on the state of the Union. Cabinet officers are asked to submit a few paragraphs about their departments. A presidential secretary puts them together, reads them to the crippled president. A few changes are made. And the state of the Union report is presented to Congress in his name.

Fiction? A mystery thriller?

Not at aii.

It was one of two incidents cited to Congress by President Johnson to show the need for a new constitutional procedure, permitting the vice president to take over if a president is disabled.

The other instance was when James A. Garfield was shot in the back by a disgruntled office seeker on July 2, 1881. Garfield lingered on for 80 days, unable to perform the duties of office.

In those 80 days, Garfield performed only a single act as president. He signed an extradition paper prepared by the State Department and read to him by his wife.

He saw the cabinet only once, for a brief meeting, after he had been taken to a seashore cottage at Elberon, N.J., where he died of blood poisoning Sept. 6, 1881.

The cabinet split on whether Vice President Chester Arthur should invoke the disability clause of the Constitution and take over. It was decided that because of the importance of the move, the question would be put to the ailing President himself. However, the cabinet officers were told that the shock of such a proposal might speed the President's death.

A delegation then consulted with Arthur. He told the cabinet officers he would not undertake the responsibilities while Garfield was alive. And not until Garfield was dead did the presidency start functioning again.

Woodrow Wilson collapsed at Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 26, 1919, while touring the nation by special train to arouse public support for the proposed League of Nations. The train was darkened, the window shades drawn, and the president was hurried back to Washington. The White House was converted into a hospital.

The only ones allowed to see him were his wife, Edith Wilson; the White House physician, Dr. Gary Grayson, and specialists. At one point the President was near death from a bladder blockage. Six physicians agreed that risky surgery was indicated or Wilson would succumb to uremic poisoning. The question was put to Mrs. Wilson for a decision but she was unable to make it. However, two hours later Wilson overcame the blockage.

A nerve specialist advised the First Lady to keep all disturbing news from her husband, to intercept all messages and to consult with cabinet officers on any decisions that had to be made.

Mrs. Wilson asked whether it wouldn't be better for the President to resign and let the vice president take over. The physician advised against it on grounds that making such a decision would be a shock and a serious setback to the President. The physician also was supposed to have advised that it would be bad for the nation, then going through transition from war to peace.

And so Mrs. Wilson and the White House physician became guards over the bedroom of the President. Letters addressed to him were never answered. Emergency messages vanished.

Schooling's Cost

BURLINGAME (UPI) — California taxpayers are spending $570 this year on the education of each child, according to the California Teachers Association.

Lone Ranger Not In Fight

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Weidner welcomed several young visitors to the OK Corral, which he manages.

Before stepping into the spot where Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday shot it out with the Clanton brothers, one of the boys asked:

"Was the Lone Ranger in the fight?"

Whisky A Go-Go?

ATHENS (AP) — Greek customs officials are checking closely into whisky imports. The investigation was started when British export figures showed Greece had imported 40,000 cases of whisky last year but Greek customs records showed only 22,000 cases listed as entering the country.

Credit Card Theft, Misuse Given Serious Attention

By MARGARET BANCROFT
U. P. International

A few years ago, a 19-year-old kid got himself a credit card and went to town cashing bad checks, engaging plush hotel suites, putting away gourmet dinners, and buying, buying, buying.

The spree lasted more than a month.

Before he was nabbed, Joseph Miraglia of New York had run up $10,000 in bills, bilked such hotels as the Waldorf-Astoria, flown to Canada and Cuba and grayed the hairs of credit card company executives.

The rough part of it for the credit car firms was that Miraglia popularized the sport of cashing in fast with a stolen or counterfeited card. The boy from the Bronx seemed to prove that it wasn't necessary to look rich or middle-aged to fool hotel clerks, airline personnel, store salesmen and headwaiters into thinking there was real money behind a little two-by-three inch scrap of paper.

Things aren't quite as free and easy anymore. The stores, auto rentals, restaurants, hotels and airlines that honor credit cards are more suspicious these days. And the credit card companies, notably the big three—American Express, Diners' Club and Hilton Hotel's Carte Blanche—are deadly serious about discouraging joy-riders.

Nevertheless, Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Co., which is in the business of selling insurance against card thefts, says 60,000 cards are stolen or misused each year. The insurance company estimates 70 million cards of all kinds are in circulation. It says 1.5 million cards are lost each year.

The credit card companies, certain that publicity only encourages theft, don't want to admit to anything like Lumbermen's figures.

The credit card theft game is played chiefly by a hard-core band of pros with the information and inclination to deliberately seek out cards for misuse.

Black market stolen cards come from three chief sources. Hoodlums mug likely looking victims, extracting the cards from their wallets, sometimes leaving the cash intact. And the pros have their friends among doormen, hotel maids and clerks, all people who are apt to stumble across a lost card and may be willing to pass it on to the black market for money.

Cards are also stolen from the mails, often by sharpies looking, primarily, for checks. As a sideline, they have grown adept at identifying credit card envelopes.

When a card works its way into the hands of a thief, someone is going to be set back an average $500. Court decisions tend to hold the owner of the card responsible for the debt, but most card companies, interested in easing the fears of card holders, take financial responsibility for the debts — if the theft is reported to them.

Additionally, card holders can take out inexpensive insurance to guard against having to pay the bills thieves run up.

The card companies have developed systems for catching the thieves. But they have no intention of giving out the details of their protection system. That gives the game away.

Carte Blanche, which learned a lesson from Miraglia, like the other big firms, insists on a thorough check of an applicant's financial resources before it parts with a card. Carte Blanche verifies employment addresses, professions, banks and credit backgrounds. In general, the big companies will issue cards only to those with a yearly income of over $7,500. The average card owner earns between $10,000 and $20,000.

"We feel we should not give Carte Blanche to persons who need credit per se," says Carte Blanche executive Vice President William H. Cockrell.

When the card companies are told of a lost or stolen card, they make it their business to notify all clients who might honor the card. They list the card number on a bulletin mailed to business places.

Still, a costly time gap remains between the reporting of a stolen card and the communication of that information to the businesses which stand to be cheated. Diners' Club, for example, must notify 90,000 outlets.

The credit card companies are inclined to shrug off the theft problem. If they thought they could eradicate the entire problem, they would use photographs on cards or take out insurance.

They don't.

One out of every 10,000 cards is illegally used and the bulk of the country's card holders go along in life somewhat worried about losing their cards, but more worried about paying the bill they legally run up.

DEMONSTRATES NEW DEVICE

Worst Littering Done Near Home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Litterbugs for the most part do their dirty work near home. Ever since the advent of the automobile, tourists have been popularly blamed for the litter along the nation's highways. Now Keep America Beautiful, the national anti - litter organization, has conducted a survey that seems to exonerate the tourists.

KAB questioned professional and voluntary litter fighters in the 50 states to obtain their views on litterbug behavior. More than three quarters of those participating in the survey said local residents produce more litter than tourists.

Milk Is Top Earner

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Milk is the most important farm commodity produced in Pennsylvania. The College of Agriculture at the Pennsylvania State University reported milk accounts for 40 per cent of all cash receipts of all cash receipts of farm sales. Poultry is second with 20 per cent.

Executive Pilots Jets As Well As His Airline

By DONALD J. RETTIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — The usual chair for a corporation executive is behind a desk, but Lewis B. Maytag Jr. is comfortable in the pilot's seat of a giant jet airliner.

Although unorthodox, it's appropriate because Maytag is president of National Airlines and qualified to fly commercial jets.

The 38-year-old executive was the first domestic airline president to qualify as a commercial jet pilot when he flew a four-engined DC8 six months after he became head of the nation's sixth largest airline in 1962.

He since has been certified by the Federal Aviation Agency as a pilot for the tri-jet Boeing 727.

Maytag also flies at supersonic speeds. He flew a Lockheed F104 Starfighter at speeds logged above mach 2, or 1,400 miles an hour. For recreation, he pilots a much slower vintage PT17 open cockpit biplane.

But even in the jet age the measure of an executive in a competititve industry is not how fast he can fly, but how much black ink he can put in the corporate ledger. And at the controls of the Miami-based airline, Maytag has been setting financial records.

National had net losses of $3.9 million and $8.2 million, in its 1960 and 1961 fiscal years. It stopped paying cash dividends in 1959.

By the end of 1962, National had record six months earnings. The balance sheet showed record net earnings of $6.4 million for 1963 and a record $7.8 million profit for 1964. Cash dividends payments resumed in January, 1964.

For the first half of the current fiscal year, profits hit a record $5.2 million—a whopping 166 per cent increase over the similar 1964 period.

In an interview at National's penthouse offices here, Maytag summed up the reason as "efficiency and aggressive cost control."

"National has a sound route structure, the finest equipment available and experienced personnel. This permits us to offer the best service to the travelling public," he said.

Its routes stretch more than 6,500 miles, serving 40 cities on the East, Gulf and West coasts. The most lucrative section is the New York - Florida run. But Maytag admits the Southern transcontinental route from Florida to California has helped solve National's seasonal earnings problem. The airline once profited during the winter season from its East Coast route and then struggled in other months.

Efficiency came in converting National to an all jet-powered airline and reducing the number of its aircraft. It currently operates 17 Lockheed Electras, 13 DC8s and seven Boeing 727s with three more on order.

"Less planes ,capable of carrying more passengers faster means lower operating costs," Maytag said.

Do Computers Gossip About Your Credit?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What do computers talk about when they get together for an afternoon of gossip?

They "chat" about your bank balance, what and where you've been eating, and what hotels and airlines you've been patronizing, according to Dr. Edward J. Laurie, Associate Professor of Business Management, San Jose State College.

Laurie, who views computers as more friendly than the family dog and more helpful than a staff of office workers, even visualizes the computers as a sort of crusading "Sir Galahad slaying a great paper dragon."

Laurie told a conference of the Data Processing Management Association that the days of thumbing through a multiplicity of credit cards are almost over.

He suggested that consumers, even those traveling, will carry a single card to be presented to a computer at each of their stops — store, restaurant, hotel or airline.

The computer would check instantly with many other computers. Not even the traveler's bank balance would remain a secret. The combined machines might even decide if you can afford a $5.00 steak dinner or would have to settle for hamburger.

If that isn't enough to frighten a man, Laurie claims we're even going to have to re-learn how to spell — or face the prospect of being snubbed by the computer.

The first grader who spells cat "kat" will find that he is right after all, Laurie said, because that is the way voice- activated computers will have to spell it. "Knee" will be "ne" because there will be no more silent "K" and silent "e."

Laurie also suggests that language will become simpler, with excess verbiage disappearing. "Just how much do you have to say to each other without adding a lot of useless information?" he said.

"Tomorrow's businessman certainly will be more sophisticated than today's, and tomorrow's students certainly will be brighter."

Citizens Hatch Many Air Safety Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the seventh floor of the big Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) building here are about 20 folders bulging with letters.

Each folder carried the label "Ideas on air safety from the public." They include correspondence from learned aeronautical engineers, complete with blueprints. There also are laboriously - scrawled, crude drawings from kids.

There is one letter several pages long from an inventor outlining his ideas on a new type of airliner seat. There is another one paragraph note from an 11-year-old boy, originally addressed to the late President John F. Kennedy, which starts out:

"I'm sorry to bother you if you are busy, but I have an idea on how to make airplanes safer."

This was accompanied by a pencil drawing of a crippled airliner, with a huge parachute attacked to the fuselage.

The lad's idea is the most frequent proposal made to FAA. The agency answers each one with this patient explanation:

Even if it were possible to design a parachute capable of supporting the weight of a 120-ton jet, such a chute would be so heavy by itself that passenger and baggage capacity would have to be limited.

The FAA answers every letter — no matter how far-fetched the idea. In some cases, it merely acknowledges the correspondence with a polite thanks for the writer's interest in air safety. Suggestions which may have some merit are turned over to FAA's engineering and safety division.

The majority of letters seek financial help for further experimentation. A great proportion suggest ideas which already are the subject of official testing or which have been discarded on the basis of previous experiments. Quite a few bring wry smiles to FAA's engineers, like the one which began:

"I think this idea is good. It's better than the one you have which is nothing."

Or the writer who simply announced:

"I have a device which will prevent all crashes. Please reply soon."

Many air safety proposals are ingenious, if impractical. Samples: — build a conveyor belt which moves at the speed of a landing aircraft so a plane making a wheels - up landing would merely have to set down on the belt. (Wheels-up landings are not a serious problem, seldom result in anything but minor damage, and the belt idea would be too expensive).

—Put a big cradle on a flat car which would move down a runway and catch a crippled plane as it settled down (Same objections).

—Equip each airliner with a telescopic tube, through which passengers could be transferred from a crippled plane to another aircraft while still in flight. (Such a tube would have to be at least 75 feet long to keep the planes safely separated and strong enough to allow the passage of persons at 150 miles an hour — all of which adds up to a device so heavy that no airliner could carry one).

Auto Junk Yards Are On Way Out

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Automobile junkyard eyesores will be eliminated under a plan worked out jointly by the automobile industry and the Association of Scrap Metal Dealers.

Central junkyards will be established and old cars may be junked only in them. The federal government is prepared to use its legal powers to force the clearing of present junkyards which "disfigure the landscape," an Economics Ministry spokesman said.

Stripping Helps Keep Cold Air Out

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A flexible magnetic stripping that for many years has kept cold air in refrigerators is now being used on steel residential doors to keep cold air out of apartments and houses, according to United States Steel engineers.

The new magnetic weather stripping grips the steel door upon closing and provides a positive seal against cold drafts and heat loss.

Big Lifter On Way

SAN MATEO (UPI)—A floating derrick with an unprecedented lifting capacity of 500 tons is being built for use in construction of a new $70 million bridge across San Francisco Bay.

Marin May Share Flood Control Tax Take With Cities

Hub Council Joins Opponents Of Bill Now In State Senate

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Objections to a county-wide flood control tax, proposed in a bill before the State Senate, might be eased by a compromise, County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost suggested today.

Frost said those cities which agree to handle their own flood problems could, through resolution of the board of supervisors, get back their share of the county-collected tax.

Frost said this would mean that an amendment to the measure, Senate Bill 1389, excluding Tiburon could be dropped if the city would agree.

However, opposition to the county-wide flood control proposal was growing.

The San Anselmo City Council last night adopted a resolution opposing the bill and asking that the Hub City be excluded.

Mayor E. W. Colthurst of Corte Madera, in a letter to County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer, opposed the bill, said Corte Madera is handling its own flood control problems with a city tax and should not be taxed by the county.

NOT IN ZONES

Fairfax and Belvedere have also opposed the bill, Fairfax in a telegram to the State Senate and Belvedere in a letter to the board of supervisors.

Frost said today the bill could benefit cities through providing survey and engineering services along with some construction work. Major construction work would still have to be done with local financing, either through zones or city taxes, he said.

He cited recent need by the Town of Ross for $15,000 for flood control work. This could have been supplied by the county if there were a county-wide flood tax, Frost said.

TELEGRAM, LETTER

Many areas of the county are not in flood control zones and the county has no fund for basic maintenance work, he said, although usually this is provided through the road fund.

The bill, written by Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, would increase the present county-wide limit for flood control administrative expenses to 50 cents and allow it to be spent for construction as well.

Property owners in zones, now with a $1 per $100 maximum tax, would not be faced with an increase in this maximum, as the bill provides the aggregate of both zone and county-wide taxes would not exceed $1.

The bill was introduced in the Senate April 22 by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, but was not discussed at any length by supervisors until last week .

The board then adopted a resolution to support the bill and authorize Maloney and Frost to appear at a hearing before the Senate water resources committee. Supervisors' support was on the premise that the bill would help do away with multiple flood control zones.

Lawrence D. Rose, Tiburon city manager, apepared at the hearing, asking that Tiburon be excluded. The bill went to the Senate floor with a "do pass" recommendation, but with an amendment excluding Tiburon.

Senate Passes LBJ's Voting Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After five weeks of debate, the Senate passed today the bill urged by President Johnson to prevent denial of voting rights because of race or color.

The bill is aimed primarily at Southern states, where literacy and similar voter qualification tests would be suspended and federal examiners could be appointed to register voters.

Passage of the bill, submitted to Congress in mid-March at the height of the Selma, Ala., demonstrations, was assured when the Senate voted 70-30 Tuesday to put its debate-limiting cloture rule into effect.

The bill now goes to the House where a similar measure already has been approved by the judiciary committee. House action on it is expected next month.

In the Senate's final round of limited debate, Southern opponents assailed the bill as destructive of the Constitution and born in political expediency.

Unification Passes, Fails

MADERA (UPI)— Voters in Madera approved a school unification measure yesterday but a similar proposal was defeated in Chowchilla.

The measure to unify nine elementary school districts with the Madera Union High School District was approved 870-697.

In Chowchilla, the proposal to unify four elementary schools with the Chowchilla Union High School District gained only 274 yes votes to 374 against.

GAME OF TIN CAN

Tanks larger than automobiles lie scattered over Pratt, Kan., airport today after a tornado last night sideswiped a hanger in which the big containers were stored, causing $200,000 damage. Another twister invaded Chicago's busy O'Hare airport, overturning a cargo plane and parked cars and smashing terminal building windows, as well as de-roofing a military hangar. The howling funnels danced destructively in several other Midwest states last night and early today. (AP Wirephoto)

Clay Seems Confused About Next Opponent

AUBURN, Me. (UPI)—Cassius Clay, apparently changing his mind overnight, today indicated he would prefer defending his world heavyweight title next against George Chuvalo instead of Floyd Patterson.

After knocking out Sonny Liston last night in the record time of one minute flat, Clay shouted down at Patterson at ringside, "You're next, rabbit, you're next."

However, at a press conference today, the 23-year-old champion suggested that he and Chuvalo fight in New York in September.

Clay had given Patterson his word for a title fight twice this year, once when Floyd beat Chuvalo in New York on Feb. 1 and again last night when the champion shouted for "the rabbit," meaning Patterson, after he beat Liston. (See page 21, 22 for fight details.)

Yank Is Killed In Ambush; U.S. Continues Air Strikes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — One American was killed, another was wounded and a third was missing today following a Viet Cong ambush 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

In the air war, U.S. warplanes battered military installations and transport facilities in North Viet Nam on a round-the-clock basis.

The Americans were ambushed yesterday as they were traveling in a jeep from the Special Forces camp at Ben Soi to Tay Ninh.

An irregular South Vietnamese strike force made contact with the Viet Cong, and a regional company accompanied by two American advisers was sent into the area.

In the firefight that followed 11 Viet Cong were reported killed. South Vietnamese losses were four killed and four wounded.

The American who was killed, an enlisted man, was the 386th American combat death in South Viet Nam since December 1961. This is one more than the American battle dead in the Spanish- American war.

Twenty F105 Thunderchiefs hit a radar site at Hon Matt Island and a petroleum storage area at Vinh, 130 miles south of Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman said. Pilots reported they damaged four buildings at the radar site and destroyed four buildings at Vinh.

Four U.S. Navy Skyraiders and two F8 Crusaders from the carrier Midway damaged or destroyed 16 buildings at the Phu Van supply depot, 150 miles

$500,000 Hub Fund Proposed

City Administrator Douglas J. Flautt proposed last night that San Anselmo City Council create a capital improvement fund to finance a five-year, $500,000 program.

The council should consider including the fund in its budgets and designate at least 50 cents of the tax rate to the fund, he said.

Flautt delivered his recommended budget for fiscal 1966 to the council, with $102,900 designated for capital expansion and replacement projects.

He estimated this year's city tax rate of $2.03 per $100 assessed valuation might go up to $2.35 if the proposed capital improvement fund is included.

Under Flautt's recommended budget, the appropriations section totals $802,857, as compared to $872,010 this year, a decrease of $69,153.

The council scheduled three sessions to review the budget, June 14, 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Major capital improvements in Flautt's recommendations for fiscal 1966 include $17,500 for half the cost of a new fire engine, $20,000 for matching funds

Rusk Reports Russ Missile Site Pondered

Hanoi Vicinity Installations Given Airing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a news conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into detail when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

MAYBE MORE

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area. We do not know if there may be more."

The State Department acknowledged earlier this month that a missile site was under preparation in the Hanoi area.

Rusk said that "we understand in one that there is present missile - associated equipment."

FAVORABLE REPORT

Rusk also said the Communist threat in the Dominican Republic has been "very substantially reduced." He also foresaw a further pullout of U.S. forces from Santo Domingo soon.

His generally favorable report on the Dominican situation came four weeks to the day aft-

Bay Dikes Found Not Feasible

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Tests conducted on the model of San Francisco Bay at Sausalito indicate it would not be economically feasible to reduce bay silting with a system of dikes, floodway channels and tide gates.

Edward A. Schultz, who conducted the tests, told Army Engineers yesterday he was convinced the best solution was improvement of dredging methods.

Schultz said construction of water control systems for Oakland Harbor and Mare Island Strait could cost as much as $42 million. He said the systems would reduce silting by 56 per cent and would save $400,000 annually in dredging.

He said improved dredging techniques would be cheaper and would benefit the entire bay.

Burns, Unruh Say Decision Is Definite

SACRAMENTO (AP)—A joint legislative investigation of the University of California and other higher education facilities was announced today by the legislature's two top leaders.

"We have reached a definite conclusion we will set up a joint committee in both houses," said Senate President Pro Tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Los Angeles, said he expected support from the U.C. regents and from Gov. Brown.

Brown earlier had said he didn't like the idea of a legislative probe of the University.

The two told their joint news conference that a resolution authorizing the committee was being prepared for introduction.

"We'll do an objective study," said Burns. He added that it would also include a look into allegations that university professors are neglecting their students and concentrating too much on outside jobs.

BROWN'S SUPPOR

Unruh said that some members of the University of California regents had assured him of Brown's support.

The speaker also accused the State Department of Parks and Recreation of being "almost derisive of legislative intent" in planning how to spend revenue from last year's $150 million parks and recreation bond issue.

He denied the Assembly Ways and Means Committee's action in holding up expenditure of some $58 million for park purchases would hurt the state's recreation program.

BURNS AGREES

Burns agreed with Unruh that legislative study should precede spending the bond money, saying "too much haste makes waste."

The governor has criticized the committee for having "emasculated the park program," and charged that delay in buying parkland would mean fewer parks for the people.

Unruh said that the Parks and Recreation Department had studied only a third of the resolutions adopted by the legislature suggesting park sites.

The state, he said, "should not be park barrelling," in a joking reference to the legislative "pork barrel" custom of adding pet projects for individual lawmakers' districts.

But the purchases should not be made without a study, he said.

On other subjects, Unruh maintained he was not abandoning his massive tax-reduction, tax-increase program — just trimming it a bit to meet the state budget.

Again, he warned that under Gov. Brown's less extensive tax program, "we will still go into the 1966 campaign facing a quarter of a billion dollar deficit."

The speaker also said that it will take a week or 10 days for the Assembly to decide whether to go ahead with a request by Democratic congressmen to reapportion their congressional districts this session.

Johnson Asks For Ban On Billboards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress today to ban billboards and unsightly junkyards along busy highways. And he sought funds for highway beautification.

In a letter to officials of the Senate and House, Johnson put forth these sweeping and controversial proposals one day after the close of a White House conference on natural beauty.

The most controversial of the presidential recommendations was his plan to control outdoor advertising.

"In general," he told Congress, "such controls would require that no advertising signs be erected in areas within 1,000 feet of the pavement and visible to the passing motorists. Existing signs would have to be removed by July 1, 1970."

Johnson said that, if Congress agrees, no states could receive federal highway aid after Jan. 1, 1968 unless they control billboards along interstate and primary roads — the most heavily traveled highways. Billboards still would be permitted, however, along routes zoned or used primarily for commercial or industrial purposes.

In proposing controls over junkyards, Johnson said:

"I recommend that as a condition of receiving federal aid, states must exercise control along the entire interstate and primary systems. No new junkyards could be established within 1,000 feet of the pavement and visible to the motorist. Existing junkyards would have to be effectively screened or removed by July 1, 1970."

Judge Doubts Ruby Execution

DALLAS (UPI) — Judge Joe B. Brown, who presided at the murder trial of Jack Ruby, said yesterday he believes the public does not favor the execution of Ruby and that he doubts the slayer of Lee Harvey Oswald will die in the Texas electric chair.

"After all," said Brown, "we are talking about a man who killed the man who assassinated President Kennedy."

Brown's statements came during a day of relative inactivity in the defense's attempts to have a date set for Ruby's sanity hearing.

Mistrial Denied In Twin's Death

PASADENA (AP) — Arguments for a mistrial motion by attorneys for wealthy Timothy Nicholson — accused of killing his twin brother — have been overruled by a Superior Court judge.

Attorneys for the 22-year-old heir to the Cudahy meat packing and Pullman sleeping-car fortunes contended yesterday that news accounts of Monday's surprise prosecution witness were prejudicial and that it was improper for the prosecution to reopen its case after defense concluded its own testimony.

But Superior Judge H. Burton Noble denied their mistrial motion and recessed the murder trial until tomorrow following a 45-minute session with attorneys in his chambers.

Southern Negro Teachers Losing Students And Jobs

(EDITOR'S NOTE — One of the offshoots of school desegregation is the eventual elimination of the South's dual systems. A survey by The Associated Press indicates the effect on Negro teachers.)

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP) — Some Negro school teachers are losing their jobs as desegregation literally takes away their classes. The prospect is that many more teachers will be thrown out of work in the South.

There is a strong possibility that wholesale dismissal of Negro teachers will result from the elimination of dual school systems, said Gilbert L. Porter, a Negro educator of Tallahassee, Fla.

"I wouldn't call it a trend yet," Porter said. "But I see a beginning." He said many Negro teachers are in danger of losing jobs because of desegregation.

Similar fears were expressed by Negro leaders in other Southern states. But desegregation has not gone far enough to raise the teacher problem in most areas of the South.

Complaints came from Florida, Texas, Virginia, Arkansas and North Carolina in a survey of the teacher situation.

It was charged Monday in New York by Jack Greenberg of the NAACP legal defense fund that a trend of wholesale dismissal of Negro teachers was emerging throughout the South.

Porter said 10 Negro teachers had been notified they would not be re-employed next year because their 135 pupils are going to formerly white schools.

An informal inquiry was promised by Thomas Bailey, state superintendent of public instruction, who said: "I have seen no evidence of any attempt to bring about mass dismissals."

By far the most severe report came from North Carolina. But Dr. S. E. Duncan of Salisbury said the statement that 500 Negro teachers will lose their jobs was "merely an estimate." He said a survey was being made to get the number.

Duncan is president of the North Carolina Teachers Association, the Negro organization. Greenberg said in his speech that 500 Negroes had been fired or told to find other jobs. A court test is planned.

The state's superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Charles Carroll, said he knew of no Negro teachers losing their jobs.

In Virginia, at least 19 Negro teachers have been displaced by desegregation, said Dr. J. Rupert Picott, executive secretary of the Virginia Teachers Association, a Negro group.

The U.S. Office of Education has directed Southern school systems to take steps toward consolidation of faculties, but school officials have questioned the legality of this order.

In Texas, a spokesman for the Negro Teachers Association, Vernon McDaniel of Dallas, said the state has some problem of displaced teachers, "but nothing of the proportion which Mr. Greenberg says exists in the South."

McDaniel said he had reports of about 10 Negroes losing their jobs because of desegregation. Clarence Laws, Southwest regional NAACP director, said his office had received complaints from two cities which he would not name and expects many more.

Laws said abolition of Negro schools in one city would throw seven of eight teachers out of work.

Ten Arkansas teachers have been asked to resign because of school realignment, said T. E. Patterson, executive secretary of the Negro teachers organization.

Capitol Hill Foreign Aid Showdown Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — House passage of a one-year, $3.37-billion foreign aid authorization bill has set the stage for a showdown with the Senate over the future course of the program.

Senate leaders said they will push for early passage of a different version — one which extends the program for two years, at $3.35 billion a year — and calls for termination of foreign aid in its present form after that.

The House passed its one-year measure — with no provision for termination — by a vote of 249 to 148 yesterday. It did so after rejecting, 219 to 177, a Republican attempt to cut $131 million from the development loan section.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told newsmen he thinks the Senate will go along with the committee's recommendation for a two-year authorization and a two-year deadline for the administration to come up with a new program.

Fulbright served notice on the administration last fall he would not steer the measure in the Senate if it submitted an omnibus bill. He lost a motion in his own committee to split military and economic aid into two separate bills.

Astronaut Named For Space Stroll

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Strolling through space at 17,500 miles per hour about 100 miles above the earth could be hard work for any astronaut.

The man who is scheduled to take such a walk June 3 is ready for it.

The 34-year-old Air Force major will climb out of his Gemini-4 spacecraft over Guaymas, Mexico, during the second orbit, and cavort through space for about 10 to 12 minutes before he climbs back into the cabin over the Florida coast.

The daring feat will be one of two firsts for the United States, the longest mission — four days — and the first astronaut to leave his cramped spaceship to venture into space.

No television cameras will watch White. His flight partner, command pilot James A. McDivitt, 35, will take pictures through the spacecraft's windows. The entire exercise will take about 22 minutes.

White is in superb physical condition. "He could run the mile, fight a 10-round boxing match, swim 20 miles and do about anything that would require physical endurance," said Dr. Charles Berry, physician in charge of astronauts' health.

A friend asked White why he wanted to leave the spacecraft to go into space.

Inquest Due In Death Of FDR Jr. Ex-Wife

GROSSE POINTE FARMS, Mich. (AP)—An inquest ws to be held today into the death of Mrs. Ethel du Pont Roosevelt Warren, heiress and former wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

Mrs. Warren, 49, a member of the wealthy Du Pont chemical and industrial family and one-time Eastern society beauty, was found dead in a bathroom of her home in this Detroit suburb yesterday.

Police said Mrs. Warren apparently hanged herself.

Friends said Mrs. Warren, mother of two sons by Roosevelt and a third in her second marriage, had been ill recently.

Her body was found hanging by a braided belt of her dressing gown from a rod in the locked bathroom after a maid had become alarmed over her whereabouts.

Police broke through the bathroom door. The maid, Martha Weber, said Mrs. Warren had appeared disconsolate when she was served breakfast in bed about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Warren was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene I. du Pont of the du Pont chemical manufacturing dynasty.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow from Christ Episcopal church in neighboring Grosse Pointe. Burial is to be at Wilmington.

Mrs. Warren's second husband, lawyer Benjamin S. Warren Jr., was called to her home. The two have been separated.

Friends said Mrs. Warren had been looking forward to the marriage June 12 of Christopher du Pont Roosevelt, 24, one of her sons by her first marriage. He is to be wed to Rosamund Havemeyer of Huntington, Long Island, N.Y.

The other son from the first marriage is Franklin D. Roosevelt III, 27.

The son by the second marriage, Benjamin S. Warren III, 11, goes to private school in Eagle Brook, N.H.

The marriage with Roosevelt ended in divorce in May 1949. She married Warren in December the same year.

Earthquake Spotter Set On Sea Floor

POINT ARENA (AP) — The first recording of an earthquake from a permanent undersea station occurred April 29 when a temblor shook the Pacific Northwest, scientists announced today.

Scientists from the Lamont Geological Observatory, Columbia University, were completing a cable hookup with the station 100 miles off the Northern California coast and two miles below the surface of the Pacific when the earthquake hit.

The initial shock was recorded in the Seattle-Tacoma area at 8:28:35.2 a.m. It registered at Point Arena at 8:30:57.2 a.m.

The temblor was felt for 600 miles along the Pacific Coast.

MUCH SMOKE—Sausalito fireman is almost engulfed by smoke as he battles blaze in rotting ship ways at Gate 3, Marinship. Smoke from the fire late yesterday was visible in Belvedere and Tiburon and across the Golden Gate in San Francisco.

Johnson said that in addition to saving lives of foreigners, he wanted to prevent a Communist takeover.

Reporting today with "considerable satisfaction on what has been accomplished so far," the secretary of state said:

1. The threat of a takeover by extremists — or Communists—has been very substantially reduced although not completely eliminated. The threat has been reduced because it is now clear to everyone that the Dominican solution will not be through violence but through democratic processes.

2. The Brazilian commander of the inter-American force at Santo Domingo will be reviewing his needs and Rusk hopes a substantial number of the approximately 21,000 American troops still there can be withdrawn soon. However, some will stay on for some time under the Organization of American States banner.

3. A number of the Western Hemisphere's foreign ministers will meet in Washington Thursday to review the Dominican situation and consider, among other things, what arrangement might be made for a standby inter - American force which could be rushed to trouble spots while the OAS is going through its consultation process.

4. "In Paris they might give more attention to the fact that the countries of the hemisphere are dealing with this problem. This is a matter in which the French government does not carry a very heavy responsibility." That was in connection with today's French Cabinet pronouncement against "foreign intervention" in the Dominican Republic.

5. The main unfinished business in the Dominican Republic is the formation of a moderate interim government to run the country until election can be held for a permanent government. The negotiations for a coalition regime are a difficult process, but most Dominicans believe that a democratic —not extremist — solution is the answer.

south of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

An undisclosed number of F105s hit two North Vietnamese river boats, three barracks and eight bridges near Vinh, according to initial reports.

A U.S. spokesman said all planes returned safely despite heavy antiaircraft fire over Vinh.

On the political front, a dispute developed over the appointment of two new ministers to Premier Phan Huy Quat's three-month-old government. Reliable sources said Chief of State Phan Khac Suu refused to approve the appointment of Nguyen Trung Trinh to take over the Economic Ministry from Nguyen Van Vinh and Tran Van Thoan to replace Nguyen Hoa Hiep as interior minister.

Sausalito Stolen Car Found Across Bridge

Two San Francisco service station attendants were placed in Marin County jail shortly after noon yesterday by Sausalito police on charges of car theft. They are Robert La Barth, 20, and David Boschetti, 19.

They were arrested Sunday night by San Francisco police in a 1961 Austin Healey, stolen April 13 from Pierre Clauzon, 96 Glen Drive, Sausalito.

Lack Of Water Slows Sausalito Fire Fight

Lack of water slowed Sausalito firemen yesterday in fighting a fire in the crumbling ship ways at Gate 3, Marinship.

Firemen were called to the scene at 4:30 p.m. They used water from their trucks but had to stop fighting about 10 minutes when water ran out. They then ran hoses 950 feet across a field to Ellis A. Lando property for more water.

Black Smoke from the fire rose 30 feet and could be seen from the Tiburon Peninsula and San Francisco.

Fire Chief Charles E. Masten said 10 Sausalito firemen and 10 volunteers responded, along with fire trucks from the county fire stations in Marin City and Woodacre.

Chief Masten said it took 10 minutes to "knock down" the blaze but two and one-half hours to extinguish it because of rotted lumber.

"The area is potentially very hazardous," he added, "because there is no water there and so many buildings are involved with people living in them. It's hazardous to firemen, too, because of the broken-down condition of the ways."

Masten said many hydrants in the immediate area of the ways are dead. They found but one which supplied water from a one and one-half inch line, which he called "inadequate."

A sidelight at the fire occurred when Floreal (Rusty) Romera frantically waved Sausalito firemen to detour at least a foot yesterday while they were crossing a field and laying hose to get a hookup at Lando property in Marinship.

Romera, who works at nearby Sturiale Fish Co., and was helping fight the fire, next erected a box barricade, to further puzzle the firemen.

In his five-year program he envisioned $60,000 for a new fire station, $60,000 for new fire equipment, $250,000 matching money with the state and county for land acquisition on Center Street and construction of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, $50,000 for storm sewers, and $50,000 for improvements to Memorial Park.

Flautt said that if the council did not designate a capital improvement fund, he would recommend a bond issue to finance such major projects as a new fire station and improvement of Memorial Park.

"The longer you put off improvements the more costly they become," he said.

Last year the city gave up purchase of "a badly needed sweeper in deference to general operation budget requests and the tendency to hold the tax rate to the bare minimum," Flautt said.

its resolution last night said the bill would "create the possibility of double taxation without regards to benefits," and is "unfair and unjust to the citizens of San Anselmo."

The council asked that the bill be withdrawn from further consideration or that San Anselmo be excluded from any district that would be taxed.

City Atty. John G. Buresh said the board of supervisors did not invite cities to discuss the proposed bill "or ask their opinion."

The resolution will go to supervisors and to McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who introduced an identical measure in the assembly.

Garbage Truck Dumps At Wrong Place In Novato

James Speights of San Francisco was reported in satisfactory condition at Novato General Hospital at noon today, minutes after the garbage truck he was driving to a dump north of Novato ran down a bank and turned over.

Witness to the accident was California Highway Patrolman Ted McGuire, who had waved a truck to the side of Highway 101 to check its registration. McGuire said he saw the garbage truck round a curve before the turnoff to the dump and head toward his patrol car. It missed the car and crashed down the slope from the highway, landing on its side in the pasture below.

One of Speight's legs was pinned under the rim of the windshield of the topless car. The truck was raised with a tow truck lift and Speights was freed, McGuire said.

Nurses at the hospital said he had a broken leg and was being treated for other injuries.

'13th Juror' Case Under Advisement

Judge Joseph C. Wilson of Marin Municipal Court today took under advisement a legal wrangle in which he indicated he may set aside a jury's guilty verdict for a Tiburon lawyer charged with reckless driving over a year ago.

The action, sometimes called "being the 13th juror," would be taken in the case of Harvey E. Groudine, cited by California Highway Patrol on March 22, 1964, on Highway 101.

Groudine was convicted by jury April 21. Judge Wilson granted the defense a new trial. On reviewing the case, however, he said he found that despite the verdict, insufficient evidence had been presented.

The law, he said, not only gives him the right to dismiss the case, but makes it his duty to do so under those conditions. At a hearing this morning for dismissal, however, he was confronted by application of Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales to file an affidavit that Judge Wilson was prejudiced in the case and asking for its transfer to another municipal judge for possible new trial.

Bales declared since neither prosecution nor defense had waived a jury, the judge should either be bound by the former's verdict or should have dismissed the case before jury deliberation began.

Alvin H. Goldstein, San Francisco attorney representing Groudine, called the district attorney's attempt to switch courts as "judge-shopping" and "horrendous."

He added that any attempt by Bales to force him to persuade yet another judge there was insufficient evidence is "rather a sporting theory of justice."

Judge Wilson said he will rule tomorrow on whether he will dismiss the complaint or permit its hearing before a second judge.

Stolen Pickup Linked To Flight Of Two Convicts

A pickup truck, stolen Sunday in San Rafael and found abandoned yesterday by Vallejo police, may have been used in the weekend escape of two San Quentin inmates, sheriff's deputies said today.

Leuane L. Baugh of Baugh Electrict Co., 523 Jacoby Street, told officers the locked vehicle was stolen from in front of his buildng Sunday night by forcing a door and wiring the ignition.

The prisoners, Thomas Boyd Turner, 26, and William Clark Mason, 29, fled from the prison's ranch outside the walls Saturday. Officers said two trails of persons walking through tall grass in a likely route from the ranch were evident near the Jacoby Street address.

In Fair Condition After Truck Crash

Juan Napolas, 20, of San Francisco, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital, where he was taken after his Marin Sanitary Service truck crashed into a garage at 684 Las Colindas Road, Terra Linda, yesterday.

Nurses at the hospital said Napolas may have suffered a concussion. The accident did extensive damage to the garage, owned by J. Bradford John.

Pre-War U.S. Tokyo Envoy Dies At 84

Grew was in Japan for nine years marked by Japanese violation of treaties and aggression.

An American "White Book" issued by the State Department in 1943 revealed that Grew had cabled on Jan. 27, 1941, that the Japanese had plans for a "surprise attack" on Pearl Harbor.

When the attack came on Dec. 7, Grew was stunned but not surprised.

Grew would have celebrated his 85th birthday tomorrow.

He was born to a wealthy Boston family and educated at Groton and Harvard.

Compact Bus Wrecked, 2 Men Injured

Sheldon Jacknowitz and Daniel Ralph Howard, both of 222 Fourth Street, San Rafael, were reported in "satisfactory" condition today at Marn General Hospital, after their Volkswagen bus overturned 15 miles east of Sacramento yesterday.

Jacknowitz, 38, suffered a fractured right wrist and multiple cuts when he was thrown from the bus as it rolled down a 15 foot embankment on Highway 80 at 2:15 a.m.

Howerd, 26, the droiver, suffered a back injury.

The California Highway Patrol in Sacramento reported the west-bound bus careened into a freeway fence and landed upright at the bottom of the embankment, after turning over "two or more times." Howard climbed to the highway to flag down assstance.

Four Teachers Due Honors

Four retiring teachers will be honored at the annual dinner of the Tamalpais District Teachers Assn. tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at Peacock Gap Country Club.

The retiring teachers are Victor Rowe, Kay Martin and Louise Abbot of Tamalpais High School and Paul Daly of Redwood High School.

Master of ceremonies for the evening will be district foreign language supervisor Miles McColm. Beverly Barnes, English teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School will sing popular songs, spirituals and blues.

Boy, Bicycle Tangle With Two-Ton Truck

Nine-year-old Mark Nicolaisen and his bicycle tangled with a two-ton van on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Anselmo at 3:40 p.m. yesterday, and the boy escaped with scrapes on his face and right leg. He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

San Anselmo police reported the boy, son of Arthur Nicolaisen of 9 Hilldale Avenue, was riding east at the edge of the street on the westbound side near Spaulding Avenue when his bike hit a submerged rock in a puddle and bounced into the side of a westbound van driven by Charles G. Fapprano, 41, of San Francisco.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Dora Duggan, 80, Succumbs

Mrs. Dora H. Duggan, 80, of 11 Bret Avenue, San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Sebastopol, she lived in Marin County 56 years. She was the widow of Edward B. Duggan, and was a member of Division 106, Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy M. Gagnon of San Rafael, two grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Requiem high mass will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. SCHULTZ

Mrs. H. A. Schultz, mother of Robert R. Schultz of 35 Filbert Street, Sausalito, died yesterday in Milwaukee, Wis., following a six-week illness. A widow, she was 65, and a lifetime Milwaukee resident.

She is survived by two sons, Robert, and Howard of Milwaukee, and eight grandchildren. Funeral and interment will be in Milwaukee.

MRS. HENDERSON

Mrs. Frances Henderson, 48-year-old practical nurse, was found dead in her home at 200 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, yesterday.

Asst. Coroner William C. Bradley said death, from natural causes, apparently occurred about 10 a.m. The body was found at 4 p.m. by 11-year-old Kent Curtis Henderson, son of Mrs. Henderson's former husband, Albert B. Henderson of San Rafael.

Mrs. Henderson was a native of New York. She had left Maran County after her divorce in 1951 but returned to make her home here four years ago. She had been employed at convalescent hospitals.

DR. McCLOSKEY

Funeral for Dr. Felix C. McCloskey, 65, of 1716 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, who died in a local hospital Monday, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, conducted by Marin Lodge 191, Free and Accepted Masons. Burial will be private.

Dr. McCloskey, a chiropractor, practiced in Ukiah from 1925 to 1929.

The family prefers contributions to the American Cancer Society as tribute to the deceased.

JOHN LUETKE SR.

Funeral for John Reynold Luetke Sr., 71, of Mill Valley, a retired auto mechanic, will be held Friday noon at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Luetke died Monday while on a visit to Reno.

Funeral will be under auspices of Odd Fellows Lodge 200, San Rafael, of which Luetke was a member. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

Luetke, who lived 40 years in California, last resided at 45 Lomita Drive. He worked 33 years as an auto mechanic, his last job being at Hamilton Air Force Base. He was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife, Arizona Marie Luetke; a daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Newman of Corte Madera; a son, John Reynold Luetke Jr. of Fort Rucker, Ala., and three grandchildren. He was a native of Wisconsin.

W. P. Von HUSEN

William Peter von Husen, 90, of San Rafael, former San Rafael grocer, died yesterday in a local convalescent home, a victim of pneumonia.

A native of Hamburg, Germany, he came to this country at age 16, going to work in San Francisco's wholesale produce district. In 1906, he and two brothers opened the William von Husen Grocery Co. in the Cheda Building on San Rafael's Fourth Street. He had lived in Marin County since then.

The store operated for about 15 years.

He was a 50-year member of Golden Gate Lodge 30, Free and Accepted Masons, San Francisco.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Margaret McWilliams of Greenbrae and Mrs. Anita Liston of Los Altos, seven grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, conducted by Golden Gate Lodge 30, F and AM. Burial will be private.

Reed Ponders New Principal

Trustees set a special closed session for 8 p.m. June 3 at Del Mar School for further discussion of principal hiring, Supt. Edward C. Pino reported.

TRACKS RAISED FOR NEW STREETS

Latest phase in work on the Highway 101 interchange at the San Rafael overpass has been the raising of five sets of Northwestern Pacific railroad tracks to the level where the new Second Street extension will go. Planned as an eastbound one-way street, Second will go under the highway after crossing creek at left of picture. The state Division of Highways regional office in San Francisco said yesterday that the state, rather than the railroad, is paying for the track alterations. Eight Seek Appointment As Planner

San Anselmo City Council members have more candidates for a vacancy on the city planning commission than they expected.

Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro reported last night that eight persons have indicated they would like to be appointed to the commission.

An opening occurred when Planning Commissioner Charles R. Leitzell was appointed city engineer and resigned from the commission.

The eight candidates are Gordon Hughes, 28 Ridge Road; Pieter Toal, 48 Hawthorne Avenue; Allan J. Greighton, 56 Bella Vista Avenue; Kenneth L. Anderson, 460 Laurel Avenuee. G. C. Davison, 434 Foss Avenue; Hub Newlin, 134 Alder Avenue, Dennis T. Moore, 147 Allyn Avenue, and Nicholas D. Cery, 1212 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The council agreed to have a special session June 7 at 7:30 p.m. at city hall to confer with the candidates before making an appointment.

Alabama Aides Friendly To King

SELMA, Ala. (AP)— Following a friendly reception by Alabama legislators, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said the potential voting power of the Negro has at last won recognition.

King said the audience given a group of Negroes in Montgomery yesterday by three of Gov. George Wallace's top legislative leaders proves that other House and Senate members also are ready to hear Negro grievances.

The Negro minister, speaking last night to a throng in a Negro church, then predicted that the receognition from the Legislature, plus the vote of "lots of good white people," ultimately will change the state's political structure.

Hub Downtown Post Office Urged

The San Anselmo City Council last night urged that the San Anselmo Post Office remain in the central business area.

Councilmen passed a resolution advocating a downtown location for the post office after receiving a petition with 164 signatures protesting a post office move. The petition was addressed to Rep. Don H. Clausen.

The council will send its resolution to Clausen and the postmaster general.

Postmaster Manuel Dos Reis said the government still has three years left on its lease at the present location at 333 San Anselmo Avenue, and talk of a move is "premature."

Younger Says AEC Set On Power Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Congressman J. Arthur Younger says the Atomic Energy Commission intends to build an overhead power line through Woodside, Calif., and doesn't want any local agency or any court to stand in its way.

Younger, R - Calif., made the statement yesterday after a congressional subcommittee scheduled a hearing to consider the controversy.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee, said the Thursday meeting was called for tomorrow to clarify congressional intent in the 1954 Atomic Energy Act.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in San Francisco ruled May 20 that the act prevented the AEC from building the overhead line, because the construction does not conform with Woodside building codes.

"Nothing in this act," section 271 provides, "shall be construed to affect the authority or regulations of any federal, state or local agency."

Pastore said he will propose that the section be amended to allow the AEC to arrange for the overhead line through Woodside to the Stanford linear accelerator.

The proposed amendment to the section would add: "Provided, that this section shall not be deemed to confer upon any federal, state or local agency any authority to regulate, control or restrict any activities, including those of the commission, which authority such federal, state or local agency did not otherwise possess."

"They are determined to build the power line," Younger said. "If they want to do something, they don't want any local agency to stand in their way. They don't want to be thwarted by any court."

Austin Clapp, a lawyer for Woodside, said the city will have a delegation at the hearing to protest the amendment.

Younger, who lives in San Mateo County, said he will also testify against it.

San Pablo Bay Danger Zone Set

A temporary danger zone will be established in San Pablo Bay from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. for three days starting June 15, according to Lt. Col. Robert H. Allan, Army district engineer in San Francisco.

The zone will be used for training exercises by the Coast Guard in an area north of Pinole Shoal Channel between the mouths of Petaluma River and Sonoma Creek. It will be patrolled during exercises.

San Anselmo Adopts Master Plan For Community Park

The San Anselmo city council last night adopted a master plan for San Anselmo Memorial Park designed to provide facilities for all ages from tiny tots to senior citizens.

Recreation Director Andrew J. Snyder outlined the plan, which would provide play areas, picnic grounds and an amphitheater.

First phase of development would be filling in of an area at the northeast corner of the park.

The plan does not include a swimming pool, and it calls for eventual elimination of the regulation baseball diamond.

Snyder suggested that adult baseball games be played elsewhere so the area can be used to provide other facilities. He said "it would be some time," however, before the diamond is eliminated.

Purposes of the plan is to develop a community park that "would give more people an opportunity to use," Snyder said.

Badminton and volley ball courts and a wading pool are among the facilities planned.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

1. Unanimously adopted an emergency ordinance, effective, requiring a parked vehicle to leave 12 feet of unimpaired roadway.
2. Endorsed the county's $7,750,000 bond issue for construction of the Hall of Justice at the Civic Center by a 4-1 vote, with Councilman Cedric E. Clute dissenting. Clute said it has not been proved to him "that we have to do it this wey." County Administrator Alan Bruce requested the endorsement.
3. Passed an ordinance restricting vehicles on riding and hiking trails in the city.
4. Discussed briefly the possibility of enacting an ordinance prohibiting uninvited solicitors from operating in the city. Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani reported his office was "besieged" with complaints about solicitors who were "insistent, bold and sometimes argumentative." He urged adoption of the ordinance.
5. Ordered Nicholas Guliaeff of 41 Austin Avenue to remove his dog, a German shepherd, from the city within 30 days after receiving a petition signed by 20 residents saying the dog was dangerous and had bitten a child and a milkman. Guliaeff, backed by several witnesses, contended the dog was not "a mean dog" and is now chained.
6. Reappointed Valerie M. Ansel and Louis Yates to the San Anselmo library board for four years.
7. Approved request of the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce to install a five-by-seven foot directional sign at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tunstead Avenue, indicating the shopping area. The council specified that the sign be installed in the island at the south side of the intersection.
8. Received a request from the Chamber of Commerce for a city contribution of $2,400 to the chamber, but took no action on it.
9. Appointed Vincent L. Sloane, an airman first class at Hamilton Air Force Base, as a police officer, effective June 1, at $505 a month. He will fill the vacancy left by resignation of Officer Bernard Del Santo. Sloane, a reserve officer, was number one on the department's eligibility list.

Funds Available For Pay Hikes

Money to finance pre-budget Marin County salary increases, such as the $4,400 increase approved Monday for County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, is available from the fiscal 1966 budget reserve for contingencies, County Administrator Alan Bruce said today.

He recommends a reserve of $95,000 to cover all increases that the board might grant, including executive positions.

On Tuesday, supervisors are to receive the recommended salary schedule for the next fiscal year. They are expected to act on it June 7, two days prior to the start of budget reviews.

Property Owners To Hear Judge

Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner will speak at the first membership dinner of the newly formed Marin Property Owners Assn. at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at Dominic's Restaurant,, San Rafael.

Judge Gardiner will talk about the "vital role the Marin County property owner and businessman can play in his community."

Tickets are available through C. A. Stevens, association president; Charles D. Parmelee, dinner arrangements chairman, or at the restaurant before the dinner.

Terra Linda High Installation Set

New student officers at Terra Linda High School will be installed in the school ampitheater next Wednesday.

Student president Bonnie Brown will give the oath of office to the new officers, who will serve through the next school year. New student president Jeff Heintz will take over his duties, as will the others named in the March election.

Taking office as varsity yell leaders will be Penny Brody, Marcie Lewin, Laurie Oliver and Bob Keller.

Diane Abraham, Nita Whittle, Diane Blanch, Dianne Herrer, Molly Gallagher, Kathy Epidendio, Paula Brink and Sue Baldwin will take over as the school's new song leaders.

Berle Burglary Figure Is Fined

SANTA MONICA (AP)—Barbara Jean Lewis, 26, convicted in connection with a $30,000 burglary at the home of comedian Milton Berle, has drawn a $550 fine and a suspended prison term.

Superior Judge Mervyn Aggeler also placed her on five year's probation yesterday.

The nephew told police he turned the items over to Miss Lewis the day after the burglary and that she reported later that she had "fenced" (sold) them for $2,500.

Charges against Marshall Berle were dismissed when no complaint was filed against him.

CAL STUDENTS QUIZ KERR

After testifying yesterday at the Berkeley mass trial of 190 participants in last December's Sproul Hall sit-in, University of California President Clark Kerr participates in a question-and-answer session with some of the defendants. In background is Arthur Goldberg, a Free Speech Movement leader and headline figure in the more recent dirty word controversy. Kerr testified of talking to Gov. Edmund G. Brown during the sit-in, said there is no evidence the FSM demonstration was communist-dominated.

Legal Abortion Bill Survives Hearing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The first loosening of California's rigid abortion law in 100 years cleared an Assembly committee early today after four and one half hours of conflicting testimony from doctors and clergymen.

The debate — longest night hearing of the session—touched on legality, morality, theology, politics and medical practice and ethics.

At one point, a minister said approval of the bill would put lawmakers in the position of allowing murder. At another, an attorney told the committee of attorneys that an abortion violates the constitutional rights of an unborn fetus.

In the end, the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee —which killed similar legislation in 1961 and 1963—approved the measure on a voice vote. Only two audible "no's" were heard from the nine men present.

Assemblyman Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, had to revise the measure to obtain the votes needed. His aim is to change current law, which forbids terminating a pregnancy unless it is needed to save a mother's life.

Testimony before the committee made clear that some doctors in reputable hospitals throughout the state break the law when they feel it is for the best interest of the patient.

As approved, the bill would permit abortions generally when, "there is substantial risk that continatuion of the pregnancy would gravely impair the physical health of the mother or that the child would be born with grave physical defect." Bielsenson eliminated an original provision including danger to mental health of mother or child as reason for legal abortion.

The amended bill would allow legal abortions in cases of rape or incest if the local district attorney says this is the situation, and a total of seven doctors and the mother agree to the operation.

In all cases, two outside doctors must recommend the abortion and a panel of five physicians in approved hospitals would have to give unanimous consent.

Committee Kills Local Partisan Politics Proposal

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly Elections and Reapportionment Committee has rejected another attempt to inject party politics into California's local elections.

The committee, by voice vote, rejected yesterday a bill by Assemblyman William F. Stanton, D-San Jose, that would have required city, county and school board candidates to list their party affiliations on the ballot.

The committee also defeated by voice vote another Stanton bill that would have prohibited local governments from filling vacancies by appointment. The measure required that vacancies be filled at regular or special elections.

Addict Arrest Bill Outlasts Rights Protest

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Police would be allowed to arrest and detain for 72 hours anyone they suspect of being a narcotics addict under a bill approved by the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee.

The measure by Assemblyman George A Willson, D-Huntington Park, requires the arresting officer to take the prisoner to a county hospital or "other suitable institution." A physician's examination would be required within 24 hours.

An attorney representing the American Civil Liberties Union objected that the bill "places in the hands of any peace officer the power to seize any individual," and could allow search and seizure not related to the alleged narcotics offense.

The ACLU representative said the measure had no safeguards to prevent abuses of the law "even if the arresting officer acts maliciously."

Deputy Atty. Gen. Barry Bunshoft, speaking for the author, said an amendment will be added prohibiting prosecution of suspected addicts on other than the arrest charge.

Ripon in San Joaquin County was named in 1876 by Applias Crooks, the first postmaster, for Ripon, Wisconsin, his former home and the birthplace of the Republican party.

Cranston's Appraiser Revision Bill Advances

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Controller Alan Cranston's bill to remove his power of appointing inheritance tax appraisers has been moved to the Senate floor.

The overhauling of the controller's unlimited authority, embodied in a measure sponsored by Sen. James A. Cobey, D-Merced—which Cranston helped write — was unanimously approved last night by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill, Cranston said, would "shield" the appraisers from politics, but would still preserve the basic relationship they have with the controller and probate court judges.

Cranston, a Democrat elected to office in 1958, has absolute power in appointing the appraisers who serve at his pleasure.

Under the bill, which would eliminate a system in effect since 1911, the appraisers would have to be approved by probate court judges before serving staggered four-year terms.

They would also receive no fee for appraising cash and bank deposits and a $100 ceiling would be placed on the fee for appraising a listed stock.

Heavy emphasis would be placed on a would-be appraiser's training for the job. At least five years practice in California as an attorney, real estate broker, public accountant, trust or loan officer would be required.

Presbyterian Conservatives Lose Round

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Proposed revisions to modernize the 300-year-old confession of faith of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. have cleared the first hurdle, despite efforts of minority conservatives.

By a 643-110 vote, delegates to the 177th General Assembly agreed late yesterday to accept the report of the committee which drafted the new confession over a seven-year period.

The delegates also endorsed recommendations commending the 4,200-word document to the 3.3 million members for study, authorized appointment of a 15-member committee to consider amendments to the document and asked that the original committee continue as consultans to the new committee.

The new group will put its recommendations before the next general assembly in 1966. If its report is approved, the new statement of faith will go to the church's 195 presbyteries for a vote. If approved by a two-thirds majority, the document will go before the 1967 assembly for final action.

The proposed 1967 Confession of Faith touched off a flurry of controversy among minority conservative elements as debate ran all day and late into the evening before a vote was taken.

San Rafael Cayes Favored In Split Vote

The proposed San Rafael Cayes subdivision—1,577 apartment units surrounding a man-made lagoon in East San Rafael tidelands—was given San Rafael Planning Commission approval by a split vote last night.

Commissioners voted 5 to 2 to recommend rezoning of 100 unclassified acres of the property to planned community development and grant a use permit to build apartments at a density rate of one unit per 3,000 square feet of land.

Commissioners V. Judson Klein and John A. Miskimen voted no, but their opposition was to planning commission procedure, not the proposed 120-acre subdivision.

During a two-hour public hearing which preceded the vote, no objection was voiced to the design or proposed density of the development; all argument centered on seven and one-half acres of the land.

Six acres of this, on the western edge of the property, have been planned by San Rafael Cayes for use as park land. The city has shown an interest in acquiring the property.

TThe remaining one and one-half acres, shown as open land in the subdivision plan, may be needed by San Rafael City Schools for an addition to a school site.

Commissioners told L. H. Lincolin, president of San Rafael Cayes, Inc., that this acreage could not be counted as open land in the density if sold to the city and the school district.

Lincolin responded that it was a matter of bargaining—his company couldn't afford to give the land away unless assured it could be counted into the density.

He said he had been invited to bargain with City Mgr. Dan F. Andersen.

Miskimen asked that the commission defer voting on the development until the matter had been resolved. Klein agreed,, saying:

"I don't see what another two-week wait would hurt."

Lincoln responded angrily:

"The interest is $1,000 a day on our investment alone. We'd like to get some work done before the rains come again."

The commission then voted on the rezoning and use permit request, with Klein and Miskimen opposing. Klein said:

"Ayes vote is supposed to mean I am satisfied with the plan. I don't see how I can be satisfied on the assumption that everything is going to be decided after I cast my vote."

The 100 acres, if ultimately rezoned by the city council, would merge with a 20-acre plot, zoned for planned development in 1962. The use permit would apply to the entire 120 acres.

In recommending approval of the use permit, the commissioners attached a stipulation that, if the park and school land is sold, the developers would readjust to meet the density requirement, losing approximately 104 apartment units.

Proposition 14 Repeal Try Dead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A move to ask the voters to overturn their approval of Prop. 14 has died a quick legislative death.

The Assembly Governmental Efficiency and Economy Committee yesterday killed a proposed constitutional amendment by Assemblyman William F. Stanton, D-San Jose.

It aimed to revoke Prop. 14, which won approval from voters last year, and which repealed state laws against housing discrimination. The amendment would have had to go to the voters for a final decision.

LOW-COST OPERATION — Workers wash linen in the modern equipment of Marin General Hospital's laundry, relocated along with the central supply room in the most expensive of many change orders during construction of the Babcock addition. Cost of cleaning fell two cents a pound from that in the old laundry. Laundry supervisor Mrs. Virginia Pedersen says it would be still lower if surgical packs were prepared elsewhere.

HOSPITAL GROWING PAINS

Change Orders Slow Building

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK
(Last of Three Articles)

Construction of the Babcock Wing of Marin General Hospital and remodeling of the original hospital area was supposed to take 660 days from the time the contract was let.

It actually took 1,177½ days, ending Aug. 7, 1964. The cost of the job rose about $280,000 during that time.

Robert Stanton, architect of the hospital, has called the project "the most difficult job of its kind that's ever been done in the state."

"It was a very trying experience," he said. "I was on the job five years. If it had been all new construction it might have been two years."

There were two major problems, Stanton believes: Major changes after construction started and unexpected difficulties of remodeling the existing building without interfering with the hospital's business.

He had special praise for the staff, and no fault to find with the district board, which voted for 26 change orders, including 205 items.

"Central supply was moved without interrupting the operating room schedule," he said of the area where supplies are sterilized. "The girls in central supply are angels. They put up with untold difficulties."

The kitchen was enlarged and remodeled without missing a meal. Nursing stations were moved and reorganized, and patients often did not notice.

"I would never like to have another job like it," Stanton added.

During construction, membershop on the district board changed, and just as construction started, a new hospital administrator, William W. Turner, with new ideas, took over.

The changes, in plans and people, caused part of the slowdown and extra cost. A laborers' strike cost 50 days. But the contractor, Barrett Construction Co., may carry some of the blame by not having had enough men on the job.

"I personally had many serious and unpleasant conferences with Mr. Miner and Mr. Barrett (contractors' representatives) to push this job," Stanton recalled.

The contractor had his own complaints. He sometimes had to keep workmen out of some construction areas while the hospital board made up its mind, long after the contract was let, just what was going to be put in that place.

The largest single change, $96,619 relocating the laundry and central supply and redesigning all patient rooms, cost at least 20 days loss because work could not be done while the board was deliberating.

Remodeling the existing building cost the most time. No one, at the start, realized how difficult it would be to remodel a building which is operating 24 hours a day.

On a highway construction project, Stanton explained, techniques for rerouting traffic and timing have been worked out to a fine art. The same cannot be said for construction in a hospital.

The bid for the Babcock Wing construction came in at $2,079,700, well below expectations. The change orders totaled $227,653 billed by the contractor, but other costs, including Stanton's fees, pushed the additional cost above $280,000.

However, the cost of the cobalt bomb installation may be subtracted, since construction was made possible by a late donation, anonymous at the time, of $100,000 by Mrs. Kenny Grauenhage. The construction cost for the bomb was $56,236.99.

Also, another gift allowed the $30,842.42 addition of a library and conference room.

However, there was an added expense before the radiation device was installed. The low bidder on the equipment met all specifications but required a different kind of shielding in the walls than that provided.

The district was forced by law to take the low bid, and then had to spend an extra $3,330 and 30 days to adjust for installation.

Stanton defends the board for making the multitude of changes, in spite of extra costs and delays.

"In every instance these changes were real contributions to the project and the welfare of the taxpayers of the Marin Hospital District," he said. Also, noted board president Mrs. Marion C. Ibach, changes were made without cost to the taxpayer, from contributions and money collected from patients in regular operation.

And, after interviews with most department heads in the hospital, those persons in charge of areas which underwent the most extensive changes now have the fewest complaints.

One of the happiest with the changes has been Mrs. Barbara Latta, in charge of central supply.

Central supply, which sterilizes and stockpiles supplies for the entire hospital nursing area, had been crammed into a corner of the operating rooms area.

Its size was more than doubled, and new high temperature sterilizers were installed.

The move gave much more storage space also to the operating room area. Mrs. Dorothy Dalk, in charge there, said she believed the hospital operating rooms would not have to be changed much to handle twice the present load. The rooms would merely be kept in service longer each day and on weekends.

Mrs. Virginia Pedersen supervises the hospital's housekeeping operation and the laundry, and is proud of the ability to wash more than two tons of linen a day for about seven cents a pound, down from nine cents in the old location.

In fact, Mrs. Pedersen said, the operating costs of the laundry would be even lower if surgical packs were prepared in some other department. Laundry air is full of lint, and the lint must be removed, largely by hand, from fabrics used for operations.

Finally, dietician Mildred Jones, who has worked in the past for a catering firm which served large hospitals and schools, said she is more than satisfied with the expanded facilities, although some minor improvements still need to be made.

In both the kitchen and the laundry, the changes made space for new machinery, cutting down on the workers needed to save money in the long run, according to Turner.

New Kind Of Shock In Law Offices

SKOWHEGAN, Maine (AP) — Electrician Lawrence McIntyre got a different kind of shock than he's accustomed to while working in a law office. He opened a cupboard-like box to find a skeleton hanging inside.

Seems it had been used as an anatomical model in court cases.

Cooperative Nursery, Museum Still On List

Some 100 persons turned out last night to cheer on a lengthy appeal to the San Rafael Board of Education to keep the cooperative nursery program in the 1965-66 budget—only to find the battle may have been won before they started.

The same thing happened on a smaller scale later in the evening in regard to the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum.

Reports on the nursery and museum programs came in response to queries two weeks ago by the newest board member, Mrs. Anita C. Strom, who had confessed she did not know enough about them to decide whether either should be retained in the budget.

The hour-long report on the nursery program was led by Asst. Supt. Mitchell L. Voydat. Speakers were Milton Babitz of Sacramento, consultant to the state's adult education program; Mrs. Sylvia Thalman, a founder of the San Rafael program, and Richard A. Kahn of Greenbrae, a former San Rafael resident.

Report on the science museum was shorter, more informal, and consisted mainly of comments by Laurel Dell Intermediate School sixth grade teacher Walter Benson, whose pupils make frequent trips to the museum.

The cooperative nursery is part of the high school district's adult education program. Its stress, the speakers said, is on educating parents on modern techniques of child-rearing rather than providing a simple nursery facility. Its net cost to the district this year was $3,500. Schools Supt. Bert C. Corona said three more teachers would be needed, increasing it by $1,500 in the 1965-66 school year.

The museum is independent of the schools, but depends on the county's school district to help support it. Asst. Supt. William R. Jordan said the elementary district has paid about $400 this school year.

Board members made no decision on either program, but Corona said they were included in the tentative budgets. The board had tentatively scheduled a budget study period for last night, but gave it up when the hour grew late.

At 7:30 p.m. today, however, the board will hold an adjourned meeting exclusively for study of the budgets.

The dilemma of the board members—particularly the three new ones—was voiced by Mrs. Strom after hearing the museum report.

"This is what is confusing me," she said. "You can present all kinds of worthwhile things and say we should pay for them. But where do you stop?"

Her feelings were echoed by another new board member, Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., who observed that the board must "slice the pie" with what money it has, even at tne expense of some programs its members do not want to curtail.

Rain Unlikely Through Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rain is unlikely through onday in Northern and Central California, today's five-day forecast said.

There is a chance, however, of a few showers at times on the extreme north coast.

Temperatures will hold close to normal.

Overcast can be expected during night and early morning hours near the ocean.

Synanon Bill Is Scheduled For Committee

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill for stricter control over Synanon houses was scheduled to go before the Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee today.

The bill, SB 1346, was introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

Under it, narcotic rehabilitation centers would be licensed by the state director of public health. The measure specifies that local zoning restrictions must be observed, and such a center may not be characterized as a single family residence for zoning purposes.

Rail Crossing Money Promised

Marin County has been promised nearly $2,000 from a state fund to help pay for better warning signals at the new Mar West Street crossing of Northwestern Pacific railroad tracks west of Tiburon.

County supervisors had agreed to pay the $7,845 cost of two flashing signals, but had asked the state's crossing protection fund to allocate half of this amount.

Instead however, the state Public Utilities Commission decided to provide $1,961.25 from the fund, or one-fourth of the total.

Usually such projects are financed with the railroad paying half, the state one-fourth and the city or county the rest.

Davidson School Gym $117,000 Addition Set

The San Rafael Board of Education last night approved preliminary plans for a $117,200 expansion of the Davidson School gymnasium.

Plans were explained by architect Ralph B. Priestley. He said the addition will double the size of the gymnasium, will expand locker rooms, add new lockers and improve facilities of the lunch canteen at one end of the present gym.

If the contract is awarded on schedule, Priestley predicted, work will start in August or September and be completed six months later.

In addition to the basic specifications, which Priestley said will cost some $129,000 including fees, tests and inspections, the plans call for three optional features estimated to cost another $22,000.

The board hired three new teachers for the 1965-66 school year, approved leaves, retirements or resignations for 11 other teachers, and re-hired 150 classified employees in both districts.

Teachers hired were Mrs. Carol Majors, who will teach elementary educationally handicapped classes: Kathleen Marcone, to teach high school chemistry, and Cheri-Lee Ottaviano, to teach primary grades.

Resignations were accepted from Terra Linda High School mathematics teacher Alan Chipman, Davidson school English teacher Mrs. Gail Davis, Short School third grade teacher Marsha Leahy, San Rafael High School art and ceramics teacher Dennis Moran, and Davidson School English and history teacher William Thompson.

Retiring are MacPhail School second grade teacher Charlotte Frehe, who has been with San Rafael schools for 30 years, MacPhail School vice-principal and teacher Clarence Herkner, a 29 year veteran, and San Rafael High School science teacher Mrs. Leota Thomas, with the high school district 11 years.

Also approved was the request of Lauriston Tardy, director of the Terra Linda High School English department, for a sabbatical trip to the South Pacific during the 1965-66 year. Tardy's written summary said he would assemble literary materials, make folk music recordings, and do research in Japan, Korea, Australia and other Pacific spots, but would "forego valor" and avoid Vietnam.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

1. Requested that representatives of the major utility firms attend future meetings to explore ways of cutting the schools' mammoth utility bills.
2. Adopted two new textbooks, "Architecture, Drafting and Design" and "General Woodworking, Third Edition."
3. Accepted $200 from the Glenwood School Parent-Teacher Assn. for library books.
4. Adjourned until 7:30 p.m. today for a budget study session. Like last night's meeting, it will be at the former E Street School.

French Hit U.S. On Dominicans

PARIS (AP) — The French government said today foreign military and political intervention in the Dominican Republic can pose a threat to world peace if it continues.

The statement was made following a regular French Cabinet meeting presided over by President Charles de Gaulle. Afterward, in a special communique, the Cabinet said:

"The French government is certain that the foreign intervention now in course at Santo Domingo in political and military domains can, if it continues, lead only to the extension there as well as throughout that region of the world of disquieting troubles for international peace."

Retired General Is On The Mend

MARCH AFB (UPI) — Gen. Thomas Powers, former head of the Strategic Air Command (SAC), was to be released today from the base hospital.

Powers had been hospitalized for the past week for treatment of a retinal hemorrhage in his left eye. The ailment was described as minor, but his doctor prescribed bed rest.

More Travel To U.S. By Foreign Visitors

CHICAGO (AP) — Foreign travel to the United States hit a new record high with 6,786,340 foreign visitors entering the country for pleasure and business in 1964.

The American Society of Travel Agents says the visitors spent $1.255 billion, breaking the previous high for foreign tourist spending in the U.S.

New Vote Slated On Labor Issue

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Senate was to reconsider late today a vote by which it refused to delete labor law sections making secondary boycotts illegal.

The bill by Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, D-San Francisco, failed 20 to 17 yesterday, one vote shy of the majority needed to move it to the Assembly. But senators agreed to reconsider the matter.

The secondary boycott — declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court in 1947—involves a union refusing to handle goods, or so-called "hot cargo," of another striking union. Farm groups maintain the law banning such measures should be kept.

Sewer Line Dilemma For Education Board

Members of the San Rafael Board of Education struggled again last night with strained relations with Las Gallinas Sanitary District, and wound up putting the whole confused issue over to tonight's budget session.

The adjourned meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. today at he former E Sreet School.

Two weeks ago, the board to charge the sanitary district the same amount for two easements on the MacPhail School grounds as the sanitary district was going to charge the school district for its share of the assessment.

Since then, however, the sanitary district got a court order condemning the easements and offered a $61 payment. Meanwhile, assessment notices came in which called for the schools to pay $13,760 by June 4.

After discussing the matter with Asst. County Counsel Richard Godino, the board authorized him to negotiate with the sanitary district. After Godino left, however, Supt. Bert C. Corona insisted the board must decide whether to pay the assessment or fight it in court.

Unable to reach a decision, board members set it over to to tonight.

Assemblyman's Trial Set In Bribery Case

New Habit For Nuns Is Shown

LONDON (AP) — Nuns at the Roman Catholic Convent of Our Lady of Sion introduced today a streamlined habit with skirt hems raised eight inches to a foot. The new garb also does away with the nuns' traditional large white, starched collar.

The headpiece is smartened up and pushed back off the shoulders to hang smartly down the back, showing more of the wearer's face.

Senators Try Again For Salary Increase

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Senators, who insist they are grossly underpaid, again have approved measures allowing legislators to set their own pay. At present, legislative paychecks are $500 a month.

But the constitutional amendments by Sen. Virgil O'Sullivan, D-Williams, must win voter approval if placed on the ballot next year. The two measures would allow legislators to set their salary either by a majority or by a two-thirds vote.

Strep Infections Lead Disease List

Streptococcic infections again topped the list of communicable diseases in Marin County last week with 79 cases reported, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

The figure represented a rise of four on the previous week, with 48 of them located in Novato and 18 in San Rafael.

Other diseases reported were: mumps, three cases, all in San Rafael; measles, two, both in Marin City.

BRIDGE TRAFFIC IS UP IN 28 YEARS OF LIFE

There was a time 28 years ago when only 9,000 cars a day crossed the Golden Gate Bridge.

There are now 68,500 crossings a day and the number is increasing, reported L. E. Castner, president of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Tomorrow is the 28th anniversary of the opening of the bridge. It was opened to pedestrians May 27, 1937, and to auto traffic May 28.

Since then about 330,150,000 vehicles have crossed the bridge.

Annual traffic for the first year was 3,311,512 vehicles and the annual traffic for 1965 is estimated at 25,100,000.

Average daily revenue in 1937 was $4,400; now it is $15,000.

San Rafael City Hall Changes In Offing

There may be several new faces around San Rafael City Hall before the summer is out.

Six appointments to the city's park and recreation commission and library board are up for consideration now and two planning commissioner's terms will expire in July, according to Mayor C. Paul Bettini and City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen.

Bettini has asked city councilmen to be thinking about possible appointments to four of the five seats on the parks and recreation commission at the council's June 7 meeting.

Bettini said several citizens have written to volunteer their services. Other applications also will be welcomed, he added.

Technically, all present park and recreation commissioners except Charles L. Tacchi are "lame ducks." The terms of Mrs. Anita C. Strom, Arthur W. Feidler Jr. and Mrs. Norma Wall expired last year, but were informally continued without action on the council's part, Andersen said.

Following the April city election, the council removed Irwin Taranto. Mrs. Strom has said she planned to resign soon because of her new board of education duties.

Library trustees Philip F. Brown and Donald E. Paterson Jr. are "lame ducks" also. Retiring Mayor John F. McInnis took no action when their terms expired in April. Library board appointments are made by the mayor, subject to ratification by the council.

Mayor Bettini said he is planning to interview prospective board members before he nominates, and hopes to name at least one person from other than "downtown San Rafael," but "I have no idea who it will be."

All prospective appointees should be interviewed before decisions are made, Bettini urged. "If they're going to represent us, we should know what they think, what their background is," he stressed.

Terms of planning commissioners Thomas R. O'Toole and Charles J. Hendrickson will expire in July, but Bettini said he and the council have not yet thought about those vacancies.

The city fire commissioners' appointments all run into next year, City Manager Andersen reported.

Exercises Set At Junior High

Promotion exercises for 370 eighth graders at Hill Junior High School in Novato will be held at 2 p.m. June 10 in the new gymnasium at Novato High School.

Parents andfriends of the students will be welcomed by Dale Pensotte, fall student body president. Dist. Supt. James G. Bunker will present several scholarship awards.

The farewell address will be given by Wendy Kanoff, spring student body president.

Hamilton Calls Bids On Office Machines

Call for bids on surplus office machines at Hamilton Air Force Base has been issued by the defense surplus sales office.

The machines may be inspected between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. June 4 through June 23 in building 727 on the base. Bids will be opened at the Oakland Defense Surplus Sales Office, Naval Supply Center, at 10 a.m. June 24.

Scholarships Slated For Eight Students

Awards of eight scholarships of $250 each to graduating high school seniors in Marin County was announced today by the Marin County Parent - Teacher Assn. scholarship committee.

Three of the winners are students at Sir Francis Drake High School—Michael Stephens, Michael Peet and Laura Gavre, all San Anselmo residents.

Scholarship recipients at Novato High School are Pamela Coletti and Ninette Larson, both of Novato.

Other winners are Clement Glynn of San Rafael, student at San Rafael High School; Donna Spencer, of Terra Linda, at Terra Linda High, and Lavon Kieffer of Tomales, at Tomales High.

The eight $250 scholarships were financed through 10-cent allocations from membership fees in participating parent-teacher associations and other parent-school clubs.

The scholars, their counselors and principals will be guests of the scholarship committee at a dinner June 2 at Drake High.

BLUSHING ROMEO SAVED BY LITTLE BLUE PILLS

"Every time I go on a date I take one and then I'm immune from my troubles for several hours," says Tim, 21.

Every time Tim bussed his girl friend, blonde Billie Tordoff, 17, he blushed and broke out in a rash.

Schofield consulted a skin specialist. After test, the specialist said the rash was caused by emotional disturbance. He prescribed the blue pills.

Tim didn't say what the pills are, but apparently they're some form of tranquilizer.

Reed Trustees Favor New Teaching Ideas

Trustees of Reed School Distrct last night approved a host of new ideas, methods and aids for teachers.

They looked over a 29-page summary of the district program and progress, then approved the following:

Listening Centers—The aim is is to provide more listening centers, such as at Del Mar School, for recorded lessons with which pupils use earphones. Recordings would be aids in teaching foreign languages and spelling. The district has applied for federal funds toward cost of the centers.

Outdoor Education — Shift the outdoor education program from the summer school session to the regular school year, to include one week at Lokoya outdoor education camp. Make the program available to all sixth grade students, instead of a selected group as had been done.

ITA — The initials stand for Initial Teaching Alphabet, which includes some added letters to help youngsters learn to read. The program approved would use ITA materials to supplement existing reading materials at Belvedere and Tiburon schools.

Team Teaching — Extend the present practice at Reed School of multiple age grouping and shifting of children to different teaching groups for different subjects, according to individual ability. Two parents objected to this modifed ungraded, team-teaching approach last night; other parents backed the plan.

Noontime Supervision — Extend the half-time clerical teacher aide program at Belvedere, Tiburon and Granada schools, where such employes supervise lunch break, to Reed, Del Mar and Bel Aire schools. The plan would give teachers a minmum of a half-hour lunch break.

Audio-Visual Coordinator — A present staff member will take over the half-time post, which will include supervision of the closed-circuit television system coming for Granada School.

Psychologist Intern — An intern program in cooperation with San Francisco State College will give the district the services, for a "small stipend," of the intern for 35 to 40 hours a week, under guidance of the school psychologist.

Art and Musc Teachers — A half-time employe in each category will be added.

Supt. Edward C. Pino noted under each recommendation for program changes that any extra costs already have been included in the working budget of $1,167,713 which went to trustees in February.

Assassination As Federal Crime Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy strongly backed legislation today to make such offenses federal crimes.

Reps. Hale Boggs, D-La., and Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., criticized what they called confusion and lack of coordination in the hectic period after the assassination when Lee Harvey Oswald, accused of the killing, was in the hands of local authorities until he was killed while still in custody.

Ford quoted FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as telling the commission Oswald probably would not have been killed if the FBI had been able to take custody of him. Ford said Hoover also expressed the opinion that better and longer interrogation of Oswald might have brought a confession from him and avoided a fog of speculation about Kennedy's death.

The principal purpose of the legislation pending before a House judiciary subcommittee is to give federal authorities immediate and exclusive jurisdiction in any case in which a president or someone in line of succession to the presidency is killed, kidnaped or assaulted.

Poverty War May Benefit Rec District

The federal anti-poverty bill may assist the Marinwood Park and Recreation commission in getting leaders for its proposed summer recreation program, Commission Chairman William T. Lane Jr. said today.

Title 1C of the anti-poverty bill provides student work programs, including jobs as recreation leaders, up to 90 per cent of the salaries can be provided by federal funds, Lane said.

He said five or six students are needed for the program.

Commissioners last night recommended a budget of $750 to $1,000 to cover the local share of the cost.

The commission will meet again at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at the Marinwood Community Center to go over budget recommendations before submitting them to the Marinwood community services district board.

Redwood Bank Fuss Solution Appears Near

Merger Plan, Stock Purchase Ideas Discussed

Members of two factions warring for control of San Rafael's National Bank today predicted a solution to their differences will come soon—but they disagreed as to what that solution will be.

Bank president Byron W. Leydecker insisted his group is going to buy the stock of trustees who resigned as directors last December at the request of Comptroller of the Currency James Saxon.

However, one of the ousted directors, Douglas M. Christensen, said he and four other trustees are considering merging Redwood National with another bank—perhaps Bank of California.

MAINTAIN VALUE

"It is the concern of the majority of the voting trustees to maintain the value of the bank's stock," said Christensen.

"Toward this end it is up to us to appraise the shareholders what advantages might accrue by a merger with the Bank of California—or any other bank that is interested."

Bank of California has been Redwood's correspondent in San Francisco since the local bank opened.

Victor T. Cranston, senior vice president of Bank of California, said his firm has taken no active part in discussing such a merger.

"There is nothing doing along these lines," Leydecker said, contending that the merger rumor had been "going on for three months," largely at the instigation of the rival group of trustees.

COMMENT DECLINED

Attorney Roderick P. Martinelli, who resigned as the bank's counsel at the same time the five directors stepped down, declined comment on the likelihood of a merger.

Martinelli said "things are quiet" and will probably remain so until the First District Court of Appeals holds a July 20 hearing on a temporary injunction order of Marin Superior Court preventing a stockholders' election to reduce the number of directors from 11 to seven.

The voting trustees who were ousted as directors claim the stockholders have no right to make such a change under the bank's original articles of agreement, which placed election of directors in the hands of the trustees.

Leydecker said the "only logical answer" is his group's purchase of the ousted directors' stock. He predicted this would be accomplished, and publicly announced in a week or less.

Annex Plans Due Commission

Proposed annexations of the McDaniel and Albright lands and the Campbell property to Bolinas Public Utilities District be considered tomorrow by the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The meeting will begin at 8:15 a.m. at the Civic Center.

Also on the agenda is the proposed annexation of lands along the east side of Tomales Bay to the North Marin County Water District.

Dixie Due Reports

Trustees of Dixie School District are scheduled to hear reports on state testing of the district's fifth and eighth graders, and consider employment of eight new teachers and staffing of the district summer school at their meeting at 8 p.m. today at the district office, 35 Trellis Drive, San Rafael.

Novato Council Balks At Outlawing Peddlers

Supporters of a city-wide ban on uninvited door-to-door salesmen in Novato couldn't get a foot in the door with the Novato City Council last night.

Councilmen refused to introduce an ordinance outlawing all "solcitors, peddlers, hawkers, itinerant merchants and transient vendors of merchandise."

Several representatives of Fuller Brush Co. and Avon Cosmetics were on hand to protest the ordinance. They said their business would suffer.

Mayor Robert D. Carrow said the reputable salesperson would not be affected by the ordinance because he was, in effect, invited to come to the homes of regular customers.

The ordinance sets a maxmum penalty of $500 fine and 180 days in county jail.

Councilmen agreed to consider it again June 8.

The Novato City Council Also:

1. Unanimously endorsed a $7,750,000 County Civic Center bond issue to be voted on June 8. Supervisor William A. Gnoss appeared before the council to urge its passage.

2. Introduced an ordinance lowering the speed limit on Novato Boulevard between Our Lady of Loretto School and the western city limits from 35 to 25 miles per hour.

3. Approved a temporary pedestrian crosswalk at St. Paul Circle and Novato Boulevard for children crossing to Our Lady of Loretto School. The action was requested by R. F. Gunn of 8 St. Paul Circle.

4. Upheld planning commission approval of a lot split by Steven C. Keller at 1255 Yukon Way, which will result in lots slightly under the 10,000-square foot minimum for the area.

5. Returned to the planning commission appeal of its denial of an application of Harry Leff Jr. for a permit for construction of a garage addition to a single-family residence at 3 Nova Lane.

6. Overruled the planning commission to deny a 22-foot high sign for a Shell service station on Novato Boulevard, west of Wilson Avenue.

7. Approved an agreement for presentation to the Novato Unified School District board regarding mutual use of school grounds and playfields.

8. Upheld planning commission denial of a variance for a single-family residence on Kaden Street, appealed by K. D. N. Corp.

9. Introduced a zoning ordinance amendment rezoning property south of El Encanto Motel on Nave Drive from a limited agricultural to limited roadside business district, as requestd by Alexis Ellis.

10. Postponed discussion of the parks and recreation director's report on the little league until the June 8 meeting at request of little league officers.

Burglary Court Case Is Moved

Cases of two suspended San Francisco police officers and other men, suspects in the April 6 burglary of the San Francisco home of Sally Stanford (Mrs. Marsha Owen), yesterday were transferred to Judge Harry Neubarth's division of San Francisco Superior Court.

Suspended officers Salvatore Polani and Patrick Buckman and ex-convicts Wesley Gant and Louis Romero first were to appear before Judge Norman Elkington. Judge Elkington disqualified himself last week after he was challenged for having a possible bias in the case.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Walter Giubbini yesterday moved to have the cases moved to Judge Neubarth's court. The judge is expected to rule Friday whether the cases all will stay with him or will go to still other courts.

Recorder Society Elects Officers

Marin Recorder Society has elected Alfred Spalding of Ross as president for 1965-66.

Also elected were: vice president, Sue Erlenkotter of Kentfield; treasurer, Richard Hughes of Kentfield; secretary-editor, Toby Rein of Mill Valley; music coordinator, Peter Ballinger of San Rafael; chapter representative, Douglas Perrin of Mill Valley.

Novato Annex Plans Will Be Discussed

Annexations to the Novato Sanitary District totalling 43.5 acres will be considered by the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission on June 10.

The parcels consist of 8.3 acres south of Center Road and west of McClay Avenue, known as the Wisgerhof Annexation, and 35 acres on the north and south sides of Vineyard Road between Wilson and Sutro avenues, known as the Vineyard Road Annexation.

Another Baby Tangles Hospital-Doctor Fight

Marin Hospital District trustees last night were confronted with yet another potential problem concerning Dr. Stanford W. Ascherman. Mrs. Joyce Conway is soon to have another baby.

Dr. Ascherman is in the midst of a court battle with the district to gain staff privileges at Marin General Hospital. He was allowed to attend the birth of a baby to Mrs. Conway, of Terra Linda, one year ago today, after she threatened to deliver her own baby at the hospital otherwise.

A letter from Ascherman asking that he again be allowed temporary use of hospital facilities for the expected new birth was presented to the board last night and referred to the credentials committee of the medical advisory board for a report at a special meeting June 1.

The board took action to insure that in the future no blood alcohol test of a patient would be made without the patient's permission. This came in the wake of a Marin Municipal Court decision finding against the hospital in behalf of a driver who had been given the test without permission.

Following lengthy discussion on the proposed mental health facility to be built on the hospital grounds, the board asked the facilities expansion committee to present a master plan recommendation on general development of the hospital site.

Board members agreed to allow a call for bids on a sprinkler system in the warehouse area, but held up action on a pneumatic tube system.

New controller Thomas Sinna was authorized to sign hospital district checks. Sinna replaced Gordon Goodrich in the position.

School District Committee Bill Nearing Vote

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to eliminate county committees on school district organization has breezed through the Assembly and is on the verge of passage in the Senate.

According to Gilbert Oster, research assistant to Assemblyman Garrigus, main purpose of the measure is to transfer authority back to the elected county board of education. The county committee on school district organization is an appointed body.

The original Garrigus bill would have eliminated all county committees on school district organization and transferred the power to the county boards of education.

The measure passed the Assembly 59 to 3. But on May 17, the bill hung up on the Senate floor with a 19 to 19 vote.

The bill was then amended to make the measure permissive rather than mandatory. Under its present provisions, the State Board of Education may order the county board of education to act as the committee on school district organization on petition of either the county board or county committee.

Oster said the bill was introduced to remove conflicts that have developed within some counties. Elected county boards of education have been powerless to move for school unification if appointed county committees decided to block unification.

Larkspur Ice Skating Rink Blocked By Building Design

By 2-1 vote, the Larkspur Planning Commission last night rejected the architectural design for an ice rink, saying a metal building would not be good enough for the area.

The vote came just after William P. Schnell, who has served almost four years on the commission, submitted his resignation and left. Schnell said he was resigning at once because of a job change. His term expires June 30.

Commissioners Robert H. Lee and Colin White voted against the plans, and chairman William Fleckles, in favor. Commissioner Victor Donati abstained. Fleckles said he was unhappy about the design, but felt the building would help business in downtown Larkspur.

The rink was planned for East Ward Street and Rice Lane. The commission earlier approved a different design, which the builders said would be too expensive.

Plans by Everett Berg for a convalescent hospital on South Eliseo Road near Bon Air Road were approved.

Safeway Stores was told to return with a request for a variance on parking requirements before plans for a store at Magnolia Avenue and Bon Air Road could be approved.

Blood Center Open June 5

Marin Blood Center will take donations of blood Saturday, June 5, instead of this Saturday, as was reported in Monday's Independent-Journal.

The center will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. June 5 and will be closed Monday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Reservations for making donations may be made at blood center office at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

San Rafael Chamber Group Backs Bonds

Directors of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce yesterday unanimously endorsed the proposed $7,750,000 bond issue which will be put before voters June 8 as a means of financing the hall of justice at Marin Civic Center.

Directors also agreed to recommend that state Senate Bill 779, which would place all state junior colleges under a central board of trustees, be sent back to committee "for interim study."

Country Day School Aide To Be Honored

A banquet to honor Isabel Chesnut, administrative assistant and head of the lower school of Marin Country Day School will be held at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Meadows Oakview Club, Terra Linda.

Miss Chesnut, one of the founders of the school nine years ago, will be the guest of the school employees and former teachers.

Killing Youth Called 'Stupid'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The lawyer for a teen-ager says the boy "acted foolishly, ignorantly and stupidly, but not maliciously" when he shot and killed another high school student.

Patrick Hallinan's statement was made yesterday in the juvenile court hearing for Glen Caldwell, 15, accused of killing Rodney Garcia, 16, April 19 in gunplay at a drive - in restaurant near Balboa High School. Another youth was wounded.

The defense contended Glen came from "the wrong neighborhood" and had been intimidated by classmates. Glen lives in the Hunter's Point area, outside the Balboa district.

Five others, with Caldwell when he fired from a car window are also defendants.

EUGENE A. OSTAGGI
In line for top job

Development Group Vote Set June 17

Eugene A. Ostaggi of Sylvan Lane, Ross, a private investor and former executive vice president of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn., has been nominated for president of the Marin County Development Assn.

Assn. President Rex T. Silvernale said Ostaggi's name and the names of nominees for other offices will be voted on by development association members at their annual meeting June 17 at the Peacock Gap Country Club.

Others nominated for offices are:

Coast School Trustees Get Aide's Report

Fifteen recommendations, including suggestions on school philosophy, extra-mural coaching, more library books and inservice materials for teachers, were presented to Bolinas-Stinson School District trustees last night.

The 100-page report is result of a nine-month curriculum study by a dozen people, the citizens study committee.

Robert Spain, rural education supervisor in the county superintendent of schools office, presented the report. The board agreed to go over recommendations item-by-item at future meetings.

"The school philosophy should have in its content a statement such as, 'promote practices leading to the building of habits that are conducive to health, safety and physical and mental well being'," is one recommendation.

Others are: More assistance for coaching extra mural activities should be provided; three thousand dollars should be spent for books during 1965-66; in-service meetings or workshops should be available for teachers in new instructional media.

It was recommended that the school bulletin be distributed to all community residents and that a study of Bolinas graduates at Tamalpais High School should be continued over several years to see if a definite pattern develops.

The study, reported Mrs. Alyce Thompson, board clerk, showed Stinson and Bolinas students are "well above what is expected of them."

Copies of the report are available for reading at both school libraries and at county library branches in both communities.

Marines To Train

Martin N. Rau of Novato and Samuel B. Chapman of Greenbrae left Marin yesterday to begin Marine Corps recruit training in San Diego under the Marine reserve six-month active duty program. They will join Company M., Third Battalion, 23rd Marine Regiment in San Rafael on their return.

Novatans Flay $6.15 Planting Tax Cost Error

The difference between 35 cents and $6.50 brought more than 60 San Marin residents to the Novato City Councl meeting last night.

For nearly two hours, the obvious difference was restated by many residents who were annoyed because maintenance of landscaped median strips on streets in San Marin was to cost $6.50 per year for the average homeowner instead of 35 cents per year as estimated last fall.

Soon it become apparent that the council, planning department and most of the residents at the meeting, which was held in the auditorium of the community house because of the large turnout, agred the landscaping was desirable.

The San Marin developers, Sunset International Petroleum Co., had estimated maintenance of the stips would cost about 35 cents per homeowner per year.

At last night's meeting, Lawrence A. Coleman, city engineer, estimated that over a five-year period, maintence of the areas would cost about $47,750, of which $23,000 would be raised by a special tax of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation in San Marin.

Herbert Gordon, president of the San Marin Homeowners Assn., declared the difference between last falls estimate and the current one was too great to be a simple miscalculation and "bordered on mis-representation."

The council requested the developers, represented at the meeting by Dale Stringfellow, director of community relations, to discuss the landscaping plan and costs with the Homeowners Assocation. It then posponed further action on the matter for two weeks.

Mill Valley Due 'Street Name Bank'

A "street name bank" of persons who were pioneers or who have historical importance to the City of Mill Valley is being prepared by Harvey E. Bragdon, city planning director.

Bragdon told the planning commission last night that the names will be recommended to developers of Alto Bowl and North Ridge for use on subdivision streets. He said that he feels this is more suitable than some of the street names used.

Mrs. Lucretia Little, deputy city clerk, is assisting Bragdon in preparing the list.

The commission, which sat until 12:45 a.m. today, approved rezoning of land owned by Robert L. Hamann at the rear of 181 Miller Avenue from single family to multiple dwelling. Six other lots, for which similar rezoning was sought, were not acted upon pending Bragdon's investigation.

Appeals Board Session

A special meeting of the Marin County Board of Appeals has been scheduled for 2 p.m. next Tuesday to review proposed amendments to the county building code.

Do You Take Out Your Dentures At Night?

Modern dentures are expensive and easily damaged. Whether you take them out for the night or remove them only long enough to clean, they must be treated with special care.
But today there's a newer, safer way to clean dentures—soak them clean in KLEENITE!
Fast-acting KLEENITE combines three stain-removing actions: (1) detergent; (2) oxidizer; and (3) solvent. It safely soaks away discolorations—even dingy film and smoke stains.
IMPORTANT: A recent survey proves more dentists now give KLEENITE than all other denture cleaners combined. Soaking with KLEENITE beats even the hardest brushing with an ordinary dentifrice. Get KLEENITE at all drug counters.

Sottile Again Heads Students At College

RENATO SOTTILE
Wins second term

Sottile, of Mill Valley, beat Warren Glass of Sausalito 450 to 252.

The election drew 746 vooters to the polls, a record 37 per cent of the students at the college.

For vice president, John Bright of Kentfield, polled 447 votes to defeat Steve Tenney of Larkspur, who drew 233. Mike Solomon of San Rafael, running as a write-in candidate, received 13 votes.

Only other contested office was that of head song leader. Donna Sullivan of Novato, heading the group called the "Student Bodies," tied with Dorene Wilson of San Rafael, leader of "Try 7." The tie necessitates a runoff election.

Barbara Dillon of San Anselmo, unopposed for treasurer, drew 584 votes. Write-in candidate Dave Abel of San Rafael got 44.

Jered Dreyfus of Mill Valley was elected public relations commissioner with 614 votes. Write-in competitor David Cinti of San Rafael had 11.

Six hundred and twenty-nine votes, the highest number going to any single candidate, whent to Jim Brewer of Fairfax, unopposed for the rallies and assemblies commissioner.

The title of head yell leader went to Lawrie Driscoll of Novato, with 537 votes. Driscoll led the group called "Us Four."

Open Burning Now Illegal In County

Open burning is now illegal in areas under the jurisdiction of Marin County Fire Department, Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom announced between dawn and 11 a.m. providing they have permits.

San Quentin School? Well, Uh, Mmm, No!

Carl J. Brown of the San Rafael Board of Education last night presented the "final" report of a three-man committee to name the Canal Street elementary school site — then watched the recommendation fall on its face.

Brown said he, board president Walter J. Doll and schools Supt. Bert C. Corona had agreed on the name "San Quentin Elementary School."

Board members Anita C. Strom, Walter R. Castro Jr. and Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. looked at each other and frowned. Kramer groaned slightly.

Brown said the name was proposed to keep alive the name of the present San Quentin School, which will be closed next month. Corona pointed out that the name was there before the prison, and briefly cited its historical derivation.

"But Bert," complained Kramer, "people associated the name with only one thing—that big group of yellow buildings over there."

"Besides," observed Mrs. Strom, "I think your mail would get all mixed up."

In mock anger, Brown—who was acting chairman in Doll's absence—formed a new committee, named the three dissenters to it, and closed the subject with a loud bang of the gavel.

Ascension Day Services Slated

"Praise from Four Centuries," a choral vesper service for Ascension Day, will be presented by the parish choir at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Peace Lutheran Church, Mill Valley.

Edgar Jones will be soloist; Mrs. Robert Weill, organist and choir director.

Lie Detectors Not Absolute

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI official said yesterday lie detectors actually don't detect all lies.

John P. Mohr, assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, said: "The FBI feels that the polygraph technique is not sufficiently precise to permit absolute judgments of guilt or nonguilt without qualifications."

Mohr told a House subcommittee evaluating the use of polygraphs—lie detectors — that the device "is used as an investigative aid and the results are considered within the context of a complete investigation."

Home From Sea Duty

Petty Officer 3/c Rodney D. Norton, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Norton of 9 Meadow Drive, Mill Valley, is to arrive home Saturday after seven months sea duty aboard the Hancock in the South China Sea. His two years reserve status in the Navy ends Sept. 1.

Three Inmates Arraigned In Felony Assault Case

Three San Quentin Prison lifers — two of them brothers — yesterday were arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of the Jan. 21 felony assault on a fellow-inmate, Myford G. Duncan, 24.

Judge Peter Allen Smith granted a continuance until 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, for the trio to obtain counsel and enter pleas. They are James and John Schrenkengost, and Russell Dillard.

The trio allegedly beat Duncan senseless and cut his throat in the prison's paint shop. Duncan, who survived, is serving six months to 15 years on two counts of second degree burglary in Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Cause of the assault was not learned.

James Schreckengost was convited Dec. 18, 1956, in Contra Costa County for passing worthless checks, and again on July 8, 1959, in Monterey County for assault on another prisoner.

John Schreckengost was convicted Aug. 9, 1961, in Contra Costa County for first degree robbery. Dillard was convicted Dec. 12, 1961, of a Los Angeles County robbery and for possession of a weapon while a prisoner on May 20, 1965.

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)— It's estimated only 20 per cent of Pakistan's 110 million people are literate enough to sign their names. Only 30 per cent of the nation's school-age children attend school.

PUC Slates Phone Hearing

The California Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a hearing at 10 a.m. June 9 at the Novato Community Clubhouse on "extended services" for Novato, Ignacio and San Rafael by two telephone companies.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. has asked "extended service" between Ignacio and San Rafael. Western California Telephone Co. has asked "extended service" between Novato and San Rafael.

Extended service would do away with the toll charge on these calls, but the monthly rate on phones in the areas would be increased. The PUC has ordered an investigation of the rate structures proposed.

Condominium Plan Passes After Heated Argument

San Rafael planning commissioners got their first look at plans for development by the Broderick Investment Co. of 73 town-house, condominium apartment units at the end of Channing Way last night.

They approved a use permit for the development after a heated argument and one tie vote.

A roll call vote on the permit resulted in a three-three tie, with Commissioner Charles J. Hendrickson abstaining.

Dividing the commission was the lack of a stipulation that the apartment units on Channing Way have a 10-foot set back.

Planning Director George H. Rodgers recommended the stipulation. He pointed out that apartments just down the block were required to have such a setback.

The deadlock was broken when Klein said he saw no need for the setback and changed his vote to yes.

After the permit was granted, Brown angrily told the commissioners who voted yes:

"I just hope you keep this vote in mind when someone else comes in here asking for a variance from the standard setback on a street."

The development called Channing Terrace, will feature stilt-like apartments built on the side of the hill.

The density was estimated by Planning Director George H. Rodgers at 3,000 square feet for each apartment unit.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

1. Set regular meetings for June 9 and 22 and a special meeting for June 15. The regular meeting of June 8 was set back because of the special county election that day.
2. Set public hearings on proposed changes in the off-street parking requirements of the zoning ordinance for June 9 and 15.
3. Set public hearings June 15 on slope policy amendment to the subdivision ordinance and an amendment to the zoning ordinance to allow cluster developments in a planned unit development by use permit.
4. Approved the final map of the San Rafael Newport Co.'s 19-lot subdivision between Porto Bello West and Point San Pedro Road.
5. Approved a final map for Larkspur Village, a 12-lot subdivision on Larkspur Street, between Canal Street and Kerner Boulevard.
6. Put over until June 9 consideration of a variance to permit Northco Contractors to build a garage with no setback on the south side of Maywood Way.
7. Extended for one year the use permit of Ralph C. Croker for an office at 1800 Lincoln Way.
8. Denied architectural approval for island cover additions on the Shell Oil Service Station on the southeast corner of Lincoln Avenue and Second Street.
9. Approved the architecture of a drive-up market to be built by Abbott Western Co. on Fourth Street at Margarita Drive.
10. Approved the architecture of an 11-unit apartment to be built by Louis Gaviati on the north side of Belle Avenue, between Park Street and Valencia Avenue.
11. Approved the architecture of a commercial building by Ronald Antonioli on Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park.

$35 In Cash Taken At Home

Nancy L. Barnes of 20 Oak Grove Avenue, Woodacre, told sheriff's officers yesterday that someone entered through an upstairs bedroom window to steal $35 cash belonging to her son, Nolene.

Loss of two tool boxes and tools from the car garage of Phillis Benedetti, 1105 Via Escandida, Loma Verde, was also reported. Entrance was apparently through a garage door last Wednesday, deputies said. No value estimate was given.

U.S. Begins To Pull Troops Out

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The United States today began withdrawing 600 of the 21,000 troops it has stationed in the Dominican Republic. Their place is being filled by Latin American soldiers arriving for the new peace force of the Organization of American States.

Within a week the Latin Americans in the Inter-American Force will total about 1,700 men. An equal number of Americans are expected to leave the divided country.

Fighting in Santo Domingo between troops of the military-civilian junta and rebel forces has come to a halt. But U.S. officials admitted that a political solution was not in sight due to the junta's insistence that the rebels surrender and that it become the country's only government.

McGeorge Bundy, President Johnson's special envoy, was returning to Washington today after 10 days of intensive but futile efforts to bring the rival factions together.

About all the two sides have agreed on is that any new government should be strongly anti-Communist and should not be a right-wing dictatorship.

U.S. officials said OAS Secretary-General Jose A. Mora would now have charge of negotiations. Deputy U.S. Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance, who came here with Bundy, is remaining to help Mora.

Bundy and his team of negotiators have been trying to promote a coalition government headed by Antonio Guzman, agriculture minister in the government of exiled President Juan Bosch. The rebels have welcomed the idea, but the junta has rebuffed it.

The junta president, Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, assailed the coalition formula yesterday as a "frank intervention in the internal affairs" of the Dominican Republic because it originated abroad.

Instead, Imbert proposed creation of a provisional legislative council to serve, apparently in an advisory capacity, under the present junta. The council members would be appointed by professional, industrial, agricultural and labor organizations. The armed forces would publicly pledge allegiance to civil authority.

Imbert made no mention of elections or the proposed life span of the council and the junta.

Novato Endorses Bill On City Transit Role

Novato city councilmen last night urged passage of an Assembly bill that would give cities representation on the Marin County Transit District Board.

The council backed AB 3362, introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, which would add two representatives from cities to the transit district board. Without this bill, the Marin County Supervisors would be the sole governing board.

The Novato council acted in response to a letter from Bagley, asking cities for reactions they might have to the bill.

The previous board of supervisors had voted for the bill. Bagley said he asked for reaction from the cities because the new board of supervisors did not seem so concerned about it.

The board of supervisors voted 3-2 against the bill Monday but later rescinded that vote and put the matter over until next Tuesday.

Tax Protestants Announce Plans For New Office

Robert M. Burns of Belvedere will be chairman of the headquarters, staffed by the citizen group to "Correct Unfair Taxation" which is protesting recent assessment rises on the Tiburon Peninsula. Headquarters hours have not yet been set.

A finance committee consisting of Walter P. Simi, Belvedere, chairman, Russel D. Keil of Keil Cove; Fred Mantegani of Tiburon and Clarence M. Kretchmer of Belvedere has been appointed by the steering committee, reported Mrs. Chester C. Vargas, steering committee member.

Suicide Offense Penalty Defeated

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Defeat has been the fate of a bill adding another law making it a crime to urge people threatening suicide to go ahead.

The bill by Assemblyman Joseph Kennick, D - Long Beach, died in the Assembly Criminal Procedure Committee yesterday when it couldn't get any motion.

Opponents noted a law already exists making it a felony to incite suicide. Kennick proposed making it a misdemeanor to do so.

Bolinas Lagoon Plans Asked Of Supervisors

The Marin Conservation League, in a letter to the board of supervisors, has asked that precise plans be developed for use of Bolinas Lagoon, defining what areas are to be preserved as a sanctuary for wildlife and what areas used for boating.

The letter, signed by league president Mary Summers, also urges that supervisors adopt open area zoning for the lagoon. this has been protested by directors of the Bolinas Harbor District.

Vote Blocks Fluoridation

LINCOLN, Placer County (UPI) —Voters at a special election yesterday decided unofficially 455-375 that the city water supply should not be treated with fluorides.

The ballot proposal made it a misdemeanor for an agent or employee of the City of Lincoln to add fluorides to the domestic water supply.

The vote overturns an action by the City Council which voted approval to fluoridating the water. The council's action was held illegal by a Superior Court and the Third District Court of Appeal ordered a decision at the polls.

Bay Crossing Bills Gain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The final two of three bills aimed at expediting new crossings of San Francisdo Bay were passed yesterday by the Senate.

One authorizes a $300,000 study by the Department of Public Works of various south crossing routes from San Francisco or San Mateo to Alameda County.

The other puts a $133 million ceiling on the amount of Bay Bridge revenues to be used for a rapid transit tube. The idea is to free revenues over that for future crossings.

Both bills are by Sen. J. Eugene McAteer, D-San Francisco.

Wallet Stolen

Patricia Colleen Rooney of 182 Belvedere Street, Apt. 2, San Rafael, complained to police that her wallet was stolen Monday while at the Country Club Bowl, 88 Vivian Way, San Rafael. She told officers it contained notes and change amounting to almost $10.

Denture Invention
Replaces messy powders, oozing pastes, reliners

The nearest thing to having your own teeth is possible by an artificial membrane invented by chemists. This membrane connects dentures to gums and mouth surfaces just as living tissue firmly binds natural teeth. Now many can eat, speak and laugh with little worry of dentures dropping.

FIXODENT elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing — protects gums from bruising. You bite harder — eat faster, without pain. You can enjoy hard-to-chew foods like steak, apples, corn-on-cob.

FIXODENT helps you speak more clearly, be more at ease.

Americans' Debt Payments Increase

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans' monthly payment debts are 11 per cent larger than a year ago. Business, too, is borrowing more. New York bank loans to commercial and industrial concerns have risen $1.4 billion since the first of the year. In the like period of 1964 they dropped by $574 million.

The nation's commercial banks as a whole have been net borrowers for 12 straight weeks from the Federal Reserve banks to meet the demand for loans from business and individuals. When money is easier and lending demands less urgent the banks have nest eggs of excess reserves in the central banking system.

Are debts, business and individual, rising too fast and too high? Is this a sign, as sometimes in the past, that the business upswing is peaking? Is the net borrowed position of the commercial banks a warning that the Federal Reserve is tightening up on credit to keep the economy from overheating?

Some bankers are answering "not necessarily" to all three questions.

Delinquency of instalment loans has risen very little. And This is reassuring. A worrisome factor: repayments of outstanding instalment debt is taking 14 per cent of disposable income — what's left of an individual's income after taxes. That's a new high. At the same time borrowers have been taking on new instalment debt at such a pace that they are pledging 16 per cent of their disposable income for future payments. This, too, is a record. Bankers say this is manageable for most families — unless times suddenly turn bad.

The rise in loans to business by New York banks of late has been chiefly to retail stores, public utility and transportation companies, apparel and leather goods producers. Earlier in the year loans were heavy to makers of machinery and other durable goods and to commodity dealers.

Bankers say the rising demand for loans is due to the general upswing in business and is actually smaller in relation to the growing economy than in past booms.

In fact, many companies have been borrowing sparingly, because they've had more profits and more cash flow from such items as larger depreciation tax write-offs on which to draw to meet financing needs.

Better Insurance Statistics Urged

MONTEREY — The insolvency of some companies insuring substandard risks and the unprofitable underwriting results of most major insurance carriers can be blamed largely on inadequate rates and rising claims closts, according to James F. Crafts, board chairman of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies at the annual meeting of the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

Crafts advocated wider participation by insurance companies in the recently established National Insurance Acutarial and Statistical Assn. in order to provide competent loss and cost estimates to state insurance regulatory bodies.

Crafts also told the audience of West Coast insurance executives that NIASA could remove the need for "assigned risks" classifications, because better actuarial and statistical data could make risks "writeable at identifiable loss and claim costs, plus reasonable expense."

HER PUBLIC RELATYONS PRETTY POOR

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — When a public relations woman wrote to Bart Lytton and identified his Lytton Financial Corp. wrongly as Litton Industries, he penned her the following pointed reply:

Dear Miss D . . . Iou have hurt me to the quyck. Yf iou don't know y, when one of us has slypped veri baldli yn our public relatyons. And methynks yt's iou . . . Sadli but syncereli iours."

Dividend Declared

DETROIT—An increased dividend of 45 cents a share has been declared by directors of Ex-Cell-O Corp., payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 10. Dividends have been at the rate of 40 cents quarterly for the past three years.

Market Closes Low After An Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed lower today after an early advance vanished. Trading grew more active as prices weakened.

The list advanced at the start and held a higher edge into the afternoon. But prices began to soften and then traders unloaded.

Eastern Air Lines was off about 3, IBM 5, Xerox and Studebaker about 2 each.

Losses of a point or more were taken by Union Carbinde, Control Data and Polaroid.

Consolidated Cigar lost 1 at 49 on a late block of 286,800 shares, one of the largest transactions in market history.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4.8 million shares compared with 4.93 million yesterday.

Here was the picture toward the close:

Kennecott gained more than 3, DuPont well over 2 and American Telephone (ex-dividend) was up nearly a point as it paced the market on volume. The company will report to New York security analysts next Wednesday.

A somewhat higher trend prevailed among airlines and electrical equipments. The pattern was scrambled among oils, rails, sfeels, motors and electronics.

Studebaker's new stock was off about 2. Ford held a fractional gain. Chrysler and General Motors edged lower.

Schick was active but unchanged amid news of a stock purchase move by Eversharp and Technicolor. Thiokol continued active and fractionally higher.

IBM lost 2 and Eastern Air Lines 1.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Treasury bonds were stronger.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Lindner Investment Office Opens; Santa Rosa Savings Eyes Novato

A new business specializing in financial guidance and the management of investments has been opened by Edgar T. Lindner of Ross.

It is called Investment Analysis and Counseling and is located at 1005 A Street, San Rafael. Advisory services on taxes, legal matters, real estate and securities are offered on a retainer basis.

Lindner has been in the field of securities and real estate investments for many years. In Marin he was formerly manager of the San Rafael office of Henry F. Swift and Co. and also headed the real estate investment firm of Growth Properties, headquartered in San Rafael.

OFFICIALS of Santa Rosa Savings and Loan Assn. are hopeful they'll be able to open temporary quarters for a new Novato office by July 1,

The company owns about 37,500 square feet at the southeast corner of Highway 101 and Grant Avenue and plans on erecting a prefabricated structure for use until all the hurdles of designing and having a permanent building approved can be overcome. Present plans call for the permanent office to be colonial-type construction in keeping with the theme of other Santa Rosa Savings and Loan offices. No manager for Novato has yet been appointed.

Eventually, other property adjoining the loan company site is expected to be developed into a shopping complex

Lindner Weber

VOLUME of Marin County real estate loans in April was $29,860,650 — the highest of any month since Oct., 1963, according to figures of the Data Sheet published by Title Insurance and Trust Co.

Almost 58 per cent of this was by savings and loan firms — $17,269,710 — who also had one of their best field months over an equally long or longer period. Their usual proportion of real estate loans in Marin is a little over 40 per cent.

The year to date still lags behind the first four months of 1964.

FRANK T. WEBER of San Rafael has joined the San Francisco headquarters of Insurance Securities, Inc. as assistant general sales manager.

Previously he was a representative in San Rafael, and before that was agency manager for Equitable Life Assurance Society.

PAUL R. TERRY JR. of Novato, partner in Terry and McNeil insurance agency, has been made manager of the insurance department of Nipper and Marchant real estate offices. Nipper, Marchant and Mrs. Marchant will continue as agents and will be active at both offices in San Anselmo and San Rafael in the insurance department. Ronald Cockburn will also continue as an insurance solicior with the firm.

ELAINE A. BLAIR of Bolinas, who formerly managed the Tankersley Realty office in San Rafael, is now associated with Mrs. Helen Anderson's Real Estate Center in Mill Valley.

JAMES LIDDELL of San Rafael is back from a trip to Kansas City and Excelsior Springs, Mont., which he won for his sales of Wear-Ever aluminum cooking utensils during the first three months of the year.

Surfboards were introduced to California from Hawaii about 1907.

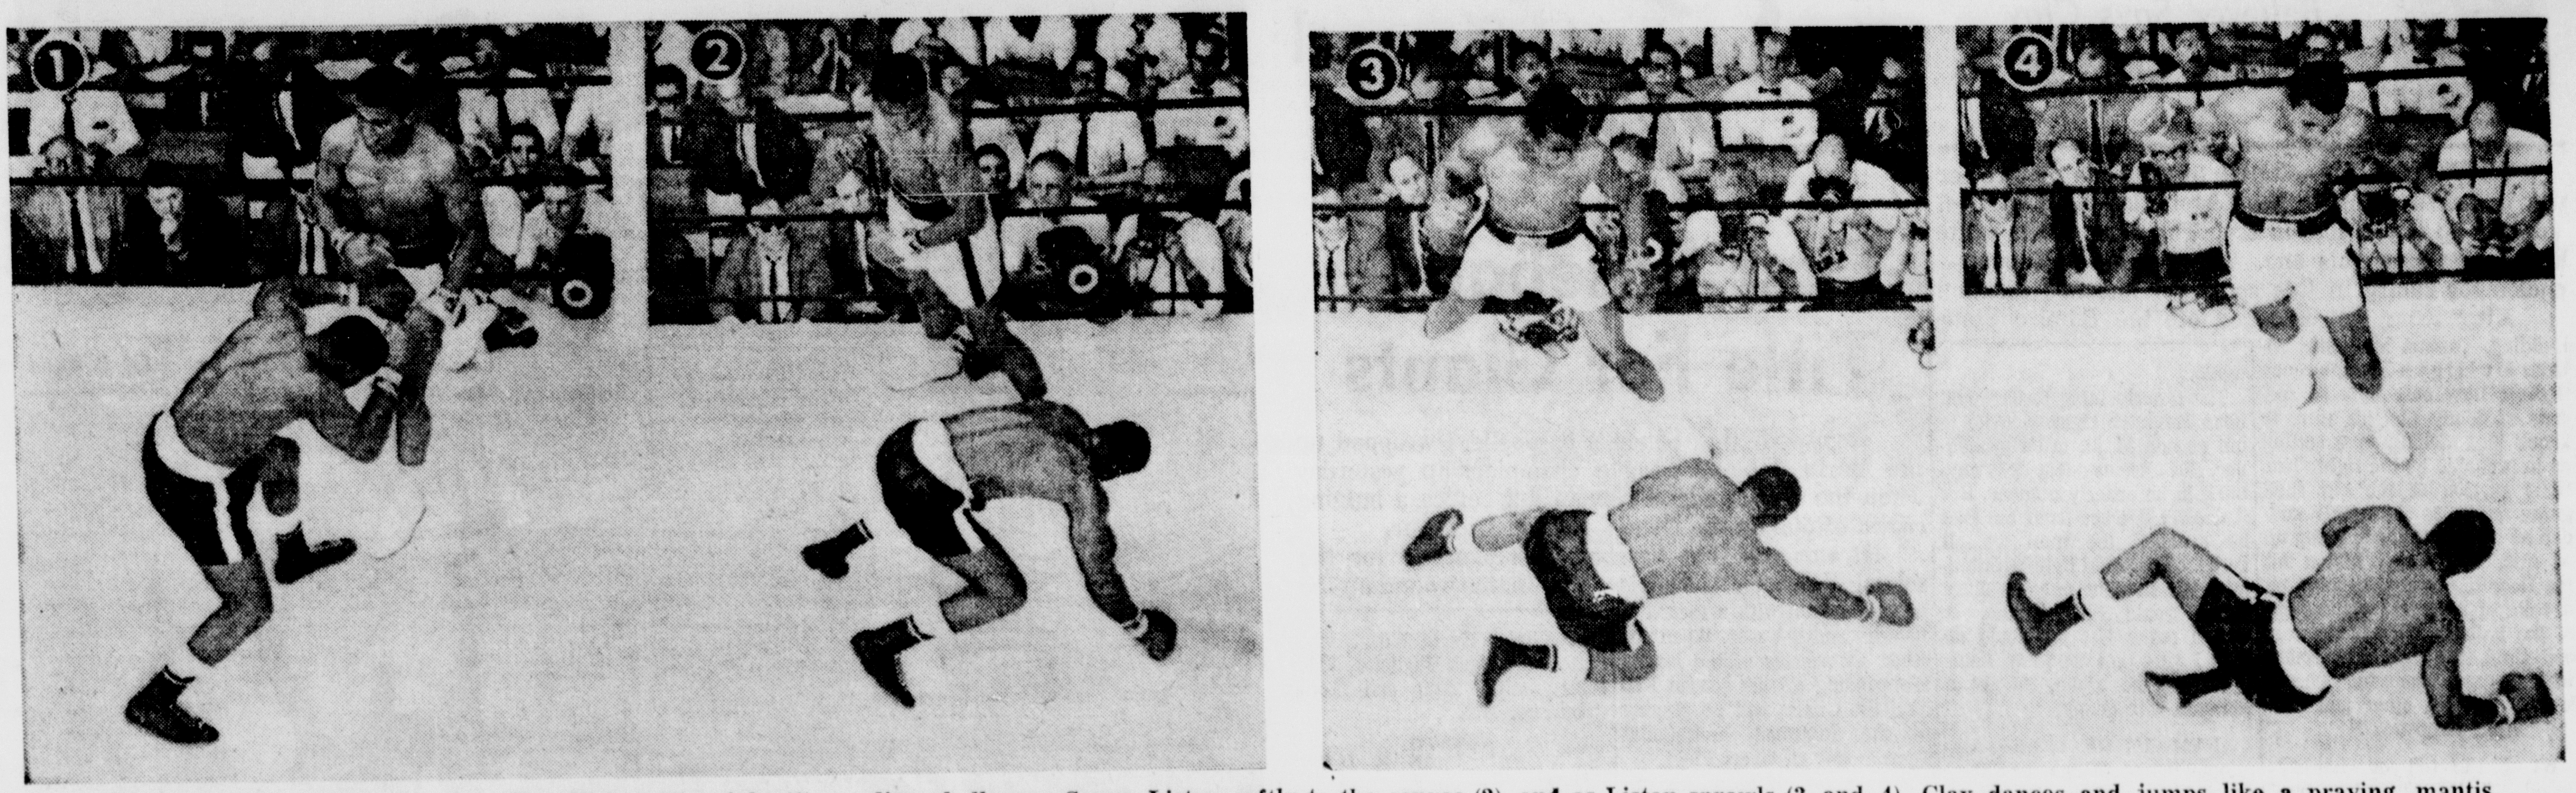
'Fiasco..Fix..Fake' But Clay Still The Champ



Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay flicks out a right (1), sending challenger Sonny Liston softly to the canvas (2), and as Liston sprawls (3 and 4), Clay dances and jumps like a praying mantis

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, knockout conqueror of Sonny Liston in the record time of one minute for a heavyweight title fight, hollered for "the rabbit — Floyd Patterson" today while the boxing world buzzed with talk over another fiasco.

A short right hand to the jaw knocked out the aging, former champion for a "12 count" in a confused and controversial finish that had many of the 4,280 fans in the heavily police-guarded Central Maine Youth Center yelling "fake" and "fix."

But the undefeated Clay, unperturbed over reported threats on his life, shouted "that was my secret — it was a phantom punch. It was lightning and thunder — fast as lightning and booming as thunder from the heavens."

"It was a good, right-hand punch," said the unmarked, 31-year-old Liston. "No, I didn't quit. The blow landed on my left cheekbone. I've never been knocked down before. It made me groggy. I got to my knees but fell the second time because I was off balance."

"It was a good lick," said Patterson the two-time former heavyweight king and the rabbit Clay wants next in about four months. "He really hit him. I'm more anxious now than ever to meet him."

"There was nothing suspicious about it as far as I'm concerned," said George Russo, chairman of the Maine State Boxing Commission. "The only thing is that it ended too soon. The people didn't get their money's worth."

Nothing much had happened in the early moments as Clay, hands down, danced and circled from the plodding former champion, out to nail Clay with one punch. Then the 23-year-old Clay caught Liston with the right.

The stocky, heavy-set Liston fell on his back in a delayed fall. Sonny rolled over, got to his right knee and then fell on his back again.

In the meantime, referee Jersey Joe Walcott, the former heavyweight champion, never counted once. First he tried to steer Clay to a neutral corner. When he got back and peered to the knockdown timekeeper across the ring, Liston had fallen back on the canvas.

When Liston arose, Walcott rubbed Liston's glove and looked toward the timekeeper again. Then he left the fighters, to go over to the timekeeper. With the referee gone, Clay and Liston started slugging away.

By then Walcott had been informed by the timekeeper that he had counted to 12 before Liston got up and that Clay had won on a knockout. Walcott rushed back, separated the fighters, and declared Clay the winner on a knockout.

It was then the fans let loose with a chorus of boos.

"It would have been different, no confusion if the timekeeper had a microphone so he could be heard," said Walcott.

"Walcott was looking at the crowd, not at me," said McDonough. "What was wrong with him?"

"Clay hit Liston a right hand," said Walcott. "I was trying to keep the fighter (Clay) away and move him into a neutral corner. I let the timekeeper start the count while I was busy. By the time I got the champion aside I couldn't hear the count. I could see someone trying to shout at me."

"It was really a 12-count," said McDonough. "When it got to 12 I clicked the stop-watch. Walcott was supposed to pick up the count when I did. There is no question in my mind that Liston was knocked out."

Russo verified that the knockout time was one minute.

By taking out Liston for the second straight time — this time in 60 seconds — he wiped out the record time of 1:28 for a heavyweight title fight set by Tommy Burns when he beat Jem Roche in Dublin, March 17, 1908. Clay's quick kayo was the 12th first-round knockout in a heavyweight title fight.

Ironically, it was Walcott who had been involved in a first round knockout that caused a mighty stir in his fighting time. After he had lost the title to Rocky Marciano in the 13th round in Philadelphia, Sept. 23, 1952, he was knocked out in 2:25 of the first round of the return in Chicago May 15, 1953.

Thus the return Clay-Liston fight, which was telecast to 258 outlets in the United States, Canada and Mexico and was beamed overseas by the Early Bird satellite, kicked up almost as much of a storm as their still hotly-discussed first fight at Miami Beach 15 months ago.

That was the strange fight in which Liston, a prohibitive 7-1 favorite, quit on his stool after the sixth round, claiming an injured left shoulder. Clay had tried to quit after the fourth, claiming he was blinded by liniment on Liston's gloves.

This time Liston was only a 6-5 favorite over the 23-year-old Clay, who was almost reserved at the weigh-in yesterday compared to his hysterical outbursts in Miami. Clay weighed a surprisingly light 206 pounds and Liston 215¼ for the return.

Clay, who turned pro in 1960 after winning the Olympic light heavyweight crown, now has a 21-0 record, including 17 knockouts. Liston, winner of 28 straight over a nine-year span until he ran into Clay, now has a 35-3 record, including the two knockout losses.

The fight, kicked out of Boston because of the promotional setup, drew 4,280 customers and $201,000 according to Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. With the television and other rights included, the fighters each probably earned about $600,000.

As for the reported threats on his life by avengers of the slain Malcolm X, Clay said:

"All that talk about bombs and guns and people going to kill me, didn't bother me at all. But it had Sonny frozen stiff with fear."

More than 200 police from state, county and city, guarded the high school hockey arena. First the building was searched for bombs and later the purses of women spectators were inspected at the one entrance in which the customers were permitted to enter the arena.

Clay, as usual, got in the first and last words.

Just before leaving the arena, he said "I told everybody I had a secret but I couldn't reveal it. If I told the people what I was going to do, they wouldn't have come to the fight.

"I knew I was going to knock out the Big Bear in the first round. I'm just too fast for everyone. My punches just blur."

Ali Blabber And 40 Thieves Play Short Run On TV Screen

I had a complimentary working press pass and felt cheated. Imagine how the payers felt. They'd been taken by Muhammad Ali Blabber and his 40 thieves.

I joined 2,000 other fight fans at Richmond Auditorium for the closed-circuit smellovision. "Phew," said one man, "close the window." "That," cried another, "is coming from the screen."

They'd just seen Sonny Liston star in the first internationally-televised sit-in. His criminal past reflected in his newest nickname, "The One-Minute Yegg." It wasn't very well done.

In fact the whole show laid a bomb. I had an inkling that it was going to be a bad night when Robert Goulet muffed the first line of the national anthem. I was still trying to figure out what he meant by ". . . the dawn's early NIGHT" when Liston was meeting his burly plight on the screen.

Goulet was reading the Stars Spangled Banner from a cue card and had no excuse. Sonny had to memorize his lines.

LISTON JUST has to be the meanest looking man I've ever seen. At the introduction he stared daggers at Clay that would reduce most men to puddles of fear. He even scared my wife. Too bad he wasn't fighing her.

However, it soon became evident Sonny wasn't so tough. I could swear I heard him say, "Ouch, not so HARD" when they touched gloves.

The television people showed us the knockout a total of three times and I still say I swat flies harder than Ali Blabber shut up Liston.

PUTTING MY dumbell math to work I figured out Punch and Judy earned more than the Brink's Robbers for just about the same time of crime. Each earned $600,000 — which comes out to $10,000 per second.

And another thing: That timekeeper who recorded the time at one minute flat must have been using a sun dial. Radio announcer Russ Hodges (yep, the same local boy from Mill Valley) reported five clocks around him had Sonny hitting the canvas at 1:45. If I were an astronaut I'd just hate to have that timekeeper giving me the countdown. I think he goes by fractions.

THERE WAS a technical problem for those who bet on the color of trunks. I told a friend to bet on the Black Muslim. He thought I said muslin and lost his shirt. The only thing blacker than Sunny's duds was the eye the whole farce gave to sports.

In fact, when the Richmond crowd started yelling, "We want our money back," I joined the chorus. Then, remembering my Annie Oakley, I felt pretty smug after all. I'd really gotten my money's worth.

The whole fight can be summed up thusly: There were only two blows hit. Clay hit Liston and Liston hit the deck.

Since all seven teams in the Redwood Invitational Baseball Tournament this Friday and Saturday are champions of their respective high school leagues, the tourney winner will claim the mythical Northern California prep baseball championship.

Tourney Director Al Endriss of Redwood expects every professional scout in the Bay Area to attend the Friday and Saturday game in their relentless and high competitive search for talent.

According to Endriss, one of the most sought-after preps who will appear in the tourney is John Tyler, a catcher from El Camino High of the North Peninsula League.

Two stars who as sophomores played in the first Redwood Tourney two years ago will re-

Someone Up There Told Me—Clay

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay says it was "a sharp right hand" that put challenger Liston down for the count and today he feels sorry for him.

What's more, the champ said, he "knew all along" he would end the title fight in the first round because "someone above" told him so. The bout lasted precisely one minute.

"That's exactly what I said," the 23-year-old Clay emphasized. "I knew I was gonna whup him in the first round.

"That was the surprise that I wouldn't talk about. I didn't talk about it before the fight because if I did everyone would say it was fixed.

"I'll tell you how I knew it would be in the first round. I knew because someone told me. Someone above, that's who. Believe me, I knew it would be this way. But I don't care whether anyone believes it or not, I knew it. I swear I did."

"I really feel sorry for him," Clay said. "At first all the people were for him, but they're hypocrites and now they've taken all his money away and he got nothing.

"I honest and truly feel sorry for the man. He isn't a bad man.

WANTS RABBIT

"The one I want now is 'the rabbit.' I mean Floyd Patterson. I want him so bad that I wish I was in the ring with him right now."

Patterson, who sat in the third row at ringside Tuesday night, recognized the punch that put Liston away.

"A short right did all the damage," he said. "I'm sure the film will show it. Liston was really hit."

Clay knew Liston was really hit too. The second the challenger slumped to the floor, Clay bounced around him shouting, "get up, get up."

Sonji Clay, who saw her husband fight Tuesday night for the first time, said, "Oh, he's the greatest. He's the greatest. I love him."

Clay said he and his wife will take a vacation trip soon, probably to the West Indies.

WRY COMMENTS ON TITLE FIGHT

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

That was the comment from Henry Cooper, British heavyweight champion, after watching the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston title fight, beamed to London via Early Bird satellite.

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. — London time — and dry wry comments from two other British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to then champion Joe Louis, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing — and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former middleweight champion, said:

At the Hotel Theresa one employe said to another:

"Suppose you had flown to Maine and the usher was a little late taking you to your seat. . . ."

Then there was Lloyd Von Blaine, one of the owners of the section's most popular restaurants. He said:

"I'm just puzzled, that's all. It's like the Truman election — what happened!"

The cries of "fix," "fraud," "fake" were sounded in many theaters showing the closed circuit television of the fight but there were no serious incidents.

A few people asked for their money back, but Clay's mouth may have prevented further disturbances.

At Richmond, it was reported that most of the crowd of about 2,000 was engrossed by Clay's commentary when the fight was rerun in slow motion.

Albany, N.Y., there was a short scuffle between two men when one complained:

"Your head was in my way and I missed the whole thing."

But the biggest crisis developed at the Cleveland Arena, where 5,404 turned out.

A portion of the crowd was distraught — before the fight started.

Seems the arena ran out of beer.

Bob Moore Qualifies For 'Open'

Liston: I Didn't Hear The Count

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI)—Sonny Liston has no thoughts of retiring.

"I'll fight anybody," he said after his one minute knockout by the right hand of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay last night. "What choice do I have?"

Liston was deeply disappointed for secretly he thought this was a fight he was going to win. But he had no alibis other than that "I didn't hear the count."

Then he admitted it was a "fair" and "fast" right hand punch that summarily ended the bout.

He touched his left cheek and jaw, which showed no marks of any kind, in response to questions of where the telling blow landed.

NOT HARDEST

He said Clay's punch had landed "flush" but had not been the hardest ever to strike him in the ring. He said Cleveland Williams had thrown a heavier one. He added that Clay "hits like another Hurricane Jackson."

Liston did say that the punch had surprised him as a new weapon in the Clay arsenal and that he thought he had done "well" until the knockout punch which he only saw "partly."

Could he have gotten up?

"Yes," Liston said. "I didn't know the count. I couldn't hear it."

Franks Grumbles After Pounding

By SCOTT BAILLIE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Maybe Cassius Clay pitched a one-hitter last night in Maine, but the San Francisco Giants should be so lucky.

Nineteen hits — count 'em, 10 — juiced up the Milwaukee Braves' batting averages last night as they fell upon the Giants, 14-1.

The outcome left manager Herman Franks of the losers rumbling assorted curses afterward as he gobbled up a bunless cheeseburger.

"Let's say we just got the heck kicked ut of us," unhappy Herman thundered when asked for a capsule comment. "And Wade Blasingame? Why he's marvelous, sensational."

Franks then tramped off toward his office, jaws working furiously.

Blasingame was close to being everything that Franks said he was in the frigid Candlestick Park. Coming right back from posting a one-hitter against the Mets, the Braves' lefty held the Giants scoreless until the ninth inning. Then Harvey Kuenn's single, the Giants' fifth and last hit of the game, brought across Ken Henderson to wreck Blasingame's shutout bid.

Mack the Knife Jones, back in town after a couple of seasons in the minors, led the Milwaukee attack by driving across four runs with the two homers and a single.

After Eddie Mathews' 10th home run of the season started Ron Herbel toward his fourth defeat as early as the first in-

Believer Says Clay Is 'The Greatest'

LEWISTON, Me.—I hate to spoil the picture for you if you're going to the Liston-Clay fight movies. I'd only go if you like to cry. The guys in the white hats really blew this one. The last best—if poor—choice for sanity in this sport got knocked kicking.

King Kong got knocked off the Empire State Building. Cassius Marcellus Aladin Mulligan Montmorency O'Toole Clay only took 60 seconds of Sonny Liston's time to knock him kicking in a setting as improbable as the fight. This fistic version of the old shell game ended as shockingly sudden as a window shade going up at midnight. Sonny Liston hit the floor like a guy slipping on a cake of soap and getting out of the bathtub. This is the second time this fight has ended with several thousand people looking at each other and asking "What happened?"

WELL, I'LL tell you what happened. That's what I'm here for. Sonny Liston got the hell beat out of him is what happened. This time I was looking for it and I saw it: An old man dropping his way into a speedy, insolent, reckless kid. He was like a guy braving a barrage of rocks. He hasn't hit Cassius Clay yet. And he never will. The closest he ever got to the world's foremost Arabian fist fighter was the weigh-in. When he didn't hit him then he was volunteering for an evening of catching. He should have worn a catcher's mitt on his face. I counted three times when Cassius staggered him. The first time was when the bell echo hadn't died down yet.

Cassius is on ad lib fighter and he thought up a beaut to get this dance under way — a right cross. Nobody ever started a heavyweight title fight with a right before. That's the kind of dirty trick your wife would try. But Cassius messed up Liston's unpretty features with a crazy right that he started to throw as he left his corner. Liston should have known then and there that his play was to find a soft place to land.

WE ALL KNEW Sonny was slow but we didn't think he'd need to call a cab to get to center ring. Actually, he should have called a cab to take him home. Two years ago we were saying this guy was the best heavyweight in history. Now he's not even the best heavyweight in Lewiston. And if you think that isn't a comedown, you've never been to Lewiston.

Sonny fought as if his feet hurt. If he was a horse they would have scratched him. Cassius could have beat him in high heels.

THEY TRIED to drum some strategy into Sonny that was Napoleonic in concept. He was counselled on how to cut off Cassius' retreat in mid-ring. The only trouble was that Sonny was always getting there some time after Cassius left. His problem seemed to be he had to surround Clay.

The ending was a disorderly disgrace. But then Cassius Clay's histrionics usually are. Cassius Clay hadn't gone to a neutral corner yet. He kept trying to get at the fallen Sonny. But is seemed a shame to wake him up just for that.

THE FIGHT game has a new "long count" to add to its lore. The referee never did get to count. By the time he had finally steered Clay away from the semi-conscious who looked as if he were trying to get off a banana peel, the count must have been at least 12. Ref Joe Walcott let them start to fight again.

The orderly thing to do would have been for Cassius to go to his corner in an orderly manner. But Cassius never does anything in an orderly manner. But it doesn't detract from the fact he drubbed the man we all thought he should fight with bullets. We thought only a silver bullet would floor Liston. It turned out a left jab could do it. If I were that cop in St. Louis whose leg he broke, I'd get a rematch with Sonny.

ANYMORE OF these one-minute fights, though, and they can hold these fights by phone. Several thousand people in Lewiston saw fit to miss the live fight. Earlier in the evening, there were so few on hand it looked as if attendance was by invitation. Lots of people in Lewiston found something better to do, although having been up here several days I can't think for the life of me what it is. Up here they fight with their feet and for a minute when Clay rushed at the fallen Liston, I thought it was catching.

It might not have been the best fight in heavyweight history but it was the hottest — at least since they used to fight on Fourth of July afternoon.

I NOW KNOW why Cassius wanted a big ring. So there'd be room for Sonny's feet when he stretched out. Sonny had never been knocked down before and apparently he didn't know which way was up. He should have consulted Floyd Patterson. The only trouble with Cassius Clay is that if ever a guy misplayed a role in history it was he. Not Anna Sten in her worst movie could have topped this. You have to think Cassius would play Hamlet for laughs and the Marx Brothers as a tear jerker. The casting called for Joe Louis and Cassius gave them Jerry.

When he came along he was America's sweetheart, the guy who was going to kick sand back in the bully's face. He was going to show that crime didn't pay. Sonny Liston at that time would have been the sentimental underdog in a rattlesnake hunt. It took Cassius and a bunch of shavehead agate-eyed types one year to turn Liston into the most popular public favorite since St. George. They gave him the part of the marshall in "High Noon," and he wanted to be the guy in the black hat. He's the kind of guy who could get people rooting against the doctors in an epidemic.

THE AUDIENCE couldn't be more confused if Jack La Rue got the girl at the end. He made a lamnister out of the fight, lost his title in 46 states without a punch being thrown. For 364 days, 23 hours and 59 minutes he might be a whacked-up kid. But for 60 seconds last night he beat Sonny Liston so bad he'll probably need help getting in and out of bed for a week. Whatever Cassius Clay is or believes in, he's all ours. Sonny Liston couldn't get close enough to hit him with a bucket of birdseed. It's going to be terrible on the ears, but Cassius is right back where you have to listen to him and he's coming in loud and clear.

turn for an encore — twin brothers Albert and Alvin Strange of St. Elizabeth High in Oakland.

Since Samuel Ayers and Pioneer high schools from the Mt. Hamilton League in San Jose tied for the championship, a special meeting today was to determine which team will come to the tourney at San Rafael's Albert Field.

The six other entries have a combined won-lost record of 100-22. They are Monterey (20-2) of the Monterey Bay League; St. Elizabeth's (17-3) of the Catholic Athletic League; El Camino (14-5) of North Peninsula; Redwood (18-4) of Marin; San Leandro (16-3) of Alameda County and College Park (15-5) of Diablo Valley.

First Baseball Title For Giants

Redwood High School's baseballers wrapped up the Marin Athletic League championship yesterday when the Giants edged Novato 4-2 before a bulging crowd of 500 on the Giants' field in Larkspur.

It was the first baseball championship for the school and coach Al Endriss. The Giants wound up the League season with a record of 10 wins and 2 losses. When the other six schools of the league are winding up the season Friday, the Giants will be playing in the Redwood Invitational Tournament at Albert Field.

Novato got off to a one run lead in the second inning when John Young, Hornets leftfielder, smacked one out of the park with bases empty. It was the first pitch to him, a curve ball.

Novato made it 2-0 in the top of the fourth, with Youngs again getting the run batted in, scoring Ron Rowell from third on a sacrifice fly.

Redwood scored enough runs to win in its half of the fourth. Sophomore leftfielder Kevin Wilson blasted a homer to straightaway center to lead off the inning. Tom Gootherts knocked in the tying run on a fielder's choice and later scored the go-ahead run when catcher Steve LeBeck rapped a clutch single.

TIME CONFUSION

Officials Insist: 'One Minute Flat'

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Despite questions from many quarters, there's no doubt by fight officials that last night's heavyweight championship fight ended in one minute of the first round with Cassius Clay the winner by a knockout over Sonny Liston.

The time of the knockout was announced at one minute after Clay dropped Liston with a chipping right hand to the head. But that's when the confusion started.

Referee Jersey Joe Walcott, himself a former heavyweight title holder, didn't start the count as Liston rolled on the canvas. Walcott was too busy trying to shoo Clay to a neutral corner.

Clay wasn't easily convinced. He stood over the fallen Liston and refused to move to a far corner.

But after a brief huddle through the ropes with McDonough, Walcott separated the fighters and raised Clay's hand.

Chairman George Russo of the Maine State Boxing Commission verified after the fight that the time was exactly one minute and the time was recorded on two watches.

"There's no question about the time — it was one minute of the first round," Russo said.

Walcott explained after the fight that he failed to pick up the count from McDonough because "I was too busy trying to get the man (Clay) to a neutral corner."

McDonough said that Liston was actually on the floor for 12 seconds but the fight ended — officially — when McDonough's count reached ten.

Some confusion may have resulted from Clay and Liston going at it after Liston got back to his feet with neither fighter realizing that the count had ended.

Hands Pitches Eighth Straight Win For Tacoma

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hands pitched the Western Division leaders to a 3-1 victory over Seattle last night. It was his eighth straight triumph without a loss, including four shutouts.

Hands struck out six and walked none. After giving up one run, his earned run average stands at 0.50, lowest in the league.

Redwood Boys Are Honored

Tim Frost and Don Kreuzberger won captain blankets for the Redwood High School swim team last night at a banquet sponsored by the Redwood Benchwarmers. Frost also won the senior scholarship award.

In track, Buzz Salata and Greg Yuhas were named winners of the captain blankets, and Dave Lee won the senior scholarship award.

Terra Linda Wins To Nab Second Place In League

San Rafael Is Whipped By Trojans

Terra Linda blasted San Rafael 11-4 yesterday with hopes of tying for the Marin Athletic League baseball title, but found out after the game that Redwood had clinched the crown by dropping Novato 4-2.

The triumph gave the Trojans of Terra Linda a record of 8-3, clinching second place with one more league game remaining, Redwood finished the season with a 10-2 mark.

John Forry, Terra Linda shortstop , cracked a double and single and knocked in three runs to lead the assault. Second baseman Bill Hall hit a triple that scored two runs.

Venturi Calls Open Site 'The Toughest'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Venturi didn't have any trouble with his hands as he shot a practice round at the 1965 U.S. Open site yesterday but he had plenty of trouble with the Bellerive Country Club course.

"I never saw anything like it," said the defending U.S. Open champion who has been out of competition for six weeks because of a circulatory ailment which limited the use of his hands.

"It's the toughest course I ever played," he continued.

Venturi, the San Francisco golfer who won the Open last year at the Congressional County Club in Washington D.C., in a comeback bid, was satisfied with his game at this stage though.

"This is the first round since the Masters Tournament at Augusta in April that I have tried to do something with the ball," he said. "My game is beginning to jell."

The Bellerive course is the longest, at 7,200 yards, in U.S. Open history and it's pocked with water, woods, doglegs, and sand traps.

"And, there are more out of bounds than on any other open I can remember," Venturi said.

Venturi judged he would have shot 75 or 76 yesterday if he had not taken several alternate practice shots. Par for the 18 hole course is 70.

He said his hands were responding to treatment and he would be "ready to defend my title June 17-20."

Venturi plans to play in the Buick Open at Detroit, June 3-6 and the Cleveland Open, June 10-13, before returning to St. Louis and the Bellerive golf course.

After Venturi reached the 606-yard 17th hole in three shots, he remarked: "Its tougher than Congressional. I could reach every hole there, but I can't here."

Marin Catholic '9' Tops Tamalpais Injuns, 7-4

Scoring all their runs in the bottom of the fourth inning, the Marin Catholic Wildcats thumped the Tamalpais Indians 7-4 yesterday in Kentfield.

It was Marin Catholic's fifth win in its last seven games. Vince Sherry had 2 of Marin's 4 hits and knocked in 2 runs. Marin was helped along by wild pitches and a total of four Tam errors. The Wildcats committed five errors themselves, but they were not as costly.

$15,000 Peacock Tennis Tourney Starts Tomorrow

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Ten International tennis professionals start going after $3,000 to prize in the first Peacock Gap International Tennis Tournament tomorrow at the new layout at Peacock Gap Country Club.

There will be a total of $15,000 in prize money in the tourney which runs through next Monday. Two singles matches and one doubles match will be held daily, starting at 1 p.m. It's an elimination tourney that winds up with finals in both singles and doubles on Monday.

In opening round matches tomorrow, England's Mike Davies goes against Earl Buchholz of St. Louis in the first singles match and Chile's Luis Ayala squares off with Australia's Ken Roswell in the second singles. Pancho Segura of Beverly Hills and Davies will oppose Ayala and Berry McKay of the United States.

"The last time I played in a tournament was in July in Boston," MacKay told an Independent—Journal deporter yesterday during a press luncheon at Peacock Gap, prior to a golf tournament that included seven of the tennis pros and members of the press. Also playing were members of the newly-formed Peacock Gap Youth Tennis Foundation.

LEG IN BRACE

"Yes, this will be the first tourney for me in quite a while," MacKay said. "I'll be playing with a big brace on my leg. I can move around, but it's the sudden turns and twists that are hard."

MacKay, since his knee injury, has acted as representative for the International Tennis Players Assn., and has the personality to fit right in that position.

Absent from yesterday's luncheon and golf tourney were Pancho Gonzales, Segura and Davies. But they'll be around when the pros start going after the big money. Gonzales lost to Rod Laver in the finals of the Masters Round Robin pro tourney Monday in Los Angeles and got a late start to Marin.

LAVER FAVORED

With the triumph in Los Angeles, Laver was given the top seed in the Marin tournament and Gonzales the No. 2 seed. Roswell, host pro from Peacock Gap, is the No. 3 seeded player and Andres Gimeno 4th.

Workmen at the site of the tourney were hammering and sawing yesterday putting the finishing touches on the new tennis layout at Peacock Gap, It will seat 3,500 when completed. That should be sometime today.

It will give the pros just one day to find out about the courts, since none of them has had any practice on it yet.

Segura was slowed down by an auto accident 10 days ago in Los angeles, but is expected to be able to play in the Marin tourney. But just in case, Alex Olmedo has been put on standby duty to take his place in the lineup, MacKay said yesterday.

Busholz, who lost to Laver in the L. A. tourney, yesterday said playing against him was "like being in a jungle in Viet Nam with a water gun." He agreed that Laver will be the one to beat in the Peacock Gap tourney.

DRYSDALE STOPS CARDS WITH NEAR NO-NO—2-0

By CURT BLOCK
UPI Sports Writer

When Don Drysdale gets down to business he's a hard man to deal with—in fact, he's almost impossible.

Drysdale was all but perfect last night against the St. Louis Cardinals when he stopped the world champions on one hit in a 2-0 Dodger victory that snapped a seven-game Redbird win streak.

Curt Flood, the game's first batter singled and thereafter only one Cardinal reached base and he did on an error.

The one-hitter was the first of the tall righthander's career but he said after the game that there was no question in his mind that the ball should be scored a base hit even through it glanced off his right hand.

The game was a scoreless pitching duel until the eighth when the Dodgers pushed over the only runs of the contest to hand unbeaten Bob Gibson his first setback after eight straight wins.

In other National League games, Philadelphia belted the Mets 10-3; Pittsburgh nipped Chicago 7-6 in 12 innings; Cincinnati trimmed Houston 7-4; and Milwaukee clobbered San Francisco, 14-1.

Drysdale, who led the league in innings pitched last season, opened the Los Angeles eighth with a single. He was sacrificed to second and Wes Parker then drew a walk. With two out, reliable Ron Fairly stepped up and stroked a double to left center, scoring the only two runs of the game.

In achieving his seventh win against three losses, Drysdale struck out six and did not walk a batter. Of his three setbacks, two were one-run losses and the other by two runs. His handling of St. Louis marked Drysdale's fifth complete game and second near perfect shutout of the year.

The Phillies shook off the cobwebs and pelted five Met pitchers for 18 hits. Johnny Callison, Frank Thomas, Gus Triandos and winning pitcher Ray Herbert had three hits each as the former American League righthander stopped the New Yorkers on seven hits. Ron Swoboda (11) and Johnny Lewis (6) had circuit clouts for the losers.

Last place Pittsburgh won its fifth straight on a 12th inning single by Andre Rodgers. Hot-hitting Donn Clendenon had four hits for the Bucs and led off the 12th with a single before being sacrificed into scoring position.

Herbel was long gone when Jones came up again in the third and singled across another run while the Braves were belting southpaw Bob Hendley around for three more tallies.

Another lefty, Masanori Murakami, gave up five more runs —including Jones' fifth homer of the season, during the sixth.

The 19-hit attack matched an output which the Braves unloaded against the Pittsburgh Pirates on May 13.

Hendley, who used to be a starter, gave up five runs and seven hits in the three frames he worked. This lifted his ERA to 12.6 with 27 hits in a total of 15 frames.

"What am I supposed to tell you?" Franks countered when asked what plans he might have for helping the former Milwaukee hurler find himself. At the moment, jolly ol' Herm was somewhat lost on his own.

Nine Marin Grade School Track Marks

Nine records were either broken or tied at the annual Marin County track and field championship meet for seventh and eighth grade boys and girls last Saturday at Novato High School's field.

Barbara Dickens and Ivory Foster of Richardson Bay, Jim Bauer, Lynn Vogensen, Jorgene Allen, Gena Gotlieb and Donna Peterson of Davidson Junior High, and John Malvino and Maryann Monestier of Henry C. Hall School were the record breakers.

PINEAPPLE BONNET SALAD recipe chooses to add a layer of cranberry sauce, sour cream, raisins and vinegar to the tangy taste of crushed pineapple.

Crushed Pineapple Livens Salad Mold

Perky posies brighten the crown of this bonnet salad made with refreshing crushed pineapple, chosen to combine throughout the lively orange pineapple gelatin top layer. And below that there's a deep handsome amethyst layer which combines canned cranberry sauce, sour cream, raisins and vinegar. Its tangy taste goes wonderfully well with the pineapple layer.

Mold this bonnet salad in a round fluted flat bottomed pan and brim it with mint, parsley, watercress or shiny lemon leaves. The flowers used for trim are fake but they look real. Canned unsweetened pineapple juice as well as pineapple slices, chunks and tidbits are useful in molding other salad ideas for spring.

PINEAPPLE BONNET SALAD

1 (6-ounce) package orange-pineapple gelatin
1¾ cups boiling water
1 (8½-ounce) can crushed pineapple
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup dairy sour cream
1(1-pound) can whole cranberry sauce
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup dark seedless raisins

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; divide into two equal portions. Add undrained pineapple, lemon juice and celery to one part. Pour into 6-cup mold. Chill quickly until set but not firm. Blend sour cream into remaining gelatin. Stir in all remaining ingredients. Chill until very thick. Spoon over pineapple layer. Chill firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Serve with mayonnaise or sour cream. Makes 8 servings.

Sponge Cake, Nibble Tray Just Right On A Warm Day

Nibble Tray
Swedish Sponge Cake Iced Tea

SWEDISH SPONGE CAKE

1½ cups unsifted regular flour
1½ teapsoons baking powder
½ cup boiling water
¼ cup butter
3 large eggs
1 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon

Grease a 2-quart fluted tube pan with 1 tablespoon butter; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon fine dry bread crumbs, shaking pan to distribute evenly.

On a piece of wax paper, stir together the flour and baking powder. Pour the boiling water into a small mixing bowl; add the butter; stir until melted; cool. In a medium mixing bowl, beat eggs until foamy; gradually beat in the sugar; continue to beat, if necessary, until ivory color. Add flour mixture, water mixture and lemon rind; beat gently just until blended. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a slow (325 degrees) oven for 1 hour or until cake begins to pull away from sides of pan and tester inserted in center comes out clean. Loosen edges with a spatula; turn out on wire rack; cool.

Asparagus Freshens Salads

Asparagus, a native of Europe, was introduced to America by President Jefferson who grew the rare asparagus from imported seeds in his greenhouse for state dinners.

Fresh asparagus, cooked and marinated makes a delicious spring salad The ancient Romans had a saying, "You can do it in less time than it takes to cook asparagus." And it's true, asparagus is best cooked quickly and until just tender. Prepare a marinade of corn oil and fresh lemon juice seasoned with tarragon, thyme and oregano while the asparagus cooks. Drain asparagus and marinate in the refrigerator for several hours. Arrange the chilled marinated asparagus on crisp western iceburg lettuce cups and garnish with thin strips of lemon peel. Add a tomato wedge and a generous dollop of mayonnaise.

An asparagus Souffle Salad made with gelatin and mayonnaise is another delightful way to serve plentiful asparagus. Still anohter colorful salad is asparagus and shrimp marinated in a mayonnaise and lemon juice combination then served with iceburg lettuce.

ASPARAGUS SALAD

¾ cup corn oil
½ cup lemon juice
1½ tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon tarragon leaves
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
½ teaspoon oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ clove garlic
2 pounds fresh asparagus
lemon peel slices
Tomato wedges
Mayonnaise
Iceburg lettuce

Measure corn oil, lemon juice sugar, salt, tarragon, thyme, oregano and pepper into jar. Add garlic. Cover and shake well. Chill, then remove garlic. Trim scales and tough ends from asparagus. Wash asparagus well. Cook in 2 inches boiling salted water in covered deep narrow pan, just until tender. Carefully drain and arrange in large shallow dish. Pour ½ cup dressing over asparagus; reserve remainder to use as desired. Cover and chill asparagus several hours. Serve on lettuce, garnish with tomato wedges, lemon peel and mayonnaise. Makes 4 servings.

ASPARAGUS SOUFFLE SALAD

1 cup boiling water
1 (3-ounce) package lemon flavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 cup diced cooked asparagus
1 cup diced seeded tomatoes
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
1 teaspoon chopped chive
Dash chervil, optional
Iceburg lettuce

Pour boiling water over gelatin in bowl; stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add cold water, vinegar, mayonnaise, salt and pepper; blend with rotary beater. Pour into freezing tray or metal loaf pan. Chill in freezing unit until firm about 1-inch from edge of pan but still soft in center, about 20 to 25 minutes. Turn mixture into bowl and whip with rotary beater until fluffy and thick. Fold in asparagus, tomatoes, parsley, chive and chervil. Pour into 1-quart mold or individual molds. Chill in refrigerator (not freezing unit) until firm, about 45 to 60 minutes. Unmold. Serve garnished with lettuce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWEDISH ASPARAGUS SALAD

3 cups diced, cooked asparagus
1 cup cooked shrimp
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 hard cooked egg, sliced
4 ripe olives

Mix asparagus, shrimp, mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and pepper together. Let marinate in refrigerator at least 2 hours. Arrange for serving; garnish with sliced egg, olives and a few shrimp from marinade. Makes 8 servings.

CRISP INDIVIDUAL SALADS combining fresh marinated asparagus on iceberg lettuce cups are garnished with thin strips of lemon peel, tomato wedge and mayonnaise.

many and varied, imported and domestic, but all with the essential excellence of design and craftsmanship that gives them authentic beauty and elegance. Did we say many? We mean many kinds, not many of each. In some cases, we have only one—the $200 French-imported alencon lace tablecloth, for instance. We have the lovely French Limoge ash tray, $2.50. Clearly, we're not interested in "quantity stock," and, if you've read this far, neither are you. We have a few of many beautiful things ranging from Bavarian stemware to Sheffield silver to Belgian linens to Italian pottery to Stieff pewter to Florentine cigarette boxes. Prices range from $2.25 to $50.00.

...linens of superlative quality

A dazzling variety of table mats and napkins range from Italian handmades to the best of the American-made; tablecloths too, of course, from France and Belgium. As for bed linens: they bear the familiar name of Fieldcrest, but these are the finest of Fieldcrest sheets, pillow cases, bedspreads; gorgeous new bath towels, also by Fieldcrest, and, to coordinate in breath-taking colors, Regal bath rugs of regal splendor. Prices range from $6.00 to $25.00.

...and closet accessories of comparable quality, from $1.00 to $16.98

...and a Patio Corner with everything from aprons to patio lights. Prices range from $1.00 to $12.00

Party To Follow Final Show Of Ballet Gala On Saturday

By MOLLY MARIN

Leona Norman, director of the Marin Civic Ballet, will be honored at a party following the last performance of the Marin Civic Ballet Gala in the College of Marin gymnasium Saturday by Sen. and Mrs. Jack McCarthy at home in San Rafael.

The highlight of the gala to be presented both Friday and Saturday at 9 p.m. is the satire Mrs. Norman has created, "Golden Moments of Ballet" with the participation of the Guckenheimer Sour Kraut Band. Two new works commissioned by the Marin Civic Ballet will also be presented: Marc Wilde's "Rustic Wedding" and Ron Poindexter's "Twink." The program will include the Snow Scene Pas de Deux from "The Nutcracker" and Le Pas de Quatre of Perrot.

WITH THE Redwood High School Senior Ball set for Friday night at the Peacock Gap Country Club, a number of events have been planned to fete the near-graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Moore have invited friends of their daughter, Kathleen, to a dinner party at their Belvedere home before the ball. Among the guests will be Eleanor Watkins, Patricia Langille, Russ Keil, Tim Frost and Rick Wynne.

Invitations have been received by friends of Gail Noah to top off the festive evening with breakfast hosted by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Noah, at their home on Belvedere's West Shore.

ELAINE THOMAS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas of Peacock Gap, will be honored at tea at her parents home on Thursday after graduation ceremonies at Dominican Upper School where she has been an honor student all through high school and lower school. She is enrolled at University of California Davis where she will major in design.

The 30 guests will include

Vinetta Ashmore Is Wed In Chapel Rite

Vinetta Gaye Ashmore of Hamilton Air Force Base, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Vincent H. Ashmore, became the bride of Lt. Richard Otto Lundstrom of Fargo, N. D., Saturday at Chapel Two on the base.

The chaplain, Maj. Henry C. Bielski officiated at the ceremony at which the bride was given in marriage by her father. Vinetta wore an organza over tafetta gown and Chantilly lace jacket with attached chapel length train.

The bride's sister, Mrs. John P. McVicar of San Francisco, was matron of honor and Pamela Mitchell of Hamilton was bridesmaid. They wore powder blue crepe dresses with over lace on the bodice.

Lt. Lundstrom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lundstrom, who came from their home in Fargo for the ceremony.

Vinetta attended Yuba College and has been employed as a photographer. She has a brother, Tom. Richard was graduated from the University of North Dakota.

Following a honeymoon at Lake Manitowoc the newlyweds will visit the new Mrs. Lundstrom's grandmother, Mrs. T. R. Ashmore of Rhode Island before reporting to their first home at Luke Air Force Base, Phoenix.

Marianne Hallroan Becomes Bride Of Werner H. Sellman

A double ring ceremony united Marianne Hallroan and Werner H. Sellman the afternoon of May 8 at St. Anselm's Church in Ross.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George M. Hallroan of San Anselmo, and the late Mr. Hallroan. Her brother, Edward Michael Hallroan, gave Marianne in marriage. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Radieve of San Anselmo.

MR. AND MRS. WERNER H. SELLMAN (Schroll-Heritage photo)

Werner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sellman of Mill Valley. He has one brother, Reinhold, of Mill Valley.

A cousin of the bride, June Cortese, of Pacifica, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marianne's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward M. Hallroan, of San Anselmo, and Eleanor Schembs of Kentfield.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Tamalpais High School, and is now employed with the Marin Municipal Water District. The new Mrs. Sellman completed her studies at Marin Catholic High School. She works in San Francisco.

The couple's first home will be in Woodacre.

Exercise Break A Fitness Idea

The coffee break has now become a nationally accepted ritual. Efficiency studies have upheld the value of taking a breather inbetween times during the work day.

And now — from the Second National Conference on Cardiovascular Disease comes a plea for a physical fitness break, too — for exercise.

Gate Span Stroll Curfew Unexpected And Puzzling

The curfew on pedestrian use of Golden Gate Bridge was both sudden and inexplicable.

It would not have been quite so sudden and quite so puzzling if the decision had been made by the bridge board of directors at a regular board meeting.

The reasons for the need to close the pedestrian walkways between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. would then have been debated and reported to the public.

What happened was that the bridge general manager apparently issued the order out of a blue sky. No explanation was given other than that it was in the interests of better bridge operation and efficiency.

The bridge directors are willing to spend thousands to publicize the bridge and encourage tourism in the Bay Area. The Golden Gate Bridge is a famed landmark that is attracting tourists from throughout the country and the world.

Visitors look forward to their one chance in a lifetime to stroll across the bridge or catch the sunset or the sunrise from the famed span.

Then without warning, a simple edict snatches that privilege from the public.

It certainly makes little sense for the bridge authorities to encourage visitors to the Land by the Golden Gate, then turn right around and deny the visitors one of the best views of the Golden Gate during the best hours of the day.

In the past, the pedestrian walkways were open to the public from sunrise to sunset. Offhand, we can think of nothing objectionable to public use of the span during those hours.

But the new ruling cuts off about two hours from both ends of the day. You can't stroll onto the bridge until after the sun has been out for two hours. And you've got to be off the bridge two hours before the sun sinks over the horizon.

No doubt the bridge board of directors will review that ruling. And the reasons for the curfew will be aired during that review.

Those reasons should be convincing and compelling, if the public is to be barred from strolling the span at sunrise and sunset.

In the absence of compelling reasons, we urge that the bridge directors over-rule the general manager and "re-open" the span to its rightful owners.

TO LEAD IS TO SERVE

Leadership can be summed up in many ways, but one brief and meaningful definition of "to lead" is "to guide by drawing along, or by going ahead and showing the way."

This type of leadership, urgently needed in the world today, offers little in the way of ease, honor, or personal gain. More often than not, it involves the very opposite—frustration, misunderstanding, hardship, personal risk and sometimes personal loss.

But in the long run, the trouble encountered in being such a leader is small compared to the sense of personal fulfillment and achievement in working for the common good of all.

Show leadership initiative, courage and perseverance in your home, on the job, at school or in the civic, social or church organizations to which you belong.

Develop a love for people based on love of the Lord and you will be on the lookout for opportunities to be of service to others by humble leadership.

"The Son of Man has not come to be served but to serve." (Matthew 20:28)

Deepen in me, O divine Master, a desire to be of service to others.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Fast-Breeding Special Districts Still A Burden To State Citizens

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — While the Legislature wrestles with tax increases, tax reforms, or possible shifts in tax burdens from property owners to other sources, State Controller Alan Cranston once again has reminded Californians of the state's "fantastic jungle" of special districts.

THE CONTROLLER noted that, besides 58 counties and 382 cities, there are 1575 school districts and 3622 special districts, or a total of 5677 taxing jurisdictions.

"Worst of all . . . when you count the overlapping segments of the resulting kaleidoscope, you find 18,759 separate little tax code areas," Cranston said. "Some of these code areas include as many as 15 or 16 taxing jurisdictions.

"It's like living in the Amazon, with all sizes and varieties of alligators all around — snapping at your hip pocket," he added.

This is not a new lament with Cranston. In a Legislature as tax conscious as California's, it is a wonder the formation of these districts has been permitted over the years. However, individual legislators have taken care of individual situations for years and the hodgepodge has been the result.

WHILE COUNTY assessors often are in trouble with the voters because of increases in appraisals for assessment and county supervisors often feel the wrath of the property owner at tax time, the hundreds of little districts often go unnoticed, taking big bites out of the tax dollar.

Few people are even aware of the existence of some of these districts. Fewer still are aware when such districts hold elections, if they hold them. Governing boards often hold office through default.

THE SPECIAL district situation, in extreme cases, has produced even greater problems. An Assembly committee turned up a case in which a firm which wanted to develop some resort property formed a special district and issued bonds to finance the program. The bonds have not been repaid.

Cranston said the picture on special districts is not as black as it could be because something finally is being done about it. In 1963, the Legislature adopted a law providing for the more orderly formation of such districts, by creation of local agency formation commissions throughout the state.

"Special districts were growing at the rate of almost 200 a year—186, for example, in 1963, when the LAFCO legislation was enacted," Cranston said. "Last year, the first full calendar year of the LAFCO's, only 17 new special districts were created."

Special districts are formed for fire protection, special lighting, mosquito abatement, flood control and water conservation, irrigation, utilities and many other purposes. The 1963 legislation regulating formation of new districts may slow down the increase.

"UNDER OUR present system, the taxes on any piece of property turn out to be whatever grand total is accumulated by the various budgetary needs of whatever combination of districts the particular property lies in," Cranston said. "This means that the taxes are never fixed, and simply cannot be fixed, with carefully calculated regard to what the property taxpayer may be able to bear."

Suggestion For 'Saving' Mints

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Re: the letter from Tom Worth on the preservation of the New Orleans Mint. . . .

Here in the West, we, too, have the problem of saving the Old San Francisco Mint at Fifth and Mission Streets from demolition. The present plan seems to be razing the building to provide for another parking facility.

Inasmuch as Mr. Johnson has approved the minting of $45,000,000 new silver dollars, which undoubtedly will never see public circulation, might I suggest the sale of these dollars to the public at a premium price of two or three dollars each? This was always done with commemorative issues, so the legality is already established. The revenue could be used to finance the building of the new Philadelphia Mint, and to establish a trust fund for the preservation of the old mints as historical landmarks.

Redwoods League Seeks Site Funds

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your May 18 editorial, "Redwood Empire Bounces Back . . ." is well taken and timely.

One organization in particular, among the combined individuals and organizations responsible for the incomparable Redwood region, is the Save-the-Redwoods League. The League has helped to preserve the Redwoods so that tourists may go to visit these magnificent trees in their natural setting.

The League has campaigned for funds to purchase Redwood lands since 1910. Together with the State it has bought 100,000 acres now in 28 State Redwood Parks. Without these parks there would be few places in the Redwoods for tourists to visit.

Gold Bluffs Beach and Fern Canyon have just been purchased for the State park system for an amount exceeding $2,000,000. The League has undertaken to raise the money to buy this land with the expectation the State Legislature will see fit to match private contributions with funds from the Parks and Recreation Bond Issue.

Save-the-Redwoods League is honoring its pledge: It is actively campaigning for funds, just as it has for the last 47 years. Contributions can be sent them at 114 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

County Salaries Don't Seem Fair

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have read with considerable interest the recent series of listings of the salaries of employees of the County of Marin by departments. It amazed me to discover that the annual salary of the Director (female) of the Department of Social Services (Welfare) exceeds that of the Sheriff of Marin County by $1,500. On close study, other glaring disparities appear, too numerous to mention.

Perhaps the Independent-Journal's public service-minded action in publishing these little known facts will stir up a hornet's nest among the residents of the County when they realize that a social worker IIIB (female) is a much better paid job that that of a Deputy Sheriff (male). Might this not lead to some interdepartmental requests for transfer, if this were possible? Why should a Deputy risk his life for $6,432 annually when, with a little bit of luck, he could play "wet nurse" for $7,080?

Obviously, in the highly complex society of the 20th Century, there is a real need for Social Services in its many aspects, but it does not justify a community standing superior to that of Law Enforcement.

'No' Vote Urged On Bond Issue

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Early next monh, the voters will be asked to vote on the proposed Hall of Justice Bond Issue to become part of the County's Civic Center. This is another instance where the authorities are presenting a potentially large tax liability without information to the voting public. . . .

I cannot envision the county needing a building the size of the new Emporium in Northgate, which contains 209,000 square feet, to meet its judicial needs. If we were to assign a cost of $30 per square foot to a comparable building, it would cost $6,270,000 to construct, which would leave approximately $5 million for furnishings, probably making it the second Taj Mahal in the world.

. . . Supervisor Peter Behr stated in a recent meeting that even if we vote "no" on the bond issue, the supervisors will build the Hall of Justice on a lease-back arrangement, forming a nonprofit organization for this purpose. The lease-back arrangement could cost the taxpayers up to 100 per cent more in interest costs over a 30-year period of time.

Either road is expensive, but I urge a "no" vote on the bond issue at this time and urge the Supervisors to reflect on the additional tax burdens they will place upon the already overburdened home and property owners in this county should they decide to use a lease-back arrangement. . . .

U.N. Flag In School Is Not 'Subversion'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Maria L. Cochran's letter in your May 17 edition sounds right out of the McCarthy era. To equate distribution of the U.N. flag with "subversion" is to deprecate Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy—all supporters of the U.N. President Johnson hopes the U.N. will be the instrument to settle Viet Nam.

The county could use another hundred John Wileys. More power to him.

U.S. Education Bill Violates Tradition

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The education bill which President Johnson signed in a Texas schoolhouse last month violates our traditional American separation of Church and State. The requirement that parochial and private students benefit through "shared time" programs constitutes indirect aid to religion.

Our great public school system is one of the sustaining and supporting elements of American democracy. Federal aid to the parochial student endangers that system.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON (AP)—Whatever happened to the Communists who, President Lyndon B. Johnson said, had taken over the revolution in the Dominican Republic?

That's one of the least clear points in all the confusion — and there has been plenty — about the revolution which started April 24 and this country's role in it. There were three stages:

1. When this country didn't even mention the Reds as a problem.
2. When this country said they had seized control of the revolution.
3. Now when U.S. officials say the Reds are not in control.

Throughout there has been one major figure, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, who has been in command of the rebels from the beginning and through all three stages.

WHEN JOHNSON sent in the Marines April 28, he said the purpose was to save American lives in the upheaval. U.S. officials, further explaining, said this country was taking no sides.

Caamano was the rebel commander a that time.

A few days later, May 2, Johnson announced the U.S. goal in the Dominican Republic was to prevent a Communist takeover.

He explained in a nationwide broadcast: "What began as a popular democratic revolution committed to democracy and social justice very shortly moved and was taken over and really seized and placed into the hands of a band of Communist conspirators."

BUT ON THAT DATE Caamano was still called the commander.

Now Sunday, three weeks later, the Associated Press from Santo Domingo reported U.S. officials are said to be convinced that Communist leaders no longer dominate the rebel command.

The U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, Ellsworth Bunker, was reported as saying:

"The U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic are not there to support either side against the other."

AND CAAMANO is still the boss of the rebels.

The A.P. also said that in the view of the men shaping American policy there the Communist threat remains serious and would quickly erupt into a new bid for power and a second Cuba if U.S. troops were withdrawn.

Various groups have been involved in the revolution. And no doubt Communists were. A revolution is made to order for them. Nor can there be any doubt that in the Dominican Republic, as elsewhere, they would turn it into a Communist state if they could.

But this question, despite the various official statements, hasn't been answered:

IF CAAMANO was rebel commander all the way through — even when Johnson said the Reds had taken control of the revolution — was Caamano under their thumb? This writer has seen nothing to indicate he was. But, if he was, what has happened to the thumb?

Or was the information Johnson got about events in the Dominican Republic wrong or exaggerated?

But this isn't the only confusion.

Last week when the civilian-military junta attacked Caamano's rebels, there were printed reports in this country that the Marines helped the junta.

Johnson's press secretary, George Reedy, said: "The president's instructions to the troops when they were sent in were to observe neutrality."

BUT WHY WOULD they remain neutral if they were sent in to prevent a Communist takeover and the Communists had control of the revolution? Could their very presence be called neutral when sending them in was an anti-Communist action?

But Secretary of State Dean Rusk says this country is pursuing a policy of "complete neutrality" in the Dominican Republic.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

U.S. Threatens Slash In Dominicans' Funds

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Lyndon B. Johnson's policy-makers are using U.S. aid as a major diplomatic lever to force a coalition government in the strife-torn Dominican Republic.

Under Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy's personal direction, these free-wheeling diplomats are delaying or threatening to withhold approximately $25 million in economic and military aid until Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras includes members of the Communist-infiltrated rebel forces in a provisional government.

IN THIS STRANGE diplomatic maneuvering, the Bundy group is flatly demanding that General Imbert install supporters for former President Juan Bosch as recommended by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the rebel movement, or face an indefinite freeze of U.S. aid.

Since the outbreak of fighting in Santo Domingo, the Bundy group has succeeded in embargoing a large amount of the $22.2 million in economic-military aid voted by Congress for fiscal year 1965, which ends June 30.

In addition to this aid freeze, General Imbert was informed that future U.S. aid depends on his cooperation in forming a coalition government, which would include neutrals and pro-Communists.

This proposed aid, being dangled by U.S. authorities before General Imbert, totals $14 million in economic and $2.4 million in military funds earmarked for the republic in the Johnson administration's $3.3 billion foreign aid budget now before Congress.

While General Imbert is making it clear his government needs and wants U.S. assistance, he has rejected the Bundy ultimatum, warning that a coalition government would lead to a Communist take-over and an anti-U.S. government in the Dominican Republic.

According to congressional leaders probing the backstage diplomatic activities of the Bundy faction, these pressure tactics are comparable to those that brought Fidel Castro to power in Cuba, and led to the ouster and assassination of President Diem in South Viet Nam.

IN THOSE TRAGIC cases, State Department authorities, with White House approval, cut off or drastically reduced aid to the pro-U.S. governments, which were then toppled by internal forces. In Cuba the freeze on U.S. arms during the Eisenhower administration directly helped Castro oust Batista, and led to a Communist regime.

While insiders report the Bundy group's secret objective in the Dominican Republic is to establish a "neutral or third force" government, many legislators are firmly convinced the outcome would be the same as in Cuba—a Communist regime controlled by Moscow.

Why President Johnson does not order his policy-makers and diplomats to throw this government's full political and economic weight behind the civilian-military junta of General Imbert is one of the unexplained mysteries of the present Dominican crisis.

Untrammeled Journalism Shines Forth In Bel Aire School Paper

ANOTHER ISSUE of the Bel Aire School Journal has just come off the presses.

"What is misery?" is the question, and Sam Dakin wrote that "Misery is staying after school on Friday, misery is having to eat liver."

"Misery is not being able to go out and play, misery is—girls," wrote John Green.

In the agony column, someone wrote asking why people don't like nature and signed it "Naturific."

"Dear Naturific," came the answer. "Some people like nature but they think they will be thought a sissy if they say that they like nature. But other people just don't like beautiful things."

THEN THERE IS news from Miss Kluchnik's sixth grade:

"Miss Kluchnik was given two soft bunnies for an Easter present. These bunnies are two or three months old. Fuzzy and Wuzzy live in Room 18 all week and are cared for by the class. Every Friday someone is given permission to take the bunnies home."

Under the headline "Chalk Fun":

"For open house, Mrs. Basom's class made murals out of chalk. They were early transportation and communication, the gold rush, mission days, explorers and Indian life. They were fun to make and turned out very well."

"What happiness is" was the question and the answers were:

A six million dollar land transaction, believed to be the largest deal recorded in Marin, was disclosed in connection with developing the Loma Verde subdivision across Highway 101 from Hamilton Air Force Base.

Writing About Cowboys Relaxes Politics-Jaded Columnist Art

WASHINGTON—Whenever I get tired writing about politics, I like to write a cowboy script. I've been working on one lately about Lyndon Baines, the famous mayor of Great Bird Falls.

In the opening scene, the tall, kindly mayor is addressing the people in front of the Great Society saloon.

"NOW FOLKS," he says, "Ah'm happy to announce that everyone is going to get more water, more schooling, and better medical care, and it is my intention to see that Great Bird Falls becomes the most wonderful town in the country and its citizens the happiest people in the world."

The townspeople cheer, but suddenly a cowboy rides into town, jumps off his horse and says breathlessly, "The Shawnees are fightin with the Blackfeet Indians, mayor."

"That's no concern of ours," the mayor says.

"But the Blackfeet are being led by Apaches."

"Apaches?" says the mayor incredulously. "How do you know?"

"I have the names of 53 Apaches here in my pocket who are fighting on the side of the Blackfeet."

"WHERE DID YOU get this list?" the mayor wants to know.

"It was given to me by the Shawnees."

The mayor is grim. "We have no choice but to send in the cavalry to protect the lives of the white women and children."

"But there are no white women and children in the area."

"We'll send some in with the cavalry," the mayor says.

The next scene shows the U. S. cavalry riding up the canyon into Indian territory. They arrive just as the Blackfeet are about to attack the Shawnees.

The cavalry takes up positions between the two tribes and the colonel announces he has come to protect the lives and property of the white man.

The Blackfeet, furious at the interference, start sending up smoke signals denouncing the U. S. cavalry and the mayor of Great Bird Falls.

The colonel demands that the Blackfeet surrender and give up their Apaches. The chief of the Blackfeet denies he has any Apaches in his tribe.

"WE ANTI - APACHE," he tells the colonel. "All Blackfeet want is freedom."

The colnel goes to see the chief of the Shawnees and asks him to give up, but the chief says the Shawnees are the only ones who can keep the territory from going Apache. He demands the right to clean out the Blackfeet once and for all.

The mayor dispatches four deputies who meet with the chiefs and ask them to form a coalition tribe made up of Shawnees and Blackfeet.

Both chiefs say, "Ugh."

The mayor finally calls on the Orangization of Indian Chiefs to help him out.

The grizzled chief of the organization says to the mayor, "How!"

AND THE MAYOR replies, "That's what the hell Ah'm trying to figure out."

2 Apply For Education Board Post

Two persons have applied for a vacancy on the Marin County Board of Education but their names will not be known until the board takes action June 7.

The vacancy was created by resignation of Ben Roark Jr. representing area 6 which, included Point Reyes, Bolinas-Stinson and West Marin school districts.

The board of education decided by a 6-1 vote, with member James A. Carroll dissenting, that all applications for the job should be kept secret.

County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis said he and the interview committee will meet at the Civic Center in closed session tomorrow to talk to the two candidates, and will make a recommendation to the board of education June 7.

The committee is headed by Patrick W. Pollock and includes Adele J. Alpers and Arnold Dolcini.

Increased commercial TV programs in Great Britain has resulted in the non-commercial BBC altering its program structure somewhat in order to meet the commercial competition.

Legal Notices

RESOLUTION NO. 4038 N.S.
RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MILL VALLEY GIVING NOTICE OF PROPOSED ANNEXATION

WHEREAS, the City of Mill Valley desires to annex the territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY RESOLVED, ORDERED AND DECLARED:

1. The City Council of the City of Mill Valley does hereby give notice of its intention to annex to said City that certain territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference. Annexation proceedings will be conducted pursuant to the Annexation of Uninhabited Territory Act of 1939.

2. The proceedings for the annexation of said territory have been initiated by the City Council of the City of Mill Valley on its own motion and the reason why it desires such annexation is that said territory, because of its location, topography and other features will be benefited by the municipal services of said City.

3. Said annexation shall be designated as the "Alto Bowl No. 1 Annexation".

4. Notice is hereby given that on the 21st day of June, 1965, at 8:00 o'clock P.M. of said day, or as soon thereafter as said matter may be heard, in the Council Chambers in the City Hall, Mill Valley, California, the City Council of the City of Mill Valley, will meet to hear written protests against the annexation made by any person owning real property within said territory proposed for annexation.

5. That the City Clerk be, and he is hereby directed to cause a copy of this resolution to be published in the manner prescribed by Section 35311 of the Government Code of the State of California, and said clerk is further directed to cause such other notices of the proposed annexation to be given as may be required by said section.

PASSED AND ADOPTED at a meeting of the City Council of the City of Mill Valley on the 3rd day of May, 1965, by the following vote:
AYES: Councilmen Wickham, White, Sheeks, Mayor Wornum
NOES: None
ABSENT: Councilman Secor
MICHAEL WORNUM
MAYOR OF THE
CITY OF MILL VALLEY
ATTEST:

Let's Have Less Squirt

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — City hall's water fountain will be just a little squirt—about 18 inches of spouting water.

Maintenance chief George Hendrix had a wet time making this decision. Wind kept blowing higher spouts off path, and the water landed on concrete walks instead of in the fountain. Several times it got out of control and shot about 50 feet into the air.

Finally they settled for a little squirt.

President 'Sold' At Auction

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Tom Popejoy, president of the University of New Mexico, brought $24.75 at auction.

He was "sold" in a UNM Student project to raise funds for charity.

Religion Divides German Schools

By JOHN DORNBERG
Worldwide Press Service

BONN — At the elementary school in Kuedinghoven, a village of 1,800 near here, the childrens' lavatories are divided not only according to sex but along denominational lines as well.

The separate lavatories for girls and boys are further divided into separate lavatories for Protestant and for Catholic girls and boys.

This example of religious apartheid is symbolic of one of the most controversial issues in West Germany today: the division of public schools along denominational lines.

For many years this issue has been simmering just below the boiling point. Now it threatens to bubble over—thanks largely to a concordat signed between the Vatican and the West German state of Lower Saxony which will give the province's Catholic minority a long list of new rights and privileges in the public school system.

The concordat, arranged by Lower Saxony's Social Democratic government, has already split the state's coalition administration between the SPD and the middle-of-the-road, third force Free Democrats. What's more, it is likely to have repercussions on the Federal Republic's September general elections.

But all that is secondary to the denominational schools issue itself. In only three of West Germany's 11 states are public schools truly secular and non-denominational — in the city-states of Hamburg, Bremen and West Berlin which, between them, account for only 362,000 of the Federal Republic's nearly six million primary-school children.

In most of the rest of West Germany, education is largely church-influenced—either by the Catholic Church or the German Lutheran Evangelical churches.

More than half of West Germany's school children attend public schools divided along denominational lines—Catholic or Protestant—in which they are required to participate in religious instruction, along denominational lines, and attend church under the supervision of their teachers a couple of times a week.

The remainder attend institutions described officially as "Christian but non-denominational"—which, in practice has come to mean that they are Protestant in outlook.

In addition to the obvious differences between the two types of schools arising from their religious origins, the choice of school books in the one or the other is dictated largely by the churches that influence them and the teachers are appointed according to their denominational affiliation.

The truly secular school in which religious instruction has either been abolished or reduced to a bare minimum is virtually non-existant. Parents who insist on this are generally forced to send their children to private schools and pay tuition.

In a few areas a genuine effort has been made at "communal" schools in which both denominations are represented equally and given instruction according to the faith of their choice by special teachers—pastors or priests—brought in for several hours each week for religion courses. In practice, however, this system has failed abysmally as it has in the village of Kuedinghoven and has degenerated into segregation.

If it does not always lead to separate lavatories, it has on occasion gone so far that even the bicycle racks in the school yard are divided along religious lines: Catholic bicycles to the right, Protestant ones to the left—often under signs so labeled.

Even more disturbing problems can arise in schools of one denomination attended, for convenience, by children of the opposite faith. For example, a Protestant parent in Aachen recently reported that his child, attending a Catholic school, had been forced to remove the sausages from his sandwiches during mid-morning snacks on (no meat Fridays.

It should be noted that all these types of schools are public-run, not church-run. Indeed Article 7 of West Germany's constitution specifically states that, "Religious instruction shall form part of the ordinary curriculum in state and municipal schools except in secular schools."

To Americans, accustomed to the traditional separation of church and State, this situation may seem like a remnant of the Middle Ages. In a sense it is. For though the Peace of Westphalia put an end to the Thirty Years War in 1648, religious schism has continued as a factor in German life. To reduce overt trouble, German rulers ever since have taken the course of least resistance by granting both major churches an ever larger voice in public affairs.

For example, donations in Germany's churches are virtually unheard of. Pastors and priests do not need to pass the tray. They get their money through an official tithe—one-tenth of the income tax—which is collected by the state, in their behalf, right along with other paycheck withholdings.

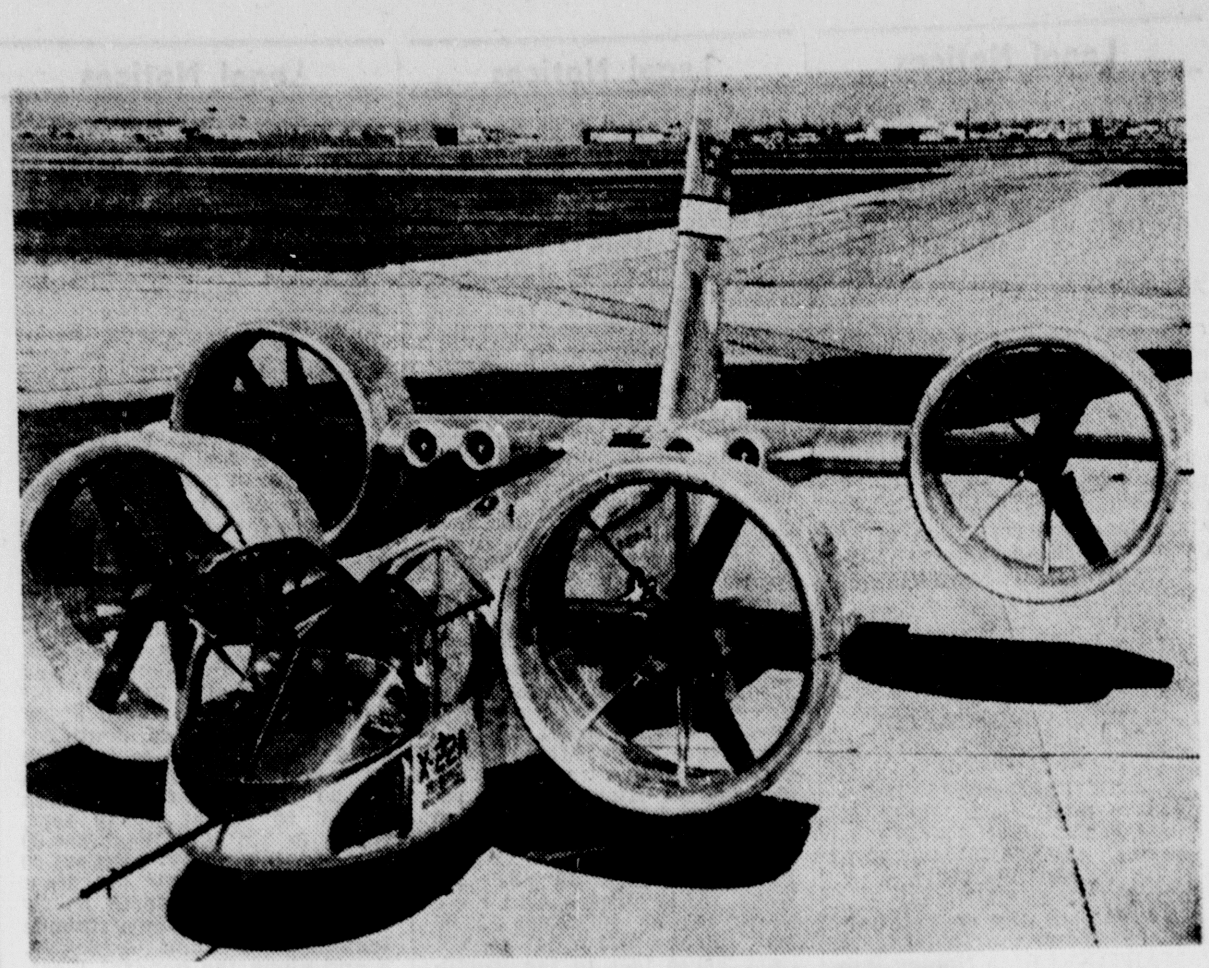
According to a recent poll by the Emnid Institute, 71 per cent of German parents favor non-denominational schools. To bring this about, however, requires a constitutional amendment, and chances for that are slim.

The issue, which in the past was confined largely to debate in the home or in the columns of esoteric monthly magazines, has now been brought into the open by the concordat between Rome and Lower Saxony.

This agreement was dictated largely by the desparate desire of the Social Democratic Party for victory next September, and the feeling that something must be done to capture Catholic votes.

But it has touched off a storm of controversy in West Germany which may backfire—largely because Lower Saxony's school system was relatively progressive and on the way to wider secularization.

Commented Hamburg's influential weekly, Die Zeit: "The common goal of all people interested in education in Germany has been the eventual abolition of the denominational school. It took the SPD—once in the forefront of this effort but now obstensibly motivated by tactical political considerations—to turn the clock backwards. This is all the more surprising because the SPD is supposed to be a party looking toward the future, a party which boasts of a certain measure of attraction for intellectuals."



NEW AIRCRAFT IS UNVEILED

The X22-a, a prototype of an aircraft designed for three military services that someday could be used in limited warfare of congested traffic areas, was unveiled at Niagara Falls, N.Y., yesterday. The X-22a was designed as a trainer for vertical takeoff and landings by student pilots. It will be used by the Navy, Army and Air Force.

County Asked For Continued Aid To Elderly

The Marin Council of Community Services has asked that its contract with the county to provide coordination for senior citizen services be continued for another year at cost to the county of $16,718.

This is $576 over the current budget, the increase being reflected primarily in a proposed raise in the salary of coordinator Richard Phenix from $9,600 to $10,080.

County Administrator Alan Bruce had recommended that senior citizen coordination be made an operation of the County Department of Social Service (welfare, which might be able to get state and federal aid.

Bruce said today he might reconsider the proposal if the contract with the council is to go for only one more year. In his budget, Bruce recommended that the same allocation be approved under the council contract for fiscal 1966 should the board of supervisors decide against the switch to welfare.

The contract covers only coordination of senior citizen functions and does not include other functions of the council, including coordination and planning of health services in the county.

The other functions are supported by the Bay Area United Crusade. This year the allocation totals $19,831 and mostly pays the council staff.

Two Marin Girls Due Scholarships

Two Marin girls have been selected for University of California scholarships.

Judith Gail Parsons, a senior at San Rafael High School, was awarded a regents scholarship. Judith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Parsons Jr., 536 Belle Avenue, San Rafael, plans to attend UC at Berkeley.

Elaine Marie Robba, a senior at Tamalpais High School, was awarded a president's scholarship. Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Robba, 12 Valley Circle, Mill Valley, also plans to study at the Berkeley campus.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

'Parrot Fever' Is Fowl Disease That Can Be Fatal For Humans

VAN DELLEN

Psittacosis is called parrot fever because, originally, members of the parrot family were thought to be the only carriers of the disease. Pigeons, ducks, domestic fowl, sea gulls, canaries, finches, and petrels transmit the causative organism. Many authorities prefer the term ornithosis.

Man develops the condition by inhaling dust containing droppings from infected birds. Prolonged exposure is not necessary as the disease has occurred among those feeding pigeons in public parks and on sidewalks. A famous eye specialist developed the malady from infected pigeons that roosted on his window sill. The elderly are unusually susceptible. Poultry workers contract the disease periodically. The attack is likely to be mild, possibly because some immunity develops.

MOST VICTIMS develop an atypical pneumonia with bronchitis and symptoms resembling influenza. Now and then, initial complaints are an intense headache with insomnia, suggesting brain involvement. In others, gastrointestinal complaints such as vomiting and abdominal pain predominate.

There have been epidemics of psittacosis on several occasions. One of the worst was traced to a shipment of 5,000 parakeets imported into Argentina from Brazil for auction. The birds obviously were sick and the managers were anxious to sell as many as possible. Many died and the rest were shipped to 12 different countries. The end result was 750 to 800 human cases, many of whom died.

DIAGNOSIS IS made by examining the blood and sputum. The chest X-ray usually shows an area of pneumonia that takes weeks to clear. The tetracycline group of antibiotics is the best remedy.

Avoid domesticated birds that appear to be ill. In addition, never purchase a tropical bird except from an established dealer. Epidemics in the United States have resulted in a strict quarantine and inspection of imported birds.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

SECOND CHILDHOOD

T. E. writes: What are the symptoms of senility?

REPLY

I would say feebleness of mind and body. Shakespeare said, "Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans everything."

Sir Walter Scott wrote:

"Thus aged men, full loth and slow,
The vanities of life forego,
And count their youthful follies o'er,
Till memory lends her light no more."

DIFFERENT BLOOD TYPES

Mrs. X writes: I have three children and each is a different blood type. Why?

REPLY

This is not unusual when parents have different blood types. For example, if one is group A and the other group B, the offspring may be O, A, B, or AB. Thus the blood of your fourth child may differ from that of the others.

CIRCLES UNDER EYES

S. H. writes: How do you get rid of dark, baggy circles under the eyes if sleep doesn't seem to help? P. S. They are not natural or hereditary.

REPLY

This is not easy to do except with cosmetics. An examination is suggested to make sure there is no internal disorder involving skin pigment.

NERVOUS CHILLS

F. L. B. writes: Is there something called nervous chills?

REPLY

Yes, in that some persons tell of a "chill going down their spine" and develop goose-flesh during unpleasant situations.

Dominican Convent Tennis Tournament

Trudy Vantress of Marysville defeated Sandra Donnell of San Rafael 9-7 in the eighth grade singles final of the Dominican Convent lower school division tennis playoffs yesterday.

Kathy Kennedy upset Kisty Cutter 6-2 to win the sixth grade playoffs. Both girls are from Mill Valley. Sally Sullivan seventh grader of Kent Woodlands, won the 1965 Tennis Sportsmanship trophy.

Winning achievement awards in the annual backboard competition were Pamela Bergman and Catherine Parks of San Rafael, both fourth graders.

Mexican Art Shown At Fair

President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, shortly after his election last year, ordered Mexico's display at the fair changed. All industrial exhibits were removed and emphasis was placed on native art.

A-Weapons To Stay At Front

McNamara issued his statement yesterday in response to an inquiry about published reports he had decided to pull back tactical nuclear weapons currently with forward elements in Europe.

A Chicago Tribune story along those lines was disputed Monday by the Pentagon which said it contained "inaccuracies and distortions." But the Washington Post said yesterday the denial "left the core of the (Tribune) story unchallenged."

U.N. Flags Used As Teaching Aides

United Nations flags given to Reed School District by United World Federalists two weeks ago are being used as aids in teaching about the U.N., a curriculum subject required by state law, Supt Edward C. Pino said today.

Each school in the district was given a flag by the Marin chapter of the Federalists in ceremonies May 11.

County Budget Due Airing Over KTIM

Marin County's proposed 24 million dollar budget for 1965-66 will be the topic when Supervisors Byron W. Leydecker and Ernest N. Kettenhoffen appear with County Administrator Alan Bruce on the Radio KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Listeners may call in questions during the broadcast, according to moderator Kitty Oppenheimer. The hour-long program will be taped for replay at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Mrs. Johnson Due In Washington Tour

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will be hostess of a one-hour television tour of Washington, in color, which ABC-TV says it has scheduled for the fall.

The producers of the special are John H. Secondari and Helen Jean Rogers, the husband and wife team responsible for the notable "Saga of Western Man" series of documentaries in the last two video seasons.

According to ABC-TV, the First Lady, in addition to the tour and look at national landmarks, will describe what has been done and what is being considered to resist urban decay and to maintain and increase the city's beauty.

The network adds that Mrs. Johnson, who is chairman of a committee for a more beautiful capital, will emphasize what Washington hopes to do to provideo model for the nation, and how individuals around the country can contribute to beautifying their own areas.

On Monday, Mrs. Johnson opened the White House conference on natural beauty, saying, "ugliness is bitterness."

An ABC-TV spokesman says the First Lady's program will be entirely different from Mrs. John F. Kennedy's televised White House tour.

Secondari, who is currently in Washington working on the special with his wife, said yesterday by telephone that he plans only "one or perhaps two" setups inside the White House. One, in the Oval Room, will start the show, he said.

Secondari said he estimated Mrs. Johnson would be on-camera for about 10 minutes, and that her narration would be employed in addition. "She appears at the key spots which are absolutely essential to tell the story of the past, present and future," he said.

The producer said that Mrs. Johnson's personal knowledge of the program's subject was contributing greatly to the content.

"She's astounding," he said. "She lives and breathes this."

THE CHANNEL SWIM: Govs. John McKeithen of Louisiana and Carl Sanders of Georgia discuss the voting rights bill on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" Sunday. . .Highlights of the "Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge" dinner and patriotic ball held by the women's division of the Los Angeles County chapter are presented as a one hour special on NBC-TV Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT, with Bob Hope as master of ceremonies.

Adventure TV Films Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Geographic Society announced it will participate in the broadcast of four hour-long television adventure documentaries next season.

The four exploration and discovery films will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS). The first, "Americans on Everest," will be telecast Sept. 10.

The others are about a female naturalist who studied chimpanzees in their native habitat in Africa, a round-the-world-voyage by the brigantine Yankee and about underwater research in "The World of Jacques Vyes-Cousteau."

Humphrey 'Good As A Minister'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., belives Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey may have missed his true vocation.

When Humphrey, a former Sunday school teacher, finished addressing an international prayer breakfast at the Capitol yesterday, Jordan said:

"If they ever take the vice presidency away from you I can get you a church."

Castro Sister Aids Refugees

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Juanita Castro, the Cuban dictator's exiled sister, said today the Marta Abreau Foundation which she established here will subsidize a Cuban refugee center in Jamaica.

Miss Castro said the help was offered after the Rev. Dormouth Verley, who operates the refugee haven in Kingston, informed her it was without funds.

Associates said Miss Castro set up the foundation with her own resources but soon will start a fund-raising campaign.

Aged Income Tax Proposal Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has removed from the House-passed Social Security-health-care bill a provision to lower income-tax benefits for the aged.

Under present law, persons over 65 can deduct all medical expenses in figuring their income taxes. Younger taxpayers can deduct medical expenses exceeding 3 per cent of their gross income, and medicine and drug costs exceeding 1 per cent.

A provision in the House Bill would have required persons over 65 to use the 3-and-1 per cent limits in figuring income taxes, but the Senate committee approved Tuesday an amendment by Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., to erase the section.

Tennessee Valley Horse Show Slated

Northern California riders will take part in the Tennessee Valley Riders' third annual horse show June 6, starting 9 a.m., at the stables on Tennessee Valley Road.

Reservations may be obtained through Eileen Fordyce of 15 Teal Road, Belvedere.

Two Confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday confirmed the appointment of Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) Chairman Alan S. Boyd to be undersecretary of commerce. The nomination of Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy to succeed Boyd was also approved.

Talk On Marincello

The Marincello project will be discussed at a public meeting sponsored by San Anselmo Homes Assn. at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Isabel Cook School, San Anselmo.

ARTIST PRACTICES FOR SHOW

Annual Art Show Slated At Center

Marin artists will spread their wares along the Corte Madera Center mall in the fourth annual art show there sponsored by the Marin Society of Artists tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

The show will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. On Satday, as a special feature, seven artists will set up shop on the mall for "art in action," exhibiting the artist at work.

The public, by its votes, will select the work to receive one of the four $50 prizes in the show.

There also will be $50 prizes each for representational and abstract paintings or drawings and one for sculpture, will be awarded by a jury selection. In these three groups, there will also be a second prize of $25. The works shown will also be for sale.

Artists participating in the "art in action" show will be Kenneth Potter, watercolors; Mary Ann Fries, portraits; Maggie Leitner, collage; Louis Ferrario, pottery; Jack Haehl, vermiculite sculpture; Jim Munson, clay sculpture, and Carol Cunningham, silk screen.

The prize money will be from the merchants of the Corte Madera Shopping Center. Gordon Fransworth is chairman.

Simple Solution For New Room

CHICAGO (UPI) — A simple solution to that yen for a new room is a room divider system.

It's not easy and it's not inexpensive to knock down interior walls or put up permanent new ones, but room dividers are something else again.

Room dividers consisting of floor to ceiling pressure poles and screw-on panels make it easy to re-do an interior.

And unlike new, permanent walls, room divider systems can be easily dismantled for yet another interior partitioning attempt.

Cat Starts Fire

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Curiosity nearly killed E. T. Beasley's cat. It also started a fire in Beasley's home. The curious feline got into Beasley's radio in his den and bit into a wire. The cat burned its mouth and started a small blaze which necessitated calling firemen.

Patron's Choice Show Is Slated For Artists

From the time the Marin Society of Artists opened the gallery at the Art and Garden Center, its finest effort of each year, the annual show, was held in conjunction with the Art and Garden Fair, partly to give the fair the best the group could offer and partly because the fair provided a huge captive audience for art work.

Artists saved their most ambitious works for the annual and the best possible professional juries were obtained to select this most important show.

However, as professional quality improved, so did the criticism from viewers. The Marin Society of Artists was accused of trying to foist off modern, "far out" work on a public which prefered traditional, representational painting and sculpture.

Some viewers were so incensed that they wrote letters of protest to the Independent-Journal, and the newspaper itself editorialized with some fairly harsh criticism.

Feeling a responsibility for giving the community what it "likes" for the fair at least, the Marin Society of Artists under 1964 president, Lotte McWatters, postponed the annual until September and established the first "Patron's Choice Show."

Non-artist community leaders were asked to be the jury. The result? A good show generally, and certainly one that the public seemed to enjoy and appreciate. As might be expected however, it was more conservative than in previous years.

A few of the artists felt that the whole scheme was rather like allowing the patient to operate on the doctor, but most were good natured. At least, good natured enough to be willing to try it again this year.

Rental Gallery Is Best Outlet For Original Art

Undoubtedly the biggest and best outlet for original art work in Marin County is the Rental Gallery established by the Marin Society of Artists.

Patrons may view the paintings at the Francis Young Gallery during the semi-annual Rental Shows in May and November, or in the rental racks at the rear of the gallery throughout the year.

Then they may try a painting in their homes or offices for three months for as little as five dollars. If the rentor decides to buy, his rental fees may be applied to purchase price.

This easy method for obtaining and enjoying original art work inexpensively has grown beyond the fondest dreams of the founders.

Started modestly in 1955 under the inspiration of Adolaine Cadogan, the first chairman, the project has grown to the point where over 1,400 paintings are out on rental at one time. At this month's opening 137 pictures were rented off the walls.

What kinds of paintings do patrons prefer? Many enjoy the color and design of an abstract. Some like the fun of a non-representational "conversation piece." But, the largest proportion of renters seek out the Marin landscapes or seascapes that go well in their homes.

Few of these pictures, however, are photographic in approach these days, for while their subjects continue to be canals, boats, trees, barns, gulls and marshes, these familiar themes are depicted with more color, verve and imagination than ever before.

BBC Announcer 'Carries On' With False Teeth

LONDON (AP) — Within minutes listeners were calling the British Broadcasting Company wanting to know "what has gone wrong with the newsreader?"

BBC radio news announcer Michael Brooke, 60, had just begun to read the 10:30 p.m. news when his upper plate cracked. Undeterred by this dental mishap he carried on reading, although his voice seemed strangely muffled.

"For no apparent reason," Brooke said later, "the top set of false teeth cracked just as I was about to read. It was terribly embarrassing but I carried on as best I could."

Brooke, who has been a news announcer for 25 years, stuck the upper plate together with sticky tape and was able to read the 11:30 p.m. news without difficulty. There were no complaints.

The next morning he went to the dentist.

Age Affects Diets

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI)— Older persons need fewer calories than they did in middle age. Many, however, continue to eat as they did at 45 and become overweight. A U. S. Agriculture Department survey in this area showed one - third of its oldsters were overweight and most of them were women. They had sound diets but ate too much, the department said.

Rural Hungarians Aid Mouse Drive

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungarian children have been urged to help rid the country of mice—a major pest which is threatening this year's harvest.

The antimouse drive was ordered by the Hungarian Ministry of Agriculture—children included—have been asked to take part.

Hungary's considerable mouse population caused several hundred million dollars damage to the agriculture last year, deputy agriculture minister Janos Keseru said in an article in the Hungarian Communist Party daily Nepszabadsag recently. The harvest census showed that their numbers have increased alarmingly meanwhile.

MONTGOMERY WARD IN CORTE MADERA SHOPPING CENTER

ARTISTS TAKE OVER CORTE MADERA CENTER MALL

Painters and ceramicists busy themselves today preparing their works for their debut tomorrow in the mall of the Corte Madera Shopping Center, under sponsorship of the Marin Society of Artists.

Art Show's Participants Boast Experience, Talent

Here is something about the Marin artists whose works will be displayed in art-in-action tomorrow, Friday and Saturday at the Corte Madera Center. Many prizes, offered through center merchants, will be offered the artists.

They are:

Carol Cunningham, a Mill Valley resident, does silk screening and works in oils and watercolors. Her work has been in various shows throughout the State.

Louis Ferrario, potter, has exhibited in local, State and national shows, and his work has been sold in a number of retail stores. He has taught at the College of Marin, and was head of the Ceramic Department at San Francisco State College. He is currently teaching part-time at San Rafael High School, in addition to conducting private studio classes.

Mary Ann Fries, who specializes in portraits in oils or pastels, studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and was the recipient of one of the institution's traveling scholarships to Europe. After studying abroad she married and devoted herself primarily to raising six children. Now that her youngest child is a teen-ager, she has more time to devote to her numerous portrait commissions.

Jack Haehl, sculptor and painter, is head of the Art Department at Terra Linda High School. He has exhibited in both California and Arizona.

Maggie Leitner, the wife of Dr. Jerome Leitner, works in collage, oil, and watercolor, and has had several local exhibits of her work.

Jim Munson, a sculptor and graphic artist, studied at the University of Nebraska and San Francisco State College, and is now co-owner of an art school called The Studio in Terra Linda.

Kenneth Potter is the winner of many awards in local, California, national, and foreign competitions, and has had numerous one-man shows and commissions. He works in watercolor, oil, casein, collage, drawing, and serigraphy, and makes his home in Corte Madera with his wife and young red - headed charmer named Katie.

Slope Solution

NEW YORK (UPI) — An increasing number of sloping lots with rough terrain now are being used as home sites. As the number of available level lots decreased, builders found they could terrace rougher land, design split levels.

PRESIDENT GETS PREVIEW

Farhad Moezzi, president of the Marin Society of Artists, gets an advance look at some of the society members' works that will be on display tomorrow through Saturday in the mall of the Corte Madera Shopping Center. The show will be the society's fourth annual display.

Lawmakers Storm Over State Bird

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Legislators are storming and forming battle lines for a showdown on changing the Illinois official state bird from the cardinal to the purple martin.

The House Waterways Committee has endorsed, 23-4, a bill to make the purple martin the new state bird.

Rep. John Morris, D-Chadwick Ill., the principal sponsor of the legislation, says there's nothing sacred about the cardinal.

"Besides, the purple martin consumes insects."

Morris contends that promotion of the purple martin would stimulate a bird-house building firm in Griggsville, Ill., which calls itself the "purple martin capital" of the nation.

Rep. Charles Clabaugh, R-Champaign, Ill., objects.

"It offends me that we should change the state bird on the basis of commercialism," he said.

Another First For Negro Judge

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—H. B. Daniels, the first Negro judge to sit in Arizona, is used to being first.

In 1925 he was the first Negro football player ever on the Tucson High School team.

Daniels, 57, has been named a Phoenix city magistrate.

Common Ground

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — There's a wide age range in the student body at University of Michigan, from the 44 youngest who are 16 to the oldest student, who is 71. A report prepared by the Office of Registration and Records shows there were 40 students age 60 and over at the beginning of the 1964 fall term.

One Night It Rained Cookies

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Three neighbors still talk about the night it rained cookies.

The "shower" was discovered by Stanley Morris who heard a noise that sounded like an explosion.

Stepping outside, Morris found his backyard and garage roof littered with bags of cookies. It was the same situation at the homes on either side of his.

There was no name or identifying clue on the bags.

Morris speculated the cookies may have been part of an air cargo, but a check of local bakeries failed to turn up any who had made such shipments.

Churchill Citizenship Papers On Display

NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1963 the U. S. Congress, in appreciation of a lifelong service to humanity, made Sir Winston Churchill of Great Britain an honorary citizen. Only one other person, the Marquis de Lafayette, has been so honored. Churchill, whose mother was American-born, especially treasured the certificate of citizenship, and the proclamation, signed by the late President John F. Kennedy. These documents are on view at New York's 1965 World's Fair in the People-to-People pavillion designed as, and named, a Tribute to Churchill.

WARDROBE-WISE COED—Karen Franz of San Rafael won top western region honors in a Montgomery Wards fashion contest, and will appear in the big firm's next catalogue. She and her mother also will be given a trip to the New York World's Fair.

San Rafael Coed Honored As Teen-Age Style Expert

Karen will become a member of the Wendy Ward National Pacesetter Board; be awarded the five wardrobe outfits she coordinated for her entry; will be awarded a trip for herself and her mother to New York and will meet with the company's key fashion merchandisers and advise them of fashions and fashion trends from this area.

Miss Franz's picture will appear in Wards fall and winter catalog which will be issued in July.

Karen is a senior at Marin Catholic High School and last fall was Homecoming Queen. She plans to major in art at College of Marin next fall.

Cluttered Homes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The best-ordered homes can become cluttered with magazines and newspapers unless there's a place especially designed for them. A rack or alcove built into the wall of your living room is a good solution to this problem. If the area is surfaced with ceramic tile it will add real beauty to convenience.

Artists Getting Ready For Fair

Members of the Marin Society of Artists have plans already well under way for the Society's section of the Marin Art and Garden Fair on July 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

Drawing from its membership of approximately 650 artists and art lovers, the Society plans a continuous art-in-action program for the enjoyment and edification of Fair visitors.

At any time throughout the day people may watch painters at their easels, some making portraits, and other artists participating in group sketching; sculptors at work in wood, clay, steel, or "found objects" (making sculptures out of ready-made objects).

There will be weavers at their looms, spinners, and someone demonstrating stitchery, an art medium that currently is evoking much interest in the art world. Also to be seen will be artists working on collages, jewelry, and silk screening.

Always of great interest will be the potters, with their kick and electric wheels. Visitors will be encouraged to converse with the artists and ask questions on the work in progress.

Those who want to buy as well as look may find the sales area interesting, for there they will find pots, weaving, paintings, and prints for sale at reasonable prices. Jewelry and sculpture may be purchased from the individual artist.

Hungry art patrons can get an over-all view of the activity from the Society's Snack Bar, located between the sales and art-in-action sections.

The Society is also entering the garden competition with painter's, weaver's, and potter's gardens. There may also be a sculptress's garden.

Flat, fertile Jerba is the largest island in the entire 2,450-mile sweep of Africa along the Mediterranean.

Blaze Battling Taught By Film

TEANECK, N. J. (UPI) — How can you teach a forester to fight fires without giving him a forest to practice on? The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service does it with a new optical device known as a fire simulator. The device projects a variable moving picture of flame and smoke, and responds to the decisions of fire - fighting trainees.

It's a new way of playing with fire without getting burned," says Thomas A. Wood president of Decision Systems Inc., of Teaneck, manufacturers of the device.

Youngster Doesn't Enjoy Cooling Off

WEST COVINA (UPI) — For Gerald D. Gazaway, 6, eleven hours in a beer keg cooler were just plain "awful." The lad was trapped in the cooler accidentally, and wasn't found until 11 hours later — slightly cool, but in otherwise good condition.

"Daddy says I'm not old enough to drink beer," said Gerald, denying he sampled any of the brew.

State Fair Prize Winners To Show

An exhibit of California State Fair Purchase Prize Winners will be held at the Frances Young Gallery of the Marin Society of Artists beginning June 6 and continuing through June 20. The show is under the joint sponsorship of the Marin Society of Artists and the Marin County schools, under the direction of Superintendent Virgil S. Hollis.

Eleanore Bender and Gwen Stone (Mrs. Karl Barron), who are among the Society's elected jurors for the current year, made an exciting mid-May journey to Sacramento to select the works to be shown.

Mrs. Bender reports that the exhibit will be limited to approximately eight works in each of the following mediums: oils, watercolors, prints, textiles, and ceramics, and that she and Gwen were interested in quality rather than quantity.

At each California State Fair a number of purchase awards are made in the Arts Division. In addition, various works that are awarded prizes automatically become the property of the California State Fair and Exposition.

This year, for example, two first prizes, each in the amount of $700, wil be awarded for oil paintings, one for a conservative painting, and one for a modern one. These prize-winning paintings then become part of the permanent collection of the California State Fair & Exposition and may be loaned to schools and art galleries throughout the State. Should the judges find no painting worthy of any of the awards offered, they are instructed not to make the award. Only living California artists may enter the State Fair art competition.

Edward J. Lynam, Exhibit Supervisor for the State Fair and Exposition, made the necessary arrangements in Sacramento for the loan of this show.

A family of four on a moderate-cost food plan spends $32.11 a week for food needs, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture studies.

'Jet-Set' College Professors Hit

NEW YORK — The "jet-set" type of professor may be to blame for the student discontent that has been manifest in so many campus demonstrations throughout the country, according to a prominent educator here.

Wesley J. Hennessy, executive dean of the Columbia University School of Engineering and Applied Science, used the term to describe the professor who is on so many panels, has so many consultancies, and administers so many research contracts that a student can talk to him "only on the way to the airport."

See The Experts

NEW YORK (UPI) — In any major rebuilding and remodeling project about the home, consult the experts. For example, if you plan to install ceramic tile on walls and floors, see your contractor for help in selecting the type, color and design. Extensive alterations should not be undertaken without first getting the advice of your architect. For a decorating job with a flair, your interior decorator is the specialist to see.

Electronic Digits Expected To Aid Lunar Astronauts

The instruments will consist of five numerical digits displayed on a 2 by 4-inch flat surface. The numbers will indicate changes in the speed at which the moon craft is traveling.

Electroluminescence creates light through the excitation of phosphors in an electrical field. No bulbs or filaments are used in construction and, unlike electro-mechanical instruments, they are not affected by irregular gravity fields.

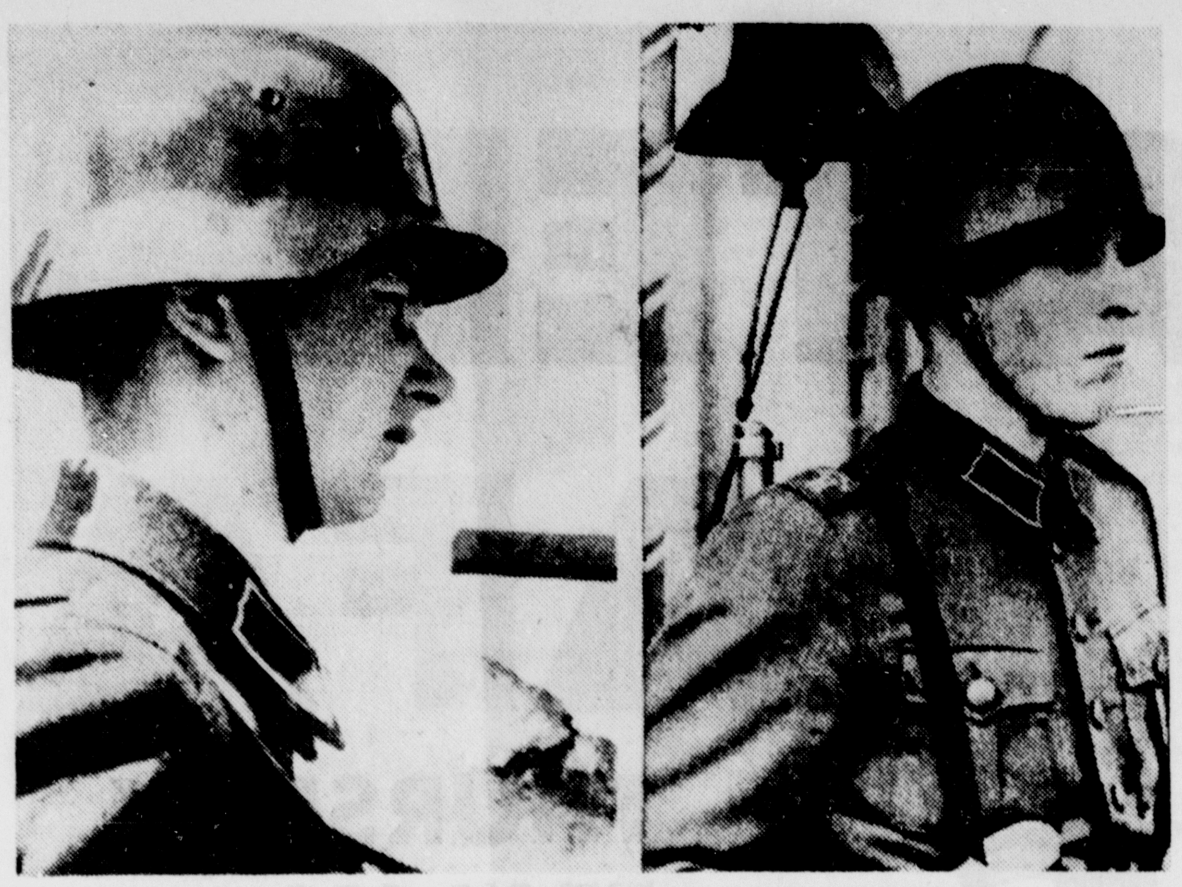
Sylvania, which has been a pioneer in development of electroluminescence, has been awarded a contract for the instruments by Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., which is developing the moon ship.

Texan Outlines Safety Cost Idea

HOUSTON (UPI) — A safety official who said cold statistics help little in cutting accidents cited another kind of example for Texans.

He said completely cover a football field with $1 bills. Then make successive layers of $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100 and $500 bills. Then pile on 5,619 tons of silver dollars.

It will come to $486,846,000. That is the estimated cost of accidents in Texas last year.



G. I. LOOK REPLACES S. S. STYLE

In Helsinki, Finland, troops model the old-style steel helmet modeled after World War II German headgear (left) which is being supplanted by a new, lightweight model inspired by United States Army equipment. The changeover is expected to take several months to complete.

Costly Rescue For Officers Manslaughter

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An ambulance and police hurried on an emergency call to find a couple sleeping in a car with the windows closed, doors locked and the engine running.

Fearing carbon monoxide poisoning, the officers tried to arouse the couple by banging the windows.

When that failed, they broke a window to unlock one of the doors. The couple, appearing groggy, thanked the officers.

Two hours later, the man presented police with a bill for $12.15 for the broken glass.

Attorneys Scarce

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Peace Through Law Center here has put together a world directory of lawyers, estimated to number 1 million. It shows that some countries have no more than three lawyers. Guinea, for instance, has only three; Laos has 23 and Libya has 115 lawyers.

Graduated Himself

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A correspondent student's lesson came back to the office at the University of Colorado. On it the Canon City post office had stamped, "Return to Sender. Moved. Left No Address." In one corner a state prison official had penciled one word, "Escaped."

Sticking a slippery, wiggly earthworm onto her hook is not the favorite aspect of fishing, so far as Anne Taylor, 7, of Oregon, Wis., is concerned. But, she consoles herself with the thought of how good those fish will taste served hot from the pan. (UPI Telephoto)

Scotland Plans Ferry Service To Norway

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — A new direct car-ferry service is expected to start next year between Aberdeen and Norway.

The Scottish Tourist Board also said that discussions are now under way for a new passenger, cargo and car service between Leith (Edinburgh) and Oslo.

The planned Aberdeen service will be to two Norwegian ports —Granvin on the west coast and Arendal on the south. The service will carry about 50 cars and 400 passengers.

The Leith-Oslo service will be primarily for cargo, but it is likely the ship would also carry 60 passengers and a number of private cars.

Men Litter Most According To Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Keep America Beautiful recently polled litter authorities in the 50 states to determine whether men or women litter the least. The men lost, hands down.

The survey, covering an equal number of men and women leaders of anti-litter groups, showed 73 per cent of those polled voted men the nation's No. 1 litterbugs. Only 12 per cent thought women litter more than men and 15 per cent had no opinion.

Forester Has Gift: He Can 'Read' Trees

By ELDON BARRETT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI)—Jack. E. Winn of Olympia has an unusual gift: he can read trees as if they already had been turned into newsprint.

Winn is a professional farm forester and under his prolonged surveillance are trees on 3,500 acres of privately-owned timer land, most of it in Thurston County, Wash.

Winn, a Washington State University graduate, has spent most of his adult life working with timber. He is one of the few men who have gone into the tree farm forestry business on a full-time, private scale.

For his clients, Winn and his 27 employes, cruise timber, decide what logging should be done, how it should be done, and where the trees should be sold once they are harvested.

This is where his tree-reading ability pays off.

"If this one comes out, these other four will grow and develop properly," he will say as he examines a cluster of trees. 'See that one? It has root rot and should come down. Notice that tall, straight Douglas fir? It has been growing for about 40 years and will increase in value by one-third or more if allowed to stand another 10 years."

His main job is to manage the harvesting of timber crops and when one considers that many trees do not get "ripe" until they are 50 or 60 years of age, this might seem like an impossible task. But Winn gets the job done, and he will take "cant" for an answer.

To Winn and other foresters, a cant is a saw log that has been roughed out to a specific dimension in the forest. Enough leeway is allowed to assure quick and easy finishing touchest at the mill.

In some cases, Winn might advise a client to move a portable sawmill operation to cant out the timber to be harvested.

Another way Winn makes money for his clients is to advise on selective cutting. Maybe the timber should go for pulp, or perhaps it should be earmarked for furniture manufacturing. Sometimes he recommends that it be cut just as plain firewood.

Contact Lense Risk

STANFORD (UPI) — The chances of getting an eye infection from bacterial contamination of contact lenses may be less if the lenses are kept in a dry case when not in use, according to researchers at the Stanford University School of Medicine.

Few Prairie Chickens Left In Midwest

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—Prairie chickens, once in the millions in Illinois and surrounding states in the Midwest, are close to extinction. Apparently few people care except a few conservation-biologists. There are now no more than 500 or 600 birds left.

According to biologist William Edwards of the Illinois Natural History Survey, the prairie chicken population had reached an all-time peak in the 1860s as grain crops spread over wide acres and the prairie grass was starting to give way to plow.

Prairie chickens unlike other species will not adapt to their surrounding — they must have grassland in which to nest.

The last census of "chickens" in Illinois showed 179 flocks containing approximately 1,982 birds.

Ireland Making New, Long Try At Reviving Gaelic Language

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN (UPI)—An English politician once commented "if you want to start a fight in Ireland try religion, then politics—if they both fail, raise the language question . . ."

And he was right.

The problem of how to revive the Gaelic language as the everyday spoken tongue of the Irish nation has exercised an incendiary effect on the national temperament for half a century.

Now Ireland is making a new, long-range try.

All phases of political, religious, civic and academic thought in the country agree on the national aim of language revival. But the method is in dispute.

At the turn of the century when Irish national pride finally stirred the nation into open revolt against the British, a determined effort was made to revive Gaelic as a badge of nationalism.

But Ireland found it easier to wipe out the physical evidence of British occupation than to deal with the invisible grip their language held on the people.

The first Irish governmemt that was formed in 1921 set about a vigorous restoration policy. Preference and compulsion went hand in hand as the state attempted to entice and force the Irish people back into a tongue that had been dying for centuries.

Successive Irish governments followed the same pattern in their approach to the Irish language. Gaelic was made a compulsory subject in all examinations at school, and in state-run schools all subjects were taught through Gaelic. Civil service jobs and state appointments were dependent on a fluency in Gaelic.

These areas, known as the Gaeltach, were traditionally economically depressed areas covering approximately 1,860 square miles, a large portion of which were mountains, bog and marshlands. With the difficulty of making a livelihood in these areas increasing each year, the families began moving toward the English-speaking towns and cities in search of employment. As each group moved, depopulating the area, the last remaining strongholds of the Gaelic language began to fall asunder.

In the constitution of Ireland, Gaelic is the first official language of the country while English is recognized as the second official language.

In practice, English is the dominant language of everyday life. Religious services, parliamentary debates, newspapers, radio, television and virtually all media of communication are in English.

Some years ago, Premier Sean F. Lemass, who knows little Gaelic, decided to tackle the whole program of the restoration of the language.

Last month the government issued a white paper setting out in full the aims of the Irish nation in regard to the language and the steps to be taken to restore it.

It represented the first real effort in years to get down to the problem of restoring the language as a living tongue.

It envisaged a 10-year period during which the government called upon all sections of thought in the country to cooperate in pushing the revival. Compulsion was virtually dropped as a total failure. In its place was state, religious, educational and industrial encouragement to those who wished to learn the language.

It also announced plans for "strengthening the social and economic life of the Gaeltacht" and increasing monetary benefits to those areas.

One of these benefits was a payment of five pounds ($14.) for each child who spoke only Gaelic—this has been increased to 10 pounds ($28). This particular enticement often has given rise to much puzzlement among tourists who have approached groups of children in the Gaeltacht areas to chat with them. When the tourists would speak, frozen fear would descend on the children who would turn tail and run as if their lives depended on their getting away. It may well have been the case, too, because if an inspector from the department of education had caught them speaking English to the tourists their parents' bonus would have been cut.

The Gaelic League, the militant Irish-speaking and Gaelic games organization, has announced it will cooperate fully with the government in this final move to save the language.

Santa Fe Is Wacky City, But Folks Like It There

By ROBERT E. HUBER

SANTA Fe, N.M. (UPI)—This is the wackiest city. But that's just the way the folks here like it.

There are roving bands of billboard vigilantes who meet on dark nights to chop down signs along nearby highways. Some of their memberships contain prominent artists and businessmen.

Then there are the city ordinances which prevent neon signs on store fronts.

On top of that, you can't even chose the exterior design of your own home in some parts of the city, and one of the busiest streets was paved only last year.

Called the "City Different" by the locals, most folks here have stubbornly refused progress over the years to the point where the city has become a curiosity. Narrow, unpaved streets stay that way, and there's many a court case to prove it.

Most of the buildings in the city are made of adobe, which is nothing more than mud and straw. But they provide warmth in the winter and a cool dampness in the summer. Some are still standing after 350 years. New ones go up every day.

When territorial governor Lew Wallace arrived in Santa Fe 87 years ago to write his famous book "Ben Hur," his new resident was already 270 years old. It was the Palace of Governors, home for Spanish dons, captains, admirals and Indians.

The Indians took back Santa Fe from the Spanish in a 17th Century revolt, and even today, as they sit beneath the Palace portals and quietly sell their jewelry, there's a question as to who owns what.

In 1821, Mexican rulers took over Santa Fe from Spain. The same year, the first Yankee Trader, William Becknell, arrived with a wagon load of merchandise and said the city was one of the most unique on the northern continent.

Then the Confederate Army took Santa Fe briefly in 1862, and there still are several private flagpoles that fly the Stars and Bars each day. But the city settled down to federal rule and in 1912, became the capital of the country's 47th state.

Rapid Transit Needs Mountain Of Cement

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Construction of the first subway system for the San Francisco Bay area will require five times as much steel as the Empire State Building and enough concrete to build five Pentagons.

The Bay Area Rapid Transit System will connect San Francisco with Oakland and other East Bay communities.

Bookmobiles Bringing Outside World To Mountain Families

By JEROME BRAZDA

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Little Hallie and some Washington bureaucrats find it mighty exciting that the government is finally doing so much for public libraries.

But the job has hardly started. There still are 16 million people in this nation of advanced technology who have no easy-to-reach public library facilities.

Hallie is a little girl from the Georgia mountains. She was introduced to the outside world through books from a bookmobile financed with federal funds. The Washington executives are the people at the Office of Education's Division of Library Services. The division did not come into existence until 1956 and then struggled until last year to stretch a $7.5 million annual appropriation across a great national need for better and more libraries.

The 1956 Library Service Act that provided the money was only a beginning. But the rural bookmobile program it set up was a great success. Last year Congress followed up with the Library Services and Construction Act of 1965. It is providing $30 million during the current fiscal year for construction of permanent public library facilities and $25 million for books, equipment and salaries of librarians.

In addition, the administration is asking this year for two new programs under its two education aid bills to provide library materials for schools and colleges as well as supplementary education centers.

The sudden largesse after years of famine is none too soon for the people at the Division of Library Services, especially John Lorenz, its director.

"We get all sorts of letters about how a whole new world opened up when the bookmobile came down the road," he told UPI. "This program has meant so much to people who have never had access to books before.

"And there still are 16 million people who have no library services anywhere in their areas."

Lorenz is a native of Michigan. He has been with the Office of Education since 1957 when the Division of Library Services was created. He has been its director since 1958.

The division began sending bookmobiles into rural areas where children knew only the tattered readers the poverty of their country school districts allowed them. Their parents, for the most part, saw no books.

For adults who could read it was a new world of riches. Those who could not read sometimes learned through the eyes of their children.

"It is almost too much for me," one adult wrote the Office of Education. "When I look at all these books of knowledge and adventure at my fingertips and think of how old I am and of how much I've missed in the past, I'm just desperate to know where to begin."

A Georgia bookmobile librarian said that "at one of our new stops we met a 5-year-old boy who had never had a book in his hands." In the same area Hallie's mother told of her daughter's wonder at learning what lay beyond the rocks and pines of her environment.

Chicago Safest City For Driving

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gaudy reputation to the contrary, Chicago is the safest big city in the nation in which to drive. Such things as 50,000 gallons of paint a year and drivers who don't honk their horns have made it that way.

The newcomer to Chicago is amazed. He can drive quickly through the city. There is orderly movement both of through vehicles and vehicles that are turning. The quiet is almost eerie to a stranger—there is hardly anyone honking.

And more important, Chicago's traffic fatality rate is dropping at a time when that of most other cities is rising. For the last few years, the rate has been below 3 deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles. In 1964, 270 persons were killed, 34 fewer than the year before.

Comparatively last year, New York had 708 traffic fatalities for a death rate of 4.3. Of the other cities in the top five population centers, Los Angeles had 458 deaths and a rate of 3.3, Philadelphia 175 deaths and a rate of 3.1, and Detroit 254 deaths and a rate of 3.9.

The Chicago success story goes back almost to World War II.

Then, policemen mounted on horses patrolled the Loop. The authority of the city's traffic division was confined largely to the downtown. Lighting was poor. The network of streets was a mess.

And 505 persons died in 1947—a rate of 8.5.

That year the field division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police was asked to make a study of the Chicago situation. Franklin M. Kreml, founder of Northwestern University's Traffic Institute, directed it.

The authority of the traffic division was extended. Its manpower and equipment were beefed up. In the years that followed Chicago achieved:

—Synchornized traffic lights that permit drivers to travel farther between red lights.

—Improved street lighting, said to be the best of any big city in the world.

—Good connection between streets even though Chicago is sliced up by waterways, railroads and industrial areas. In one notable example, a one-mile viaduct on Damen Avenue carries traffic over railroad yards.

—Channelization of traffic.

—Superb accident reporting.

—Public acceptance.

One of the most important factors has been "channelization," or funneling of traffic by destination. At many intersections drivers wanting to make a left turn pull into "refuge bays," or concrete islands, where they do not interfere with other traffic. Special left-turn arrows give them the go-ahead.

Michael Robinson, deputy commissioner of streets, estimates the city uses 50,000 gallons of paint annually in maintaining the lanes.

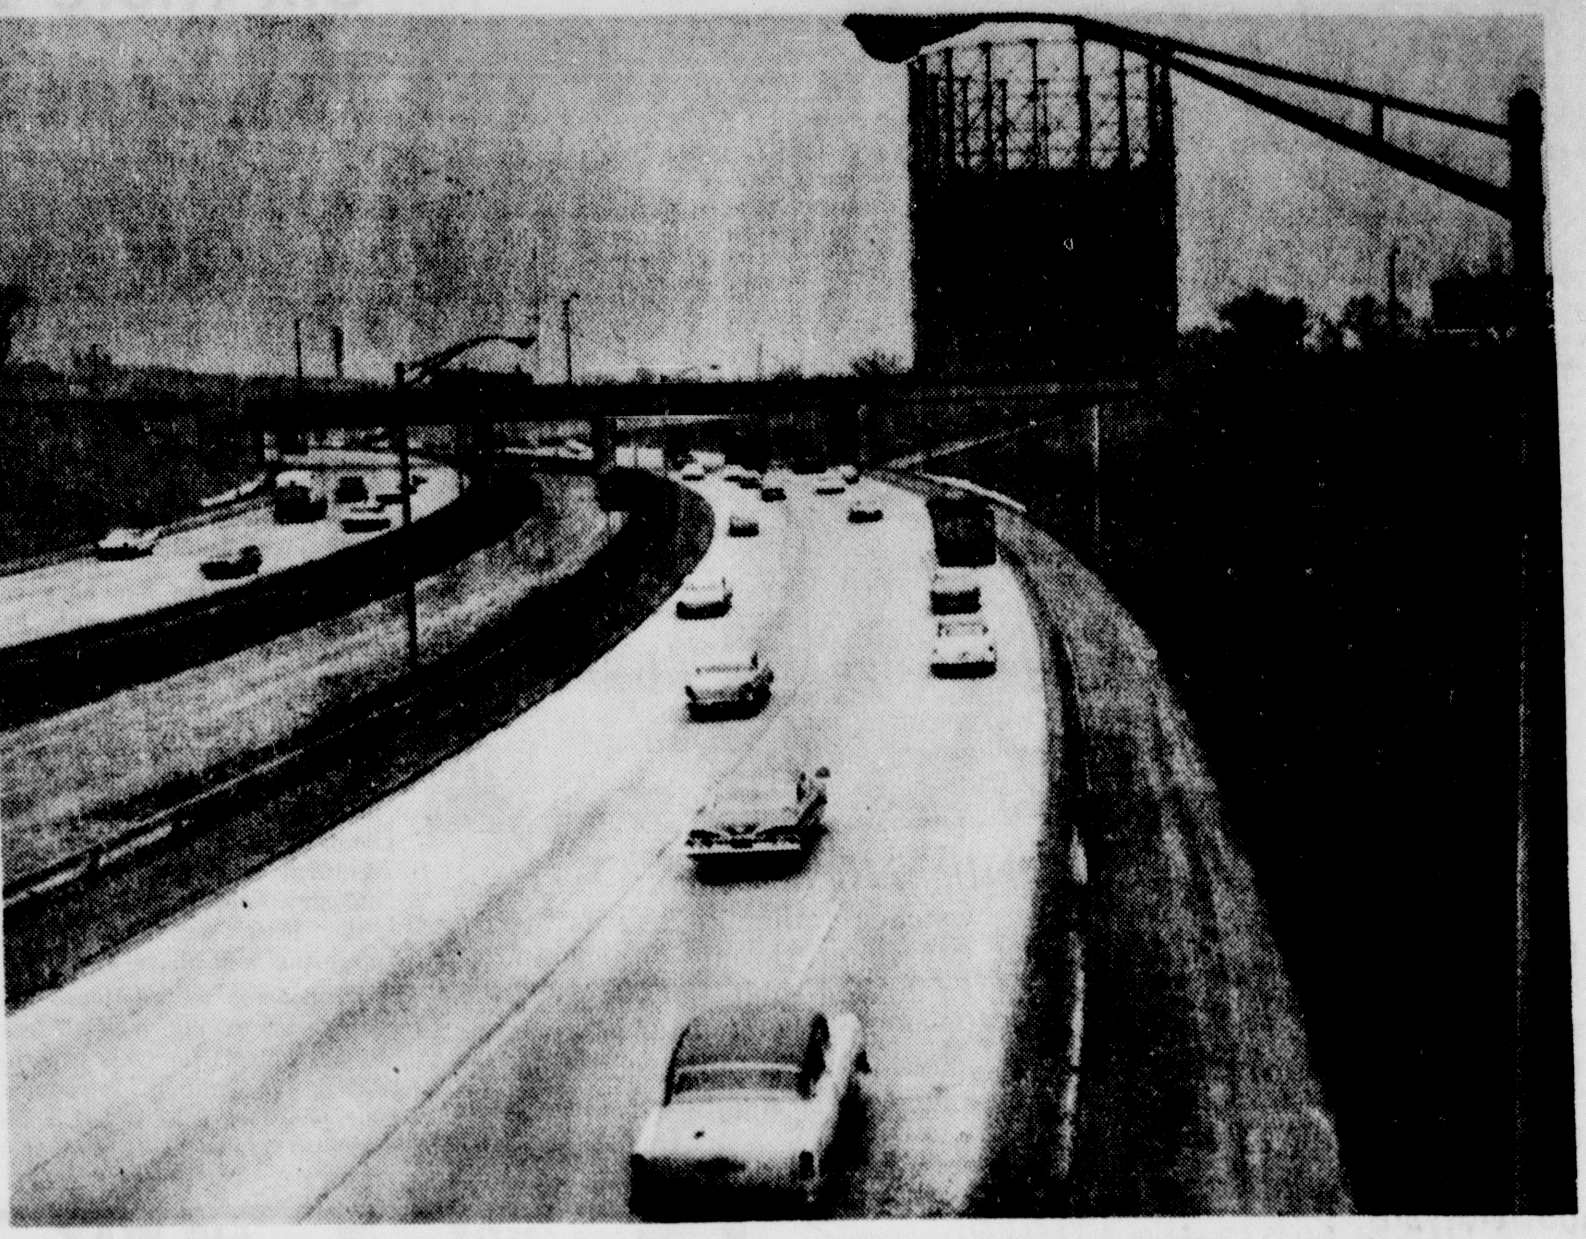
As a result, traffic safety officials say, there is systematic movement of traffic, drivers aren't barging into their neighbors, and there is something "tangible" to drive by.

Not only has there been improvement of existing streets, but Chicago has added an impressive network of expressways. The Eisenhower Expressway, formerly the Congress Expressway, goes underneath the Chicago post office and carries traffic into the western suburbs. The Eden and Kennedy expressways go northwest.

The new Dan Ryan Expressway, which strings out south from the Loop, has been advertised as the world's widest highway. Lake Shore Drive runs north and south.

There are overpasses that carry through traffic over congested sections, such as at Ashland and Pershing, or Belmont and Clubourn.

Studies are under way to meter traffic about to pull onto the expressway. Drivers would be advised whether the expressway load could accommodate them.



SAFE FREEWAYS—Visitors to Chicago are greeted by neatly maintained double-lane highways, similar to the scene in this recent photo. (UPI Telephoto)

Yankee Caution Still Typical In Portland

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — When the local action group began its anti-poverty drive by announcing that eight months would be devoted to a study of the situation, the Portland Evening Express editorialized:

"Poverty in Portland doesn't seem to be in any immediate danger."

Delinquency By Another Name

NEW YORK (UPI) — They don't have juvenile delinquents in Russia. It's simply a matter of terminology. In the Soviet, they're known as "misguided youth," says Akos Valentin in "Coronet" magazine.

Valentin — it's not his real name — speaks with authority. He spent two years at the Corrective Camp for Juvenile Offenders at Ufa, Capital of the Bashkir Autonomous Republic, 700 miles east of Mosow.

His crime? Then 16, he was apprehended stealing cigarettes from the pocket of a clothing factory foreman.

West Germany Notes Home Building Boom

BONN (UPI) — A record 623,000 new dwellings, were built in West Germany in 1964, the federal housing ministry reports. Officials anticipate another 600,000 dwellings will be finished this year.

About two-thirds of the dwellings were built by private persons, and more than one-half of them were wage-earners, a ministry spokesman said.

Bridge Is Favorite

CHICAGO (UPI) — A playing card company here says a survey shows that bridge is the most popular card game in America. Next in popularity, the firm says, are poker, canasta, pinochle, rummy, hearts, auction bridge and solitaire.

NO CAT NIP, NOW

Mrs. Eugene Olson of Niagara Falls, N.Y., has no fears that her husky tomcat "Barney" is just nuzzling that sparrow on her hand preparatory to making a meal of it. "Barney" found the bird injured and brought it home. He became a birdwatcher rather than a birdchaser last winter, through friendship with an injured robin the Olsons nursed through the winter and released last month. Maybe the feline became lonesome, so sought out a new pal. (AP Wirephoto)

Impatient Girl, 9, Just Can't Wait

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Used to waiting days to get films developed, Eric Lyons considered his camera which develops a print in just 10 second quite an achievement. His 9-year-old daughter, Madeline, wasn't impressed.

She fidgeted as she waited for the 10 seconds to pass so she could see the picture she'd taken and finally demanded: "Daddy, why does it take so long?"

Six More Holidays Per Year Suggested

By DON BACON
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Six more holidays a year.

Sound good?

Well, don't start making plans just yet, but Congress has received proposals to set aside a total of six days a year for national observances of one kind or another.

There are already eight federal legal public holidays.

And congress has been reluctant to add any more because of the high cost in lost wages, sales and porduction.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.), chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, has estimated that a nationwide holiday costs the federal government about $70 million and industry about $900 million. Other losses put the holiday price tag well above $1 billion.

Proponents in the House and Senate are trying, nevertheless, to win support for their favorite day of recognition. Introduced this year are bills to set aside days in honor of Christopher Columbus, Abraham Lincoln, the Constitution, the flag, the elections and the American Indian.

Some are already on the books as state holidays. Thirty-two states, for instance, observe Columbus Day every Oct. 12.

A legal holiday designated by Congress or the president is binding only on federal employees and the District of Columbia. States have jurisdiction over the holidays they observe, but they almost always follow the federal designation.

Of all the current proposals, Columbus Day has the best chance of becoming a federal holiday. Italian - American groups have worked hard in recent years to promote the honor for the discoverer of America, and have won considerable backing in the house and senate. No fewer than 20 bills calling for a Columbus Day have been introduced this year.

The newest of the proposals is for an American Indian Day. First to introduce the bill was freshman Rep. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), who proposed designating the fourth Friday in September every year "to honor the original inhabitants of this nation."

A similar Indian Day bill was later introduced in the Senate by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) and 33 co-sponsors.

Another proposal relating to holidays has been offered by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D-N.Y.). Stratton proposes to change the days of observing Washington's Birthday (Feb. 22), Memorial Day (May 30), Independence Day (July 4) and Veteran's Day (Nov. 11), so that they always fall on Mondays.

That would assure long weekend holidays, and would eliminate the feeling of being cheated by the calendar when a holiday falls on Saturday or Sunday.

More holiday bills have been introduced this year than in other years, but conspicuously absent are some old proposals to honor former Presidents Andrew Jackson and Franklin D. Roosevelt on their birthdays, and to observe the anniversary of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, "Anti - Segregation Day" and Good Friday.

Americans Visit Their Physicians

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans made 844 million visits to physicians during the 12-month period ending June, 1964, the U.S. National Health Survey reports.

The figure includes telephone consultations. This averages out to 4.5 visits for each person in the U.S. civilian non-institutional population.

READY TO 'LAUNCH' NEW LIFE

Engineers of the Douglas Missile and Space Systems at Santa Monica struggled to get this bird on the pad, only in this case the bird was aimed at becoming a mother. The dove chose a nesting place amid the framework of the gantry of a Saturn missile. After the eggs were hatched recently, the bird family moved away.

U. S. Has Blind Spot About Sightless

By CHARLES SCHAEFFER
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Medical science — and the federal government — have a blind spot about helping the sightless.

A report by a private agency, Research to Prevent Blindness, Inc., reveals that of one million current cases of blindness 800,000 are unknown to science. Yet private donations and government spending to combat blindness add up to less than $20 million a year.

A "rock bottom" investment of $38 million annually over the next five years — a total of $190 million — is required to set the stage for an all-out attack on blindness, the report says. This is about the pricetag of two Mariner shots at Mars.

"Ophthalmic Research: USA" was authored by Dr. Thomas D. Duane of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. The association is in New York City.

Last year, Dr. Duane told a House appropriation subcommittee that "the time is at hand to recognize that blindness is a major — and catastrophic — health problem which is increasing far beyond our ability to cope with it."

He gave preliminary findings of the report showing that combined sources spent only about $14 million on eye research in 1963. About $9 million of this was spent in direct ophthalmic research.

The U.S. government share in eye research totaled roughly $10 million in 1964. In its new budget before Congress, the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness here is asking $11 million, only a modest increase.

The House Appropriations Committee took no initiative to boost eye-research funds last year. But members in the past have nagged U.S. planners to improve efforts. No move to add money this year has cropped up.

Dr. Richard L. Masland, director of the institute, and a member of the science advisory panel of the blindness research foundation, observed that Dr. Duane has "mapped out a very imaginative and broad program for the support and development of this important field."

On some points, the government can cooperate, he said. "First of all, the easiest thing for the federal government to do is to support research projects." But the projects must have "defined objectives," he reminded the association.

He said the government can support research training, but not direct medical training. He said the U.S. obviously cannot create the recognition in a community for programs of vision research; supply top level physicians to do clinical research, and award "fluid" funds that go beyond research and research training.

"... There must be someone who is willing to gamble on some projects that we, in government, cannot. There is a need for risk money for preliminary exploration of new ideals," he said.

Dr. Duane's assault on the problem calls for a five-year budget of $190 million. "If the people of the nation should demand a full-scale, nationwide attack against blinding diseases," the report states, "these figures might easily be doubled or tripled.

"It is not merely a matter of awarding grants to assist in the development of ongoing projects. The base must be broadened — the laboratory facilities, the equipment, the trained men and all the necessary appendages which support their effort."

The report also noted that: 90 million Americans have some eye trouble; 3.5 million suffer permanent non-correctable visual defects, and 1 million are blind.

In addition, 30,000 more lose their sight each year because of diseases that might be prevented through adequate research. Eight of 10 new blindness cases stem from mystery-ailments such as cataracts, glaucoma, old-age degeneration, detached retinas, diabetes and others.

The plight of eye research is partly due to its step-child status in the nation's medical schools, the report declared.

It called for "aggressive action" to upgrade ophthalmic research to a full departmental status.

Film Portrayal Has Witchdoctors Angry

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Members of South Africa's Witchdoctors' Association are angry. They claim scenes in a locally made movie, starring British actor Sidney James, discredit their profession.

"These people are killing our business," said Lucan Teane, national president of the Witchdoctors' Association, after seeing the movie. "We are here to cure and not to kill. That witchdoctor in the film was definitely not genuine."

Another witchdoctor, Estrom Molocia, bedecked in monkey skins and wearing magic beads, said: "I do not know of any man in our business who kills in order to cure."

Both were among 30 witchdoctors invited to the south African premiere of the film.

Black magic and sorcery are practiced by many Africans in this country. For the price of a live chicken an African can get a witchdoctor to cast an evil spell on a fellow tribesman.

The witchdoctors also sell medicines guaranteed to cure all sorts of ills. They include lion and crocodile fat, tree bark and herbs.

Helpful Hints For Your Lawn

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—It's not too early to think about watering the lawn.

Regular care during the early months can mean the difference between a green, healthy lawn and a brown, withered one later on in the year.

B.F. Goodrich engineers here say that lawns shouldn't be flooded with a steady stream of water. A slow, soaking drizzle is best for grass. To test the need to water, push a knife or stick into the soil to a depth of about four inches. If the earth is crumbly and dry at that depth, the lawn needs watering.

During hot weather, lawns should be watered to a depth of about six inches.

Nevada Residents Face Greatest Chance Of Having Heart Attack

By CHARLES SCHAEFFER
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Nevada's residents and itinerant gamblers face the greatest odds in the West of having a heart attack.

Otherwise, middle-aged men living West of the Mississippi River have fewer cases of fatal heart disease than Easterners. Nobody knows the reason. It just happens to be so.

A state-by-state breakdown on the chance of developing fatal cardiovascular disease has been pieced together by the American Heart Assn. with data partly supplied by federal researchers here.

White males aged 45-64 living in the nation's capital, for example, run double the risk of dying of heart disease than men in New Mexico. This also gives Washington, D.C., the dubious distinction of having the highest rate of death from heart and artery trouble in the nation.

The grim statistics of the survey show that of every 100,000 Washingtonians, 1,003 die annually of heart disease. South Carolina is second with 933, and Nevada is third, with 898. The report didn't speculate whether gambling was a factor.

The experts attribute Washington's high risk partly on the fact it is a city having no relaxed rural living to offset urban deaths.

Cardiovascular disease, nicknamed CV, covers all types of heart and blood-vessel disorders. It now kills nearly one million Americans a year, accounting for 54 per cent of all deaths, a 34 per cent increase since 1900.

"Despite the magnitude of the problem," the association report notes, ". . . trends indicate that the death rate from cardiovascular disease is actually going down. The total number of people dying is larger, but the number of deaths per 100,000 members of the population is getting smaller."

The higher total is explained by the fact that more people are surviving to older ages when CV takes its greatest toll. The rate itself started down in 1940 and apparently is still dropping.

Some researchers credit drugs that lower blood-pressure, improved surgery, better diet information and stroke-prevention techniques for the decline.

The association itself recommends steps for reducing the risk of heart attack and strokes. These call for:

Substitution of vegetable fats or liquid fats like corn oil in some meals.

Elimination of cigarette smoking.

The association believes at least 100,000 premature deaths from heart disease are smoking-linked.

High blood pressure sufferers run a greater risk of heart attacks and strokes. Now, more than 21,500,000 persons have hypertension of some degree. Nearly half have accompanying heart disease, and about seven million have high blood pressure without heart disease.

The figures do not include another 13 million Americans classified by the U.S. Public Health Service as having "suspect heart disease."

Women resist heart disease better than men. And at ages 45-54, the while male death rate from coronary disease is more than five times higher than the white female's, and more than twice as high as the non-white female's.

The report—"Cardiovascular Disease in the U.S."—was published by the heart association in cooperation with the National Heart Institute and the Heart Disease Control Program here.

Science Is Fighting Yellowjack Threat

By WILLIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Disease fighters are mobilizing a "permanent solution" to the still-prevailing threat of yellowjack — yellow fever — in Southern United States.

Federal and state health authorities are attempting to wipe out every last mosquito of the aedes aegypti variety which transmits the disease virus to humans.

Absolute eradication of the aegypti mosquito, which still abounds in 10 states, is considered the only certain way of freeing the country from a return of the scourge that periodically killed thousands of persons up until 60 years ago. But the eradication program is running into controversy.

Some researchers want to preserve colonies of the insects so they can continue studies of how the virus is carried and passed back and forth to people. But this could be risky. Some of the mosquitoes might get loose through careless handling in a laboratory and quickly reinfest cleared areas.

One proposed solution is to move such research into the northern part of the country where the aegypti does not normally survive. But this may be dangerous, too. The mosquito's eggs can remain dormant for years and hatch out when weather conditions are favorable.

Moreover, rendering the mosquito extinct in this hemisphere is part of a long-standing agreement between the United States and Central and South American nations. Brazil, Peru, Bolvia, Ecuador and other nations already have succeeded in destroying the health menance at considerable expense and they don't want to be reinfested.

The U. S. Public Health Service currently is wrestling with a policy on the research issue and is expected to make a decision shortly.

Meantime, the Federal Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., reports that eradication programs employing DDT sprays are moving ahead in Florida, Texas, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

Next year, the center says intensive spraying will start in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi where the mosquito is prevalent, and extend on up into North Carolina.

The mosquitoes must be hunted down in every conceivable nesting place, from a water-filled discarded toy to the deep reaches of swamp lands. The task involves covering thousands of square miles and will take five years and more than $50 million to accomplish, officials say.

The last yellow fever outbreak of major proportions occurred in 1905. One of the worst happened in 1878 when more than 13,000 persons died, including 4,046 victims in New Orleans.

No yellow fever cases have been reported for many years in this country and it has been practically forgotten by the public. But authorities believe that as long as the transmitting agent lives, as one expert puts it, "an outbreak of yellow fever could occur without warning in any of 10 Southern States."

Only one person carrying the virus in his bloodstream has to get by quarantine and be bitten by an aelgypti to start an epidemic.

There is no cure for yellow fever, which gives its victims jaundice and a raging temperature. And it can be fatal for most persons who have not been vaccinated.

Past Presidents' Illness Hushed Up

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the United States lies desperately ill, partially paralyzed from a stroke.

His true condition is kept secret from the public, congress, and even his cabinet.

The time comes when, under the Constitution, he must report to Congress on the state of the Union. Cabinet officers are asked to submit a few paragraphs about their departments. A presidential secretary puts them together, reads them to the crippled president. A few changes are made. And the state of the Union report is presented to Congress in his name.

Fiction? A mystery thriller?

Not at all.

It was one of two incidents cited to Congress by President Johnson to show the need for a new constitutional procedure, permitting the vice president to take over if a president is disabled.

The other instance was when James A. Garfield was shot in the back by a disgruntled office seeker on July 2, 1881. Garfield lingered on for 80 days, unable to perform the duties of office. The vice president was unwilling to take over.

In those 80 days, Garfield performed only a single act as president. He signed an extradition paper prepared by the State Department and read to him by his wife.

He saw the cabinet only once, for a brief meeting, after he had been taken to a seashore cottage at Elberon, N.J., where he died of blood poisoning Sept. 6, 1881.

The cabinet split on whether Vice President Chester Arthur should invoke the disability clause of the Constitution and take over. It was decided that because of the importance of the move, the question would be put to the ailing President himself. However, the cabinet officers were told that the shock of such a proposal might speed the President's death.

A delegation then consulted with Arthur. He told the cabinet officers he would not undertake the responsibilities while Garfield was alive. And not until Garfield was dead did the presidency start functioning again.

Woodrow Wilson collapsed at Pueblo, Colo., Sept. 26, 1919, while touring the nation by special train to arouse public support for the proposed League of Nations. The train was darkened, the window shades drawn, and the president was hurried back to Washington. The White House was converted into a hospital.

The only ones allowed to see him were his wife, Edith Wilson; the White House physician, Dr. Gary Grayson, and specialists. At one point the President was near death from a bladder blockage. Six physicians agreed that risky surgery was indicated or Wilson would succumb to uremic poisoning. The question was put to Mrs. Wilson for a decision but she was unable to make it. However, two hours later Wilson overcame the blockage.

A nerve specialist advised the First Lady to keep all disturbing news from her husband, to intercept all messages and to consult with cabinet officers on any decisions that had to be made.

Mrs. Wilson asked whether it wouldn't be better for the President to resign and let the vice president take over. The physician advised against it on grounds that making such a decision would be a shock and a serious setback to the President. The physician also was supposed to have advised that it would be bad for the nation, then going through transition from war to peace.

And so Mrs. Wilson and the White House physician became guards over the bedroom of the President. Letters addressed to him were never answered. Emergency messages vanished.

Schooling's Cost

BURLINGAME (UPI) — California taxpayers are spending $570 this year on the education of each child, according to the California Teachers Association.

Lone Ranger Not In Fight

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Weidner welcomed several young visitors to the OK Corral, which he manages.

Before stepping into the spot where Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday shot it out with the Clanton brothers, one of the boys asked:

"Was the Lone Ranger in the fight?"

The surprised Weidner said no, and the boys turned and left.

Whisky A Go-Go?

ATHENS (AP) — Greek customs officials are checking closely into whisky imports. The investigation was started when British export figures showed Greece had imported 40,000 cases of whisky last year but Greek customs records showed only 22,000 cases listed as entering the country.

Credit Card Theft, Misuse Given Serious Attention

By MARGARET BANCROFT
U. P. International

A few years ago, a 19-year-old kid got himself a credit card and went to town cashing bad checks, engaging plush hotel suites, putting away gourmet dinners, and buying, buying, buying.

The spree lasted more than a month.

Before he was nabbed, Joseph Miraglia of New York had run up $10,000 in bills, bilked such hotels as the Waldorf-Astoria, flown to Canada and Cuba and grayed the hairs of credit card company executives.

The rough part of it for the credit car firms was that Miraglia popularized the sport of cashing in fast with a stolen or counterfeited card. The boy from the Bronx seemed to prove that it wasn't necessary to look rich or middle-aged to fool hotel clerks, airline personnel, store salesmen and headwaiters into thinking there was real money behind a little two-by-three inch scrap of paper.

Things aren't quite as free and easy anymore. The stores, auto rentals, restaurants, hotels and airlines that honor credit cards are more suspicious these days. And the credit card companies, notably the big three—American Express, Diners' Club and Hilton Hotel's Carte Blanche—are deadly serious about discouraging joy-riders.

Nevertheless, Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Co., which is in the business of selling insurance against card thefts, says 60,000 cards are stolen or misused each year. The insurance company estimates 70 million cards of all kinds are in circulation. It says 1.5 million cards are lost each year.

The credit card companies, certain that publicity only encourages theft, don't want to admit to anything like Lumbermen's figures.

The credit card theft game is played chiefly by a hard-core band of pros with the information and inclination to deliberately seek out cards for misuse.

Black market stolen cards come from three chief sources. Hoodlums mug likely looking victims, extracting the cards from their wallets, sometimes leaving the cash intact. And the pros have their friends among doormen, hotel maids and clerks, all people who are apt to stumble across a lost card and may be willing to pass it on to the black market for money.

Cards are also stolen from the mails, often by sharpies looking, primarily, for checks. As a sideline, they have grown adept at identifying credit card envelopes.

When a card works its way into the hands of a thief, someone is going to be set back an average $500. Court decisions tend to hold the owner of the card responsible for the debt, but most card companies, interested in easing the fears of card holders, take financial responsibility for the debts — if the theft is reported to them.

Additionally, card holders can take out inexpensive insurance to guard against having to pay the bills thieves run up.

The card companies have developed systems for catching the thieves. But they have no intention of giving out the details of their protection system. That gives the game away.

Carte Blanche, which learned a lesson from Miraglia, like the other big firms, insists on a thorough check of an applicant's financial resources before it parts with a card. Carte Blanche verifies employment addresses, professions, banks and credit backgrounds. In general, the big companies will issue cards only to those with a yearly income of over $7,500. The average card owner earns between $10,000 and $20,000.

"We feel we should not give Carte Blanche to persons who need credit per se," says Carte Blanche executive Vice President William H. Cockrell.

When the card companies are told of a lost or stolen card, they make it their business to notify all clients who might honor the card. They list the card number on a bulletin mailed to business places.

Still, a costly time gap remains between the reporting of a stolen card and the communication of that information to the businesses which stand to be cheated. Diners' Club, for example, must notify 90,000 outlets.

The credit card companies are inclined to shrug off the theft problem. If they thought they could eradicate the entire problem, they would use photographs on cards or take out insurance.

They don't.

One out of every 10,000 cards is illegally used and the bulk of the country's card holders go along in life somewhat worried about losing their cards, but more worried about paying the bill they legally run up.

Executive Pilots Jets As Well As His Airline

By DONALD J. RETTIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — The usual chair for a corporation executive is behind a desk, but Lewis B. Maytag Jr. is comfortable in the pilot's seat of a giant jet airliner.

Although unorthodox, it's appropriate because Maytag is president of National Airlines and qualified to fly commercial jets.

The 38-year-old executive was the first domestic airline president to qualify as a commercial jet pilot when he flew a four-engined DC8 six months after he became head of the nation's sixth largest airline in 1962.

He since has been certified by the Federal Aviation Agency as a pilot for the tri-jet Boeing 727.

Maytag also flies at supersonic speeds. He flew a Lockheed F104 Starfighter at speeds logged above mach 2, or 1,400 miles an hour. For recreation, he pilots a much slower vintage PT17 open cockpit biplane.

But even in the jet age the measure of an executive in a competititve industry is not how fast he can fly, but how much black ink he can put in the corporate ledger. And at the controls of the Miami-based airline, Maytag has been setting financial records.

National had net losses of $3.9 million and $8.2 million, in its 1960 and 1961 fiscal years. It stopped paying cash dividends in 1959.

Maytag, the youngest president of a domestic trunk airline, came to National after heading Frontier Air Lines, a regional carrier based in Denver.

By the end of 1962, National had record six months earnings. The balance sheet showed record net earnings of $6.4 million for 1963 and a record $7.8 million profit for 1964. Cash dividends payments resumed in January, 1964.

For the first half of the current fiscal year, profits hit a record $5.2 million—a whopping 166 per cent increase over the similar 1964 period.

In an interview at National's penthouse offices here, Maytag summed up the reason as "efficiency and aggressive cost control."

"National has a sound route structure, the finest equipment available and experienced personnel. This permits us to offer the best service to the travelling public," he said.

Its routes stretch more than 6,500 miles, serving 40 cities on the East, Gulf and West coasts. The most lucrative section is the New York - Florida run. But Maytag admits the Southern transcontinental route from Florida to California has helped solve National's seasonal earnings problem. The airline once profited during the winter season from its East Coast route and then struggled in other months.

Efficiency came in converting National to an all jet-powered airline and reducing the number of its aircraft. It currently operates 17 Lockheed Electras, 13 DC8s and seven Boeing 727s with three more on order.

"Less planes ,capable of carrying more passengers faster means lower operating costs," Maytag said.

Worst Littering Done Near Home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Litterbugs for the most part do their dirty work near home. Ever since the advent of the automobile, tourists have been popularly blamed for the litter along the nation's highways. Now Keep America Beautiful, the national anti - litter organization, has conducted a survey that seems to exonerate the tourists.

KAB questioned professional and voluntary litter fighters in the 50 states to obtain their views on litterbug behavior. More than three quarters of those participating in the survey said local residents produce more litter than tourists.

Milk Is Top Earner

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Milk is the most important farm commodity produced in Pennsylvania. The College of Agriculture at the Pennsylvania State University reported milk accounts for 40 per cent of all cash receipts of all cash receipts of farm sales. Poultry is second with 20 per cent.

Do Computers Gossip About Your Credit?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What do computers talk about when they get together for an afternoon of gossip?

They "chat" about your bank balance, what and where you've been eating, and what hotels and airlines you've been patronizing, according to Dr. Edward J. Laurie, Associate Professor of Business Management, San Jose State College.

Laurie, who views computers as more friendly than the family dog and more helpful than a staff of office workers, even visualizes the computers as a sort of crusading "Sir Galahad slaying a great paper dragon."

Laurie told a conference of the Data Processing Management Association that the days of thumbing through a multiplicity of credit cards are almost over.

He suggested that consumers, even those traveling, will carry a single card to be presented to a computer at each of their stops — store, restaurant, hotel or airline.

The computer would check instantly with many other computers. Not even the traveler's bank balance would remain a secret. The combined machines might even decide if you can afford a $5.00 steak dinner or would have to settle for hamburger.

Days of pre-dating and post-dating checks would be over.

If that isn't enough to frighten a man, Laurie claims we're even going to have to re-learn how to spell — or face the prospect of being snubbed by the computer.

The first grader who spells cat "kat" will find that he is right after all, Laurie said, because that is the way voice- activated computers will have to spell it. "Knee" will be "ne" because there will be no more silent "K" and silent "e."

Laurie also suggests that language will become simpler, with excess verbiage disappearing. "Just how much do you have to say to each other without adding a lot of useless information?" he said.

"Tomorrow's businessman certainly will be more sophisticated than today's, and tomorrow's students certainly will be brighter."

Citizens Hatch Many Air Safety Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the seventh floor of the big Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) building here are about 20 folders bulging with letters.

Each folder carried the label "Ideas on air safety from the public." They include correspondence from learned aeronautical engineers, complete with blueprints. There also are laboriously - scrawled, crude drawings from kids.

There is one letter several pages long from an inventor outlining his ideas on a new type of airliner seat. There is another one paragraph note from an 11-year-old boy, originally addressed to the late President John F. Kennedy, which starts out:

"I'm sorry to bother you if you are busy, but I have an idea on how to make airplanes safer."

This was accompanied by a pencil drawing of a crippled airliner, with a huge parachute attacked to the fuselage.

The lad's idea is the most frequent proposal made to FAA. The agency answers each one with this patient explanation:

Even if it were possible to design a parachute capable of supporting the weight of a 120-ton jet, such a chute would be so heavy by itself that passenger and baggage capacity would have to be limited.

The FAA answers every letter — no matter how far-fetched the idea. In some cases, it merely acknowledges the correspondence with a polite thanks for the writer's interest in air safety. Suggestions which may have some merit are turned over to FAA's engineering and safety division.

The majority of letters seek financial help for further experimentation. A great proportion suggest ideas which already are the subject of official testing or which have been discarded on the basis of previous experiments. Quite a few bring wry smiles to FAA's engineers, like the one which began:

"I think this idea is good. It's better than the one you have which is nothing."

Or the writer who simply announced:

"I have a device which will prevent all crashes. Please reply soon."

Many air safety proposals are ingenious, if impractical. Samples: — build a conveyor belt which moves at the speed of a landing aircraft so a plane making a wheels - up landing would merely have to set down on the belt. (Wheels-up landings are not a serious problem, seldom result in anything but minor damage, and the belt idea would be too expensive).

—Put a big cradle on a flat car which would move down a runway and catch a crippled plane as it settled down (Same objections).

—Equip each airliner with a telescopic tube, through which passengers could be transferred from a crippled plane to another aircraft while still in flight. (Such a tube would have to be at least 75 feet long to keep the planes safely separated and strong enough to allow the passage of persons at 150 miles an hour — all of which adds up to a device so heavy that no airliner could carry one).

Auto Junk Yards Are On Way Out

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Automobile junkyard eyesores will be eliminated under a plan worked out jointly by the automobile industry and the Association of Scrap Metal Dealers.

Central junkyards will be established and old cars may be junked only in them. The federal government is prepared to use its legal powers to force the clearing of present junkyards which "disfigure the landscape," an Economics Ministry spokesman said.

Stripping Helps Keep Cold Air Out

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A flexible magnetic stripping that for many years has kept cold air in refrigerators is now being used on steel residential doors to keep cold air out of apartments and houses, according to United States Steel engineers.

The new magnetic weather stripping grips the steel door upon closing and provides a positive seal against cold drafts and heat loss.

Big Lifter On Way

SAN MATEO (UPI)—A floating derrick with an unprecedented lifting capacity of 500 tons is being built for use in construction of a new $70 million bridge across San Francisco Bay.
